Legislative Session Opens

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A hot special session of the Missouri Legislature opened today in cold winter weather for 60 days of controversy.

A last minute addition to the legislative chores — congressional rodistricting— promised to keep the lawmakers busy trying to reconcile population and political disparities.

"It will be the first and last order of business," said Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, minority floor leader in the House.

He has registered violent opposition to the initial plan presented by Rep. Fred. E. (Gene) Copeland, D-New Madrid, chairman of the House Reapportionment Committee.

Copeland prepared a plan with a population variance of less than 1 per cent in the 10 districts after a special federal court ruled the 1967 redistricting plan was invalid. Copeland plans to start hearings on the bill next Tuesday.

King charged it was a calculated effort to keep Republicans from retaining their 2nd Congressional District seat in St. Louis County.

The special session, scheduled to convene at 1:30 p.m., also faces a record budget of more than $1.2 billion, to be presented by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes later in the day.

It also will be confronted with requests for financial aid from the St. Louis and Kansas City metropolitan areas. Legislators from those areas have shown little agreement on any of them.

Many of the legislators expressed doubt they could finish all the work ahead of them in the 60 days allowed.

Under Missouri's Constitution, a special session can last only 60 days and can consider only the topics recommended by the governor.

If the legislature fails to solve the problem of congressional redistricting, the special three-judge federal court will do the job.

A complication is that the deadling for candidate filings ends April 30. And that date might have to be extended if there is any legislative or judicial delay.

Despite the record budget, revenue figures have been revised upward in the light of collections for the fist six months of the current fiscal year, which were about 8 per cent higher than expected.

The House Appropriations Committee got a head start by holding hearings before the session opened and expects to start its executive sessions on the money bills Tuesday.

Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, House Appropriations chairman, said the goal is to get them through the House and to the Senate by Feb. 1.

Belsheim Resigns as Pastor

The Rev. Harold G. Belsheim, pastor of Concordia Lutheran church, has accepted a position as assistant superintendent at Concordia Junior College in Concordia, effective Feb. 1.

The church board last night accepted his resignation.

He will recruit students for the ministry, be minister to the student body, and assist in raising funds for the college. He will travel in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri.

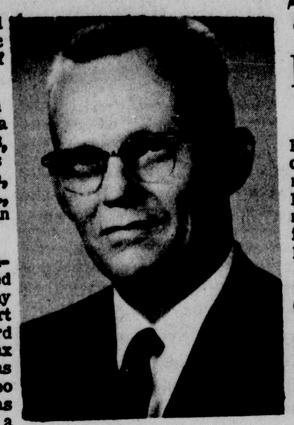

He came to Sikeston as minister of Concordia Lutheran in September of 1960.

A new parsonage was built for the family at 207 Kramer Drive. He and his wife, Loretta, a daughter, Mrs. Donald Hurtgen, St. Louis and two sons, Harold 19, and David Belsheim 18, both students at Concordia College.

He is deputy director of civil defense, a member of the public library board, and chairman of the Scott County Red Cross.

The Rev. Mr. Belsheim graduated from Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, in 1938, organized the Holy Cross Lutheran church, in Anita, Iowa, was a pastor in Ventura, Calif., and served as an army chaplain during World War II.

A new church board will be installed Sunday morning composed of Jim Green, president; Tony Statler, vice president; Herbert Eggers, secretary, and Bernard Johnson, treasurer, with Dr. Max Heeb, Bill Hailey, Dr. Thomas Waltrip, Kenneth Heil, Leo Schade and Jack Edwards as members. The board adopted a 1968 budget for the church of $26,646.

Dexter Youth 7,000th Boy In Scouting

CAPE GIRARDEAU - C. A. Bohnsack, Cape Girardeau, organization and extension chairman, Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, has announced that 7,077 boys were registered as members at the end of December.

Bohnsack stated that the 1966 membership in the Council was 6,692.

The Council's 7,000 boy is Rich Barber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barber of 907 N. Oak Street, Dexter, registered with Explorer Post 200, sponsored by the Methodist Church of Dexter. Jack Ward is the Explorer advisor.

The council set a goal for 7067 boys and for organization of 29 new packs, troops, or posts, which would make it possible for a total of 279 units to be registered in the 14-country area.

He said that the council organized 38 new units. There are more than 2,600 volunteer adult leaders in Southeast Missouri.

The Council is one of agencies supported by the 12 United Funds in Southeast Missouri.

Hearnes Presents $1.2 Billion Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes described his $1.2 billion budget recommendation today as enough to finance the government adequately in the fiscal year beginning July 1, but said it is crowding expected revenues.

The total is far less than the agencies and institutions of the state requested. It reflects the amount the governor thinks the state can spend for vital services and remain in the black— as the Constitution requires.

It leaves an estimated balance— or cushion — of slightly more than $18 million, about $2 million less than has been considered a safe margin in recent years.

And because of that the governor issued this warning:

"If the legislature goes above these figures the gamble becomes extremely dangerous."

In Hearnes' first budget, for the 1965-66 fiscal year, the total from all funds was a bit more than $882 million. The following year it broke the $1 billion mark and for the current year it is a little more than $1.1 billion.

The budgets, including today's recommendation, indicates the cost of the state's government operations is increasing just $100 million a year.

Hearnes said in his budget message: "This blueprint for orderly expendituures does not envision any increase in taxes.

"The necessity for a tax increase has been forestalled partially because of policies which have gained the most benefits possible from each tax dollar while providing an increased range of services as demanded by an increasing number of people, and partially because of Missouri's continually expanding base of economic support which has produced revenues at a pace approximating that of the population growth."

Hearnes estimates the three-cent sales tax will produce $290 million in the coming fiscal year. That's close to half the $597 million the governor is counting on in general revenue (tax) money for the new budget.

We also expect $149 million to be collected in state income taxes, $11,500,000 in interest on invested state funds, $14 million in liquor and beer taxes, $11 million in inheritance taxes, about $20 million in miscellaneous taxes and the rest in special funds.

The governor estimated there would be more than $102 million in motor fuel taxes, and $55 illion in auto registrations and driver licenses, along with many special fees.

Marston Gears for Industry

MARSTON -- Plans for community betterment that will be required with the location of the new Noranda Alumina plant were discussed last night at a meeting called by the mayor and board of aldermen.

Sam L. Hunter Jr., president of the New Madrid Chamber of Commerce, outlined the needs of the community and the impact the new industry will have on the area.

Hunter was instrumental in getting the $70 million facility.

Plans also call for construction of a $70 million power plant to serve the industry and surrounding communities.

Mayor Payl "Jack" Mahar, who presided, outlined steps Marston would need to take immediately to help accommodate the new industry's needs.

He said Marston must provide city sewage facilities, a water filtration plant, hard surfacing of streets and a city administration building.

Marston will be the town nearest to the Noranda plant site.

Also discussed were the needs for a city trash disposal service and a clean up, fix up campaign.

Kenneth Bodine, city clerk and treasurer, read the city financial statement, and alderman Louie Griffy discussed the proposed city housing code.

The two-hour meeting adjourned after Mahar was authorized to name committees and call another meeting to authorize the proposed programs.

Aldermen, J. D. Warner and Marvin Fausett also were present. About 165 attended.

635 Miles of Interstate Open

JEFFERSON CITY - A total of 635 miles of Missouri's 1,120-mile designated share of the interstate highway system is completed and open to traffic, according to a progress report by M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the Missouri state highway commission.

In addition, Snider reported, Missouri has 112 miles of interstate system under contract and being built, with 89 miles scheduled to be completed in 1968.

Along with the completed mileage and mileage now under contract, Missouri also has 113 miles of dual lane and divided highways in use on interstate route locations, according to the chief engineer. However, additional work such as acquiring right of way, building traffic interchanges, laying new pavement, stabilizing shoulders and installing signs will be required to bring those 113 miles up to interstate system standards.

Snider reported that Missouri still has 373 miles of interstate system routes to be placed under contract for construction. Mileage yet to be contracted is in rural and urban areas of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph.

Interstate system routes are built with 90 per cent federal and 10 per cent state funds.

Started in 1956 to provide Americans with a modern nation-wide network of highways, the 41,000 - mile interstate system originally was scheduled to be completed throughout the United States in 1972.

Insufficient funds at the federal level, resulting mainly from higher design standards and steadily rising costs for completing the interstate system, indicate that the superhighway network will not be finished until about 1975, according to Snider.

Missouri has been one of the leading states in progress on the interstate system ever since the program was started in 1956. Missouri was the first state in the nation to award construction contracts for work on the superhighway network.

Snider said the latest report from the U. S. department of transportation shows Missouri is tied for seventh among all states in the nation in using all federal aid highway funds made available to the states for the interstate system since the program began.

Ice Glazes Highways West

Travel west, southwest and north of Sikeston was hazardous this morning as the Sikeston area entered the 14th day of a cold siege. Skies were overcast if not dripping throughout Southeast Missouri.

Weather conditions varied. There was a mist from the Sikeston area south on Interstate 55 and highway 61 to the Arkansas line. Ice on highway 60 west from Dexter through Poplar Bluff to Van Buren made driving hazardous.

Schools in Gideon and Portageville did not open today.

Yesterday was the 13th consecutive day that temperatures failed to rise above freezing. The high for the 24-hour period preceding 7 a.m. today was 31. The low was 21.

Highway 67 from Greenville south through Poplar Bluff to Little Rock was glazed with ice and dangerous for motorists.

Highway 61 from Cape Girardeau north to Perryville was reported to be slick. This highway south from Bowling Green through St. Louis to St. Mary was reported to be wet but not icy.

The weather forecast called for drizzle changing to snow and accumulating an inch or two before ending by early Saturday. The temperatures will be colder tonight with the low 15 to 25. Saturday's forecast calls for partly cloudy to cloudy skies with the high in the 20s to around 30.

Snow fell in northern and southwestern Missouri.

Romney Offers To Debate Nixon

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)— Michigan Gov. George Romney, acknowledging that the polls show him "well behind" in the New Hampshire primary campaign, challenged former Vice President Richard M. Nixon today to come to the state and debate him.

"Anything less would be a failure on our part, as candidates, to meet our responsibilities to you as voters in this crucial first primary of the most crucial election year in modern American history," he said.

Kicking off his campaign, Romney said he and Nixon apparently will be the only major Republican presidential contenders entered in the March 12 New Hampshire race.

"The New Hampshire primary may answer the question of who the new president will be or whether there will be a new one," Romney said.

Surveyor 7 Carries out Soil Testing Operation

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists maneuvered Surveyor 7's soil testing device into operation today and declared "this will increase our knowledge of the moon vastly."

The success marked a "full mission" for the space craft that softlanded on the moon last Tuesday. Soil testing was a major purpose.

Using a digger scoop that makes trenches in lunar soil, scientists gave the shoebox-sized, soil-testing device a final shove today that placed it on the lunar soil, where it must be to make chemical analysis by radiation.

A spokesman at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the data was being transmitted back to earth but added, "It'll be a week and a half before it can be analyzed."

"This was one of our most important experiments on the spacecraft— it makes it a full mission," the spokesman added.

Scientists thought Thursday night they had successfully lowered the soil tester to the surface. But they discovered they had only lowered it part way. It must be flush with the surface to function.

Bowles Leaves Sihanouk U.S. Promise to Avoid Aggression

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles has promised Cambodia the United States "will do everything possible to avoid acts of aggression against Cambodia," according to a joint communique issued today at the end of Bowles' five-day mission to Phnom Penh.

At the same time, the Soviet Union moved quickly to oppose any agreement Bowles and Prince Norodom Sihanouk might have reached to restrict the use of Cambodian territory by the Vietnamese Communists.

Bowles, sent to Phnom Penh by President Johnson, told newsmen as he left for New Delhi that he was "very satisfied with the successful talks."

It was believed in Phnom Penh that Sihanouk agreed for the three-nation International Control Commission to keep a closer watch on the border between Cambodia and South Vietnam. But Cambodian sources reported that Soviet Ambassador Sergei Koudriavtsev and M. Mylicki, the head of the Polish delegation to the ICC, had called on Sihanouk to express their opposition to a U.S. offer of two helicopters to assist the commission in border watching.

The two Communist representatives said their governments opposed the offer because the United States did not sign the 1954 Geneva agreements which got the French out of Indochina and set up the control commission.

Sihanouk had said earlier that he was favorable to the American offer but acceptance was up to the commission's three members— India, Canada and Poland — and the two cochairmen of the Geneva conference— Britain and the Soviet Union.

The Soviet ambassador also informed Sihanouk that his government agreed to new military aid for Cambodia, including 50 trucks.

All reports from Phnom Penh told of pleasant and cordial relations between Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, and Bowles during the four-day visit. But at the same time Sihanouk's foreign minister, Prince Norodom Phourissara, was attacking U.S. actions in Vietnam and in effect rejecting American charges that North Vietnamese troops use Cambodia as a highway to South Vietnam and a refuge when pressed too hard by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

Cambodian officials reported that Bowles assured the prince that the United States intends to respect the neutrality and territorial integrity of Cambodia and has no intention of launching any attacks against the country.

The U.S. Army's chief of staff, Gen., Harold K. Johnson, said in a speech in Chicago Thursday that he opposes sending U.S. troops or planes after Communist forces that flee into Cambodia. But he said he approves of pursuit by fire— shooting at the retreating enemy even if they are over the border.

Workshop for Nursing Home Administrators

Nursing home administrators in the Sikeston area will hear personnel management teachniques discussed at a one-day workshop Tuesday at Two Tonys Restaurant, 205 W. Malone St.

It will be the first in a series of workshops sponsored by the Missouri Association of Licensed Nursing Homes in cooperation with private and governmental agencies in the health care field.

The workshops are designed to help administrators of licensed nursing homes give quality care for Missouri's aged and infirm.

The first session will emphasize personnel management techniques. Topics to be discussed include the relationship of the nursing home administrator to the employe, evaluation of specific duties of employes, prohibiting interview techniques and employe moral.

Harold M. Kane, Jefferson City, association education director, said speakers will discuss application of wage laws to nursing homes and assumption of jurisdiction by the national labor relations Board over labor cases of privately owned hospitals and nursing homes.

Workshops will be held at Sikeston, St. Louis, Macon, St. Joseph, Kansas City and Springfield.

Joining Kane will be speakers from the Missouri division of health, department of education and lawyers.

Workshops are supported by funds of the Missouri Association of Licensed Nursing Homes and the federal government.

Jackson Farmer Named Corn Champ

JACKSON -- Robert Nitsch, route three, Jackson, was Missouri's corn growing champion last year. He averaged 207.87 bushels an acre on a 20-acre field -- the highest yield made by any of the entries in the growing contests sponsored by the Missouri Farmers Association.

Terry Harms, Higginsville, was second with 188.98 bushels. Paul Quade, Gordonville, was third with 187.33 bushels and in fourth place was Wayne Brown of Gilliam with 183.42 bushels.

"The rains fell about right," Nitsch explained. "We never did have any dry weather." He planted his corn April 25 in 38-inch rows. He had 24,800 stalks to the acre and the variety was 3232. He used a soil insecticide and chemicals to control weeds. The field was cultivated once.

For fertility treatment Nitsch plowed under 400 pounts of 0-15-40 put 200 pounds of 6-24-24 in the row for starter, and side dressed with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

He had 110 acres in corn. All received the same treatment as his contest field.

"I think some of it was better than my contest field," he explained.

The field was located in the Williams creek bottom. The soil is loose and drains well. "You don't notice the fertilizer benefits until you start picking. The ears weighed about three-quarters of a pound. The big difference from 1966 is that ears were filled out to the very end in 1967," Nitsch explained.

Harms attends Higginsville high school and his corn field was Future Farmers of America project. "We about drowned out. It surprised me -- every stalk had an ear on it," Harms said.

The eight-acre contest field was in the Davis creek bottom and planted May 15. The variety was 2222 and he had 21,360 stalks to the acre. It was planted in 38-inch rows. He plowed down 450 pounds of 22-11-11 per acre and put 150 pounds of 8-22-11 with trace elements in the row. Later he side dressed with 130 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

Harms used a soil insecticide in the row at time of planting. He applied a chemical to control weeds and grass before the corn came up.

Quade, the third place winner, planted his corn May 13. With the exception of one year the field has been in contineous corn for 11 years.

"We had a hard wind in August but it stood good and held its ears," Quade said.

The 24-acre field was in a creek bottom.

"The rains came about right and there were no barren stalks," he explained.

Quade had 19,533 stalks to the acre and it was planted in 38 inch rows. He plowed under 300 pounds of 0-23-30 per acre and put 175 pounds of 5-22-24 per acre in the row for a starter fertilizer. Later he side dressed with 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre. He used a chemicals to control weeds and as a soil insecticide. The variety was 3232.

Brown planted his corn May 3, and the variety was 3232. He had 19,966 stalks to the acre and the rows were 34 inches apart. He plowed down 200 pounds of 0-30-30 and put 115 pounds of 8-22-11 with trace elements per acre in the row as a starter fertilizer. He side dressed with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre. He used a soil insecticide and a chemical to control weeds and grass.

Among the other high yields were: Don Rodgers, Jackson, 183.28 bushels per acre; Calvin Harms, Higginsville, 178.06 bushels; Marvin Auffenberg, Bufordville, 177.69 bushels; Nitsch Brothers, Jackson, 175.42 bushels; Jerry Pfeffer, Gordonville, 174.4 bushels; Lawrence McBryde, Jr., Jackson, 173.36 bushels; S. H. Miller, Marshall, 172.54 bushels; Henry L. Gerdes New Haven, 171.17 bushels; Milde Farms, Jackson, 171.17 bushels; and Gordon Shackelford, Warrensburg, 170.9.

MISSOURI'S CORN GROWING CHAMPION was Robert Nitsch, route three, Jackson. He averaged 207.87 bushels an acre on a field he had entered in a Cape Girardeau county corn growing contest sponsored by the Missouri Farmers association.

AMERICAN EDUCATION AND UNESCO PLANS

Many Americans are not ready to admit that the United Nations has done much to weaken the national loyalty which has been a source of great U. S. strength. Nevertheless, this is being accomplished slowly, and one of the causes is the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) which has some plans and ideas of its own regarding American education.

UNESCO distributes much information about the desirability of One World Government, the acceptance of which necessarily diminishes the importance of American nationalism. The words "patriot" and "patriotism" must confine themselves to the higher calling of One Worldism.

It is submitted that UNESCO's purpose is to establish a world government. This does not impugn the motives of those people who honestly believe that a world super state is the only way to world peace. However, we do not see the practicability of this idea as long as the communists, who believe in total subjugation of the individual, persist in their announced goal of ruling the world.

It is further submitted that the communists have always used the United Nations for a purpose quite different from the hopes held out for it by free people, and that a close study of UNESCO will reveal that this agency has been used to promote plans that would not serve the hopes of free people. The communists do not intend to be a part of a world government; they intend to control it. A careful study of UNESCO will reveal that a large portion of its educational effort has been in the direction of breaking down nationalism in order to promote world government.

For instance, the UNESCO booklet, "Toward World Understanding," says:

"One of the chief aims of education is to develop those qualities of citizenship which provide the foundation upon which international government must be based. . . The kindergarten or infant school has a significant part to play in the child's education. It can correct many of the errors of home training and prepare the child for membership in the world society. It's most frequently in the family that children are infected with nationalism (patriotism), hearing what is national extolled and what is foreign disparaged."

Still quoting from the UNESCO textbook:

"The school should, therefore, use the means described earlier to combat these family attitudes. As long as the child breathes the poisoned air of nationalism, (emphasis ours) education in world-mindedness can produce only rather precarious results." This is typical of UNESCO thinking.

There are UNESCO committees set up in almost every community in America. The literature of UNESCO is distributed in our public schools under the sponsorship of the National Education Association and the Parent Teachers Association. The machinery for distributing the UNESCO philosophy of one-world government is powerful, widely accepted and paid for mostly by American taxpayers. The motives of organizations who support UNESCO are not under attack: most of the people who support UNESCO are loyal citizens who haven't thought through the idea of One Worldism.

UNESCO has a two point program:

(1) Direct propaganda through a newly published UNESCO rewrite of world history, and (2) A treaty plan called a "Convention Against Discrimination in Education" which seeks international control of public and private schools.

The first of a succession of six UNESCO volumes called "A Scientific and Cultural History of the Development of Mankind" has already been published. This work is made available through libraries to American teachers and students.

UNESCO revealed its long-range plans for international control of education on December 13, 1960 when its 11th Session released the "Convention Against Discrimination in Education" to be submitted to all UN members for ratification as a treaty, binding the ratifying nations to reorganize and direct their educational institutions in compliance with the "Convention." This UNESCO convention may be brought up anytime for ratification and vote by the U. S. Senate. Every means possible will undoubtedly be tried by some to obtain Senate approval of the "Convention."

On July 16, 1961, Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles accurately summed up the effect of the UNESCO "Convention" in these words:

"Even the dangers of Federal Aid to Education fade to a shadow in the light of this measure. This resolution would substantially eliminate all local control of public education at state or local level. It would place the direction and regulation of all American education under Federal control. This resolution would override this Federal Control and make it subsidiary to UNESCO as a world court and final international arbiter of education. The resolution would subject private education to rigid restriction and conformity with respect to plan, staff, curriculum and policy. In other words, it would do away with freedom in education."

A former American Legion Commander, J. Addington Wagner, declared:

"The American Legion's objections to UNESCO can be placed in three major categories. Each of them is supported by voluminous evidence, all of which is taken from the public record. First, the American Legion believes that, from the days of its organization, UNESCO has been a haven for many individuals whose loyalty to the United States is severely compromised, if not submerged, by a demonstrated sympathy for communist objectives.

"Our second principal objection to UNESCO is that through its own publications, UNESCO appears to us to advocate world government.

"The third of our major objections to UNESCO is that it is, in our opinion, endeavoring to influence the educational system of the U. S. through the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO."

UNESCO has always been a haven for procommunists from both sides of the iron curtain. In 1951 Mrs. A. Jegalova was named Chief of the Secondary Educational Division of UNESCO. She is a former chief of the Inspection Division of the Soviet Ministry of Education.

There's no mistaking the purposes of UNESCO when one looks at the roster of the top brass of the past and present. As many as 20 Russians have been among the executive members of the organization in recent years. These are the people who have been formulating and controlling the policies of UNESCO which seeks to influence American children.

Due to these and other UNESCO indiscretions a number of schools have forbidden the use of UNESCO materials.

We cannot rely on American representatives in UNESCO to counteract the influence of such Soviet agents. We should remember the conclusion of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee:

"By far the worst danger spot from the standpoint of disloyalty and subversive activity among Americans employed by international organizations is UNESCO."

NEW YORK (AP) — Since this is an election year, now is a good time to run through a little drill in double talk.

Double talk, of course, is the art of saying one thing while meaning something else. It is a saving grace in any social situation, and valuable in all season, but in an election year it is positively indispensable.

For the beginning student, here is a small primer of political double talk phrases that will become only too familiar during the months of campaigning that lie ahead. Each phrase is followed by its literal translation.

"My gifted opponent"— The bum I'm running against.

"Naturally, every man is entitled to his own honest opinion." — So why should I listen to yours?

"I find the tremendous response to the announcement of my candidacy profoundly gratifying."— Mother phoned and said she'd vote for me, no matter whether anybody else did.

"Jim, to win public support you have to go out and meet the people, shake hands, ring doorbells."— We don't have enough dough in the campaign kitty to buy you television time.

"And now, friends, I'd like to have you meet the brave little woman who has stood faithfully by my side through 30 years of life's storm and sunshine." — Yes my wife sure picked a steady meal ticket when she married me.

"Everyone knows I have taken an unqualified position about the situation in Vietnam."— I think we should either stay there or get our, one of the other.

"I take my stand with George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson."— I also hope the leader of the 3rd Ward will back me up.

"My life is an open book."— Did you ever see so many empty pages?

"And if victory should perch upon our banner, you have my assurance that I will enter upon the duties of this high office with no prior pledges, promises, or commitments of any kind to anyone."— Let's win it first, boys. We can always cut up the loot later.

"The federal highway program has no firmer friend than I."— If it would get me any more votes, I'd agree to pave the countryside.

"I wouldn't accuse my esteemed opponent of prevaricating."— He's a bald-faced liar.

"If we believed in the validity of every so-called public poll, of course, there would be no need to hold the election."— Brother, if I had had the sense to take a private poll of my own, I'd never have entered this race.

"May the best man win,"— But if he does, where will that leave me?

SETTLING STRIKES IN WASHINGTON~D.C.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol today predicted that over 600,000 automobiles will be stolen in the country this year unless motorists take some simple precautions.

Lieutenant C. C. Maddox, head of the Patrol's Auto Theft Bureau, said, "Statistics show that in many auto theft cases the owner had left his keys in the ignition or had left the doors unlocked. I urge every motorist, therefore, to make a New Year's resolution to always remove his key and lock the doors of his car whenever he parks. By following these simple precautions he will greatly reduce the chances of his automobile being stolen in 1968."

SOS FOR THE AMERICAN CITY

Just how sick is the American city?

Is it on its deathbed, as so many glum chums profess to believe? Or can it be saved by major surgery and the healing balm of lots of cool, green money?

One fact in its chance of recovery -- the attitude of city dwellers themselves -- is receiving careful attention by such diverse well-wishers as the learned associate professor of church and society at Harvard Divinity School, Dr. Rev. Harvey G. Cox, and the practical life insurance industry.

The danger that despairing city dwellers may toss in the towel and give up the fight has prompted Cox to turn to the classics, and the insurance industry to its pocketbook.

Cox has gone back to Prometheus and Sisyphus -- neither now active in civic affairs or politics, but both VIPs in Greek mythology.

(Prometheus, on the off-chance some of us may have forgotten, was a cocky character who stole fire from heaven, was sentenced by Zeus to a fate too gruesome to detail here but beat the rap. Sisyphys was a crafty and avaricious king of Corinth who went to Hades and found it strictly as advertised.)

Cox makes the point that city dwellers actually are schizophrenic in that they feel Promethian (all-powerful) in respect to conquering nature, but Sisyphysian (hopeless and frustrated) in overcoming social problems.

(The fact that Sisyphys sounds a lot like sissypuss is, of course, a coincidence.)

Both Promethian and Sisyphusian impulses are wrong, says Cox. Man, he believes, cannot overcome his despair over urban problems until he conceives a new vision of the city's future.

And here is where the life insurance industry comes in. It has given the morale of city dwellers a boost by announcing it will make available $1 billion in loans to promote urban housing programs and, later on, to develop new industry and thus new jobs for slum dwellers.

With the co-operation of Prometheus, the life insurance people, all the unannounced political candidates who seem to have solutions for everything. Mayor Lindsay of New York City (who says grappling with urban problems is a fun game) and thers, perhaps the American city can be saved.

So come on down to where the action is, Prommy, old boy, and give us a shot of the old power.

As for you, Sisyphus -- kindly stay where you are. You'd just find more of the same up here.

A man walked into a credit manager's office to pay the final installment on a baby carriage. The credit manager said, "Thank you, and how's the baby today?"

"Oh, I'm fine, thanks," replied the man.

During a recent golf tournament, a friend of mine teed off at the first hole. He swung and missed. The crowd magnified the golfer's embarrassment as he promptly swung again and missed. Outraged, he threw his club as far as he could, and as luck -- or lack of it -- might have it, he missed several trees and a few people. He started to walk away, when a heckler from the crowd announced, "Why are you leaving now? . . . You've got a no-hitter going!"

A BURGLAR'S ETHICS

Head of state, Nasser of Egypt has provided an instructive lesson on the morals of government. According to news releases, he has informed the world that Egypt would repay no loans to those who would not make new loans to Egypt. His threat was directed primarily toward the U. S. In case you are tempted to try Nasser's strategy on your local department store, it might pay to consider a word of advice--don't! When it comes to getting away with "head, I win -- tails, you lose" chicanery, private citizens are not in the same league with governments whose officials can write the rules to fit the game. Nasser's action illustrates why a government of limited powers is best.

ICEMAN COMETH IN A CENTURY OR TWO

Here's something for those who like to do their worrying well in advance:

Mean summer temperatures in Antarctica have apparently risen nearly four degrees since 1912, says Dr. John H. Merder of Ohio State University's Institute of Polar Studies.

Another nine degrees and we're in trouble. For at that point, he cautions, the unstable ice of the great shelves in the western part of the continent would begin to melt, raising sea levels and threatening low-lying areas of the world.

If the increasing pollution of the atmosphere by carbon dioxide has the "greenhouse" or warming effect many scientists believe it has, the trouble could start "perhaps within a century or two."

H.L. Hunt Says

"BRIDGE-BUILDING" TO OUR ENEMIES

There is no excuse for using the services of the U. S. Government and its tax dollars to promote trade with Soviet Russia when, according to figures released by Congressman Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, Russia supplies more than 80 per cent of the war materials going to North Vietnam.

This incredible policy, called "bridge-building" by the Administration, claims that by dealing with Russia we will somehow soften the hearts of their leaders and make them more kindly disposed toward us. Such an agrument sounds as though it might have been made by a naive and innocent child rather than by persons highly placed in our State Department.

In time of war there can be no meaningful "bridges" to the enemy until he stops shooting. This simple and obvious fact is recognized whenever a smaller scale conflict breaks out such as the recent Arab-Israeli war. Then, the first objective of the peacemakers is to bring about a trace. But when we are fighting communists in Vietnam, we are supposed to trade with the enemy even while he is actually shooting at us, without placing conditions of any kind on the aid we are giving.

Every month Russian and Polish ships deliver 178,500 tons of cargo to North Vietnam, according to Congressman Laird's figures. All of our trade with Russia makes it much easier for the Kremlin to send this aid to Ho Chi Minh.

The bridges we are building to Moscow by this fantastic policy are highroads of death for our men in the jungles of Southeast Asia. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

UNION CHIEFS WARN:
No Wage Freeze Unless All Profits, Dividends, Prices, Professional Fees, Incomes Are Frozen, Too

Washington, D. C.: -- Trouble is that neither Lyndon Johnson nor those in the White House advice-giving circle have had the time to read the small print in the records of labor chiefs who have been cheering him as their political leader.

That record says candidly that the big unions this year will be as unrestrained in their wage demands as they are in their cheers.

And that means there will be more strikes in '68 than there were in '67 when there were more strikes than in any year since 1953 -- no matter what the President asks for in his State of the Union message and the economic messages which follow.

Furthermore, a series of conversations between this correspondent and labor's major policy makers discloses that there will be no wage freeze or restraint unless also frozen are profits, dividends, rents, commissions, lawyers and doctors fees, "corporate executive compensation" including "salaries, bonuses and stock options," white collar salaries in the middle management echelon, and all returns on stock turnover and real estate transactions.

Furthermore, the AFL - CIO chiefs want a full partnership in the making of federal monetary and business policies. They want seats on the Federal Reserve Board and the creation of agencies to control corporate spending abroad as well as regulation of corporate business price-setting policies.

These labor leaders are tough negotiators. They know the President can't and won't agree to such twin cold - storage policies. So they are all set for a series of jousts with heavy industry which will more than match the '67 dueling.

Their rallying solgan in '68 will be higher escalator clauses to bring wages up with the cost of living. This will reverberate across the nation month after month no matter what the President asks for.

This is a political year. The President is a political man. And the AFL-CIO Executive Council which opens its midwinter session in Bal Harbour, Fla., on Feb. 19, will be a political demonstration.

All but two of the 29-man council lead unions. Most of them want to deliver higher wages to their people in '68 and '69.

There are all sorts of intricacies noticeable only to the insiders. For example, the Machinists' compact with the railroads expires Jan. 1, 1969. If it is true that the past is prologue, then the million-member union must set a record in '68 for what it will demand next New Year's Eve.

This record is being set right now by Walter Reuther and Roy Siemiller, the leaders of the auto and machinists unions, who already in contact over their joint assault on the aerospace industry. And they are not likely to take a freeze.

If Reuther had wanted to play it cold, he would have eased up on the auto industry. He knows that the President was not happy over his $1-per-hour settlement with the Big Three car makers.

A powerful member of the AFL-CIO council is I. W. Abel, leader of the United Steelworkers, who will not be so quiet a man for the rest of this year. Contracts covering at least 600,000 of his members are up beginning Jan. 31.

On that day 35,000 employes of the can industry may strike or, at best, delay the walkout for two weeks. Then it is aluminum and, finally, basic steel.

Take it for granted that "Abe" Abel has not said he is against strikes or that they are outmoded. Take it for granted that steel will strike in can, aluminum or basic production if the big union doesn't get a big cash package.

"Why should we," Abel told this inquirer the other day, "be asked to restrain ourselves on wages or bargaining when there is no effective restraint on prices and profits? We expect the same and more than the unions won in other major industries -- building trades, auto-rubber, etc."

There are other Executive Council members who lead big unions -- such as "the fighting Irishman" Joe Beirne, head of the Communication Workers of America. Some 500,000 employes in that field are up for new contracts. He respects the President, he said, but he will deliver a big wage increase to his people.

So if the President pressures them, they'll pressure him right back. The same forces which cheered him last month at the watering place will cool it next month in the same hotel.

What's a President to do. There have been discussions between Mr. Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers and the AFL-CIO Research Dept., headed by the scholarly Nat Goldfinger.

But economists are not truly realists. The economic advisers will cling to their wage-price guidelines in a futile gesture of restraint.

But basically, despite Mr. Goldfinger's erudition, it does not matter what he says. The White House and Secretary of Labor William Wirtz don't talk to the national AFL-CIO headquarters about all this.

True, the President confers with "Mr. Labor," George Meany, but it will be the Abels, the Beirnes, the Siemillers who will raise economic cain.

They're independent. They're autonomous. They're militant.

And so are the businessmen whom Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge calls in for those "we have got to count on you boys" sessions.

They can be charmed, as they were when Betty Furness sat in on one bull session. But there is no law which can force them or the labor leaders to refrain from the usual bargaining with the usual results.

And there is no workable formula to head off those "crippling work stoppages" as the President put it.

Everybody in and around the White House -- retiring Budget Director Charles Schultze (who had great influence with the President); new Budget Director Charles Zwick; trouble-shooter Joe Califano; Arthur Okun, the newest economic wizard -- have been seeking the magic formula, but no strike or wage gadgety has been developed in the past two years.

So '68 will be the most unfrozen year of all.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Fred Black bugging had sensational angles; Kennedy-Johnson feud began with Baker probe; LBJ doesn't intend to step aside for Bobby Kennedy.

WASHINGTON -- By all odds the most sensational eavesdropping case in the history of Washington was that conducted by the FBI two blocks from the White House in the Sheraton Carlton Hotel suite of lobbyist Fred Black.

There have been other interesting wiretapping cases, such as that conducted by the late Sen. Owen Brewster, R-Maine, on behalf of Pan American airways in the hotel suite of Howard Hughes, then owner of Trans World Airways. And there has been recent bugging by rival Natural Gas Pipeline companies.

But what makes the Fred Black bugging sensational is, first, the fact that it was adjacent to the VIP suite used by the state department to entertain distinguished foreign visitors, and the FBI's electronic devices were so strong that they couldn't help listening in on these visitors also.

Second, and more important, there was some indication that the attorney general who ordered the bugging, namely, Robert F. Kennedy, was interested in the activities of the then vice president of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Officially, the FBI was supposed to be investigating possible links between Black and Las Vegas gamblers. Certainly the FBI was not probing Black's income taxes. This was Internal Revenue's job and it finally convicted him -- a conviction thrown out of court when Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach and Deputy Attorney General Ramsey Clark forced the FBI to admit it had been listening in on Black and others on a wholesale scale for some years.

FBI RETALIATES

J. Edgar Hoover succeeded in getting Katzenbach eased out of the justice department in retaliation, and is now in the process of trying to put the skids under Ramsey Clark.

Regarding the black electronic bug, however, the FBI is smart. It doesn't like to get mixed up in spying on highly placed politicians, and its agents were most restrained when they recorded, for instance, that a senate "official" -- not a senator -- "engaged in activity with female" in the Black suite.

It also picked up some conversations by President Kennedy himself.

The name of the late Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma was also mentioned, together with that of Vice President Johnson and other southwestern friends of LBJ's. Johnson was involved in nothing incriminating, but his political opinions were asked as to who could win and who could not win in certain political races.

The FBI would have dropped the investigation like a hot potato when such big names were mentioned. For politics is nothing the FBI has any business listening in on.

Parenthetically, this might give the present President of the United States a lesson in the dangers of wiretapping at a time when he is about to give congress the green light on a new wiretapping law -- despite the opposition of his attorney general.

BOBBY K. VS. LBJ

Two facts stand out regarding the FBI wiretapping of Black's apartment as all-important:

1 -- The FBI has confided to President Johnson that Bobby Kennedy personally ordered the bugging.

2-- Attorney General Kennedy ordered the FBI to make a thorough probe of Bobby Baker, even assigned some of his own personal justice department investigators to go after Baker, as if he didn't trust the FBI. Finally, he kept a secret copy of the Baker findings in his own office safe.

Since Baker as senate secretary had long worked for Johnson as senate majority leader, such a probe must have been aimed at the then vice president. As it turned out, Baker's wheeling and dealing started after Johnson left the senate, and the late Sen. Kerr, not Johnson, was involved as Baker's mentor and benefactor.

Despite this, stories were leaked to the press -- though never proved -- that LBJ was involved.

BEGINNING OF FEUD

All this was the beginning of the Bobby Kennedy - Johnson feud. It has smoldered deep, will never be smothered.

On Johnson's biggest day -- his inaugural on Jan. 20, 1965, following his landslide triumph over Barry Goldwater - Kennedy made a show of visiting his brother's grave in Arlington. He arrived at the graveside in the morning, but because no photographers were around he came back again in the afternoon.

There could be no mistaking the message of the picture, which marred LBJ's inauguration. It was Kennedy's way of reminding the world who should have been President.

Subsequently, Kennedy has let it be known that he is ready to step into his brother's place if only Johnson will step aside. The hint was put most bluntly by Kennedy - intimate Ted Sorensen, who pointed out that three other vice presidents who had ascended to the presidency in this century had not run for a second term.

"If Mr. Johnson of his own accord chooses to retire," said Sorensen, "no one can call that a retreat from the historical pattern when it would in reality be fidelity to it."

But President Johnson has no intention of abdicating to clear the way for Bobby Kennedy. If he should decide to retire from the White House. He would use his influence at the Democratic convention to block Kennedy's nomination, in favor of Hubert Humphrey.

Furthermore Johnson is a man who believes in gratitude and he remembers how in Bobby Kennedy's only bid for public office he was elected to the senate from New York in 1964 by a 719,693 margin after he, LBJ, campaigned up and down the state for him. Johnson's majority was 2,669,597.

TULIPS OFFER BEAUTY AND MYSTERY

One of the flower kingdom's most beautiful blossoms is the tulip, and it is one of the few flowering plants whose origin remains a mystery. (Not Holland, believe it or not!) However, it is believed to be a native of Persia.

The word "Dulband" in Persian is the cloth from which the Fez is made. The English translation of this word is "Turban." The tulip closely resembles an inverted Fez or Turban.

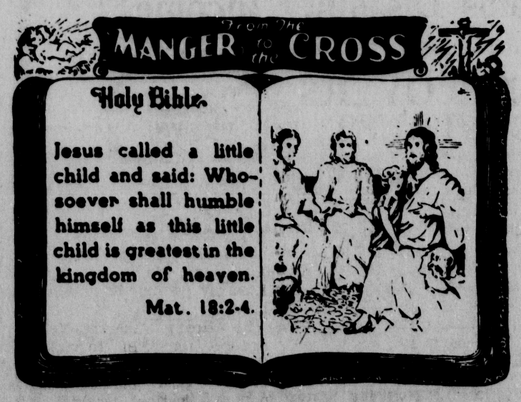

There is no mystery about the flowers we offer . . . all are the finest and freshest that are available. Whenever you need flowers we are just as close as your telephone.

Raiders Try to Make Hay While Sun Shines

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Now that John Rauch has the weatherman on his side, he's become a clockwatcher.

The Oakland coach is concerned that his Raiders might not have enough time to properly prepare for Sunday's Super Bowl date with the Green Bay Packers.

The Raiders worked for 90 minutes in bright sunshine Thursday, a distinct change from the driving rainstorm they practice in the day before.

"This is more like the kind of weather I expected," said Rauch, enjoying the shirtsleeve climate.

"Our problem now is having enough time to get all our work completed. Preparing for a team like the Packers isn't the easiest thing in the world to do," Rauch continued. "The rain didn't help."

Oakland ran through a spirited, tough practice Wednesday but it was necessarily limited by the storm. "We got the most out of it we could in view of the conditions," said Rauch.

Thursday's sunshine was a welcome change and the Raiders ran through their final full drill in pads.

"We'll taper off from now on," said Rauch.

Meanwhile, at Fort Lauderdale, the Packers drilled for an hour in their best workout yet.

"The sluggishness was gone," said Coach Vince Lombardi. "It was a real fine workout. We'll go for an hour again Friday and then maybe 10 or 15 minutes on Saturday."

Lombardi activated Dick Capp, a rookie linebacker and tight end, for Sunday's game. Capp, who played in two of Green Bay's 14 regular season games, thus qualifies for a cut of the Super Bowl payoff. He'll get just over $2,000 if the Packers win and a little more than $1,000 if they lose.

A full winning share, of course, is worth $15,000 per man with losers collecting $7,500 each. At those prices, neither coach sees any problem in getting his team up for the game.

"I'm no psychiatrist," laughed Rauch. "You can't help being impressed with Green Bay. You know you're playing the best. I've never believed in being awed by a team. I've always felt that you have a chance to win any game you play.

"We're loose and we'll go into the game that way," the Oakland coach concluded.

The Raiders might be expected to get up for the game but what about the Packers, who've won so often and for so long?

Lombardi just smiled.

"If a man makes a million dollars," the Packer boss said, "he wants to make two million. We'll be up."

Komives Is Out at Home

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — As far as Howard Komives is concerned, there's no such thing as the home-court advantage. He would just as soon hit the road, Jack.

A 6-1 guard, now in his fourth season with the New York Knicks, Komives has been the object of scorn and criticism at Madison Square Garden. The boos and obscenities are being hurled at him with an increasingly louder roar now that Bill Bradley has joined the team. The crowd cheers Bradley's every move but becomes distraught when the coach substitutes with Komives.

In a road game against the Lakers recently, Howard went in at the start of the second period. Within five minutes he had forced Jerry West to lose the ball, grabbed three rebounds, hit three straight jump shots from far out and made two free throws. He finished the quarter with 16 points and totaled 22 for the game. He also had a technical foul called on him. The Los Angeles fans did not boo.

Komives had been a high-scoring gunner at Bowling Green and continued to pile up points when he joined the NBA. A handsome kid with a crew cut, he was popular with the fans. They called him by his nickname, Butch.

Today, they call him all kinds of names.

What happened was that the Knicks decided Komives should become a playmaker. He was told to shoot less and pass more. He began throwing the ball away and blowing simple plays. As one New York writer put it: "It wasn't his groove, man."

Although Howard denies it, the treatment he receives from the hometown fans obviously affects his play at the Garden. After the first few games this season, Komives made it known he wanted to be traded if coach Dick McGuire didn't play him regularly. This angered the fans even more.

"The coach told me he just couldn't play me in the Garden," Howard says. "Deep down I really don't want to be traded but the situation is now between me and the management."

There are a few players in the NBA—like the Lakers' Darrel Imhoff and Happy Hairston of the Royals—who occasionally draw catcalls from the home folks.

"But nobody gets the abuse that Howard gets," said McGuire, who has experienced the same treatment.

When Komives was on the bench, the New York fans took their wrath out on McGuire—until he was fired recently.

Draper, Maravich Come Through Under Pressure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Draper and Pete Maravich both faced pressure foul situations. Both came through.

Drake's Draper was at the foul line for two free throws with one second left and the Crusaders tied 74-74 with Wichita State Thursday night.

He missed the first one but made the second, and Drake won its 11th game in 13 starts.

It was the other side of the coin for Louisiana State's Maravich, who played most of the second half against Tulane facing disqualification because he had committed four fouls.

But this didn't seem to greatly impair the helter-skelter style of the nation's leading major-college scorer. He poured in 52 points as LSU beat Tulane 100-91 at New Orleans to boost its record to 9-3. Maravich has scored 540 points in those 12 games for a 45.8 average.

Draper got the two chances to score his 14th point of the night at Des Moines, Iowa, when Drake's Al Williams stole the ball with 38 seconds remaining. Willie McCarter led Drake scorers with 18 points. Warren Armstrong got 22 for Wichita, whose leading scorer, Ron Washington, fouled out after scoring just nine points.

The St. Louis at Dayton game also was decided by a foul shot. This one was made by Bob Hooper with 20 seconds left for a 57-56 Dayton victory. Don May, who tied the game at 56-56 with 3:14 left, scored 21 points and tied his own Dayton record of 28 rebounds. Rich Niemann paced St. Louis with 18 points.

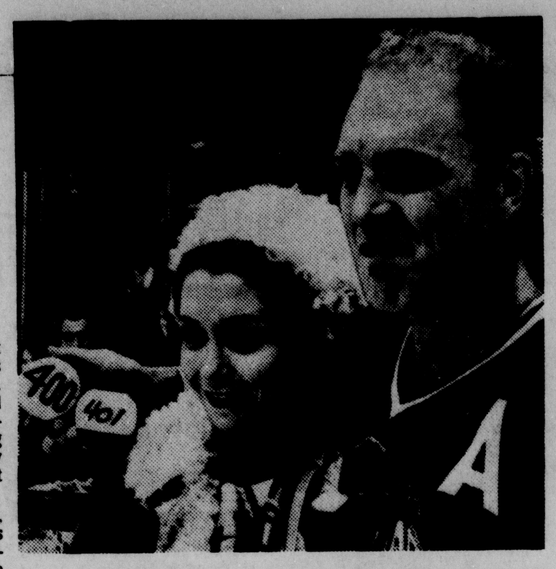

None of The Associated Press Top Ten played Thursday night. And only top-ranked UCLA is scheduled to see action tonight, against California.

In another Thursday night game, Kentucky Wesleyan, the No. 2 small college team, lost its second straight game, 63-62 to Southern Illinois at Owensboro, Ky.

Again it was foul shots that made the difference. Bobby Jackson sank two with 1:07 to play to give the victory to Southern Illinois, a former small-college power, now listed as a major college.

Home-court victories included Marquette's 71-56 trouncing of Wisconsin, Mississippi State's 80-64 drubbing of Delta State and New Mexico State's 81-71 defeat of Southern Colorado.

Virginia edged Clemson 95-92, Virginia Tech topped Richmond 80-71, Rhode Island walloped Northeastern 81-66 and San Jose State downed St. Mary's, Calif., 76-69.

(NEA Telephoto)

Packers Picked for 2-Touchdown Victory

MIAMI (AP) — With all due respect to young Daryle Lamonica and his 30 touchdown passes that led Oakland to its first American Football League title, Sunday's Super Bowl game belongs to Bart Starr and the proven old pros from Green Bay.

In the last go round of a long, long season, the old hand-picker has to go the Packers to make it two in a row for the National Football League over the AFL champs. Let's take a shot at the score:

Green Bay 31, Oakland 16.

If it's close, 40-year-old George Blanda and his ability to kick the long field goal could mean an upset victory for the two-touchdown underdogs from Oakland. But that would mean that Oakland must be able to clamp down on Starr and his wide receivers— Boyd Dowler and Carroll Dale— while cracking the stubborn Packer defense.

Oakland does not appear to have the man-for-man talent of the Kansas City Chiefs, who fell before the Packers last year 35-10. Still, the Raiders must have a better over-all team because they marched through the AFL with a 13-1 record and beat Kansas City twice, 23-21 and 44-22.

Johnny Rauch's Raiders led the league in total defense and rushing defense and were first in scoring with 468 points. Their offense was third in average yardage, both running and passing.

Green Bay was ninth in the NFL in total offense, second in running and 11th in passing. It was first in total defense, 13th (an amazing figure) in running defense and first in pass defense.

Although the Packers allowed an average of 137 yards per game on running during the regular season, they gave up but 11 touchdowns on the ground and 13 in the air for a total of 24. The Raiders, who scored 58 touchdowns to 39 for Green Bay, yielded 29 in all, 11 on runs and 18 on passes.

But all of this presupposes that the competition is equal, and the figures do not back that up. The Packers did win the first Super Bowl and the NFL did take 13 of 16 pre-season exhibitions.

Starr, a 33-year-old veteran of 12 pro seasons, has been here before. He proved his cool once again on that frigid New Year's Eve in Green Bay when he sneaked home from the one for the winner with 13 seconds to go. Although he was below par in early season and was intercepted nine times in the first two games, he closed strong.

Starr is a past master at probing a defense and finding the holes. If the deep defense shuts off Dowler and Dale, he will go to Donny Anderson and Chuck Mercein.

Lamonica, 25, in his fifth year, actually is completing his first as a No. 1 quarterback. He had a great year with 30 touchdown passes and 220 completions in 425 attempts. He was intercepted 20 times to Starr's 17. It remains to be seen how he will react to the Packer rush and how skillful he will be in working on the strong Green Bay linebackers with his passes.

Cardinals Deal Johnson to Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)— The Cincinnati Reds traded Dick Simpson Thursday to the St. Loui Cardinals for Alex Johnson. Both are outfielders.

Simpson, 24, hit .259 for the Reds last season in 24 games.

Johnson, 25, broke into the major leagues in 1964 with the Philadelphia Phils and hit .304 in 43 games. He batted .294 in 97 games in 1965 and then was traded to the Cardinals. Last year, with the Cards, he hit .223 in 81 games.

YOUR MUNICIPAL POWER SYSTEM LIKE OWNING YOUR HOME!
If you're buying a home, every monthly payment adds to your ownership . . . gives you something more than a stack of rent receipts.
It's about the same story with your municipal power system. As your power system grows in value, you get the benefits—because you are a citizen-owner.
The money you pay for electricity stays at home, and every dollar of it works for you—through better electric service, reasonable rates, increased assets of your local electric utility, and contributions to your local government.
And, just as in owning a home, local consumer ownership of your electric utility means local management and control. Municipal ownership keeps the benefits of a growing asset in the hands of home folks.

Progress in Air Control Search Slow

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)-Lewis E. Green told the House Appropriations Committee Thursday the Air Conservation Commission has been unable to get any agreement with Illinois that will help control air pollution in the St. Louis area.

Green, chairman of the Missouri Air Conservation Commission, said no state can solve the air pollution problem. In areas where industry and urban congestion straddle a state line, as around St. Louis, it may mean federal control finally.

In its first two years, Green said, the Missouri Commission has established a comprehensive code for the Missouri portion of the St. Louis area, including St. Louis city and the counties of St. Louis, St. Charles and Jefferson.

It also has submitted a plan for a Missouri-Kansas compact to help control air pollution in the Greater Kansas City area on the western side of the state. Missouri has enacted the necessary compact legislation and Green said he hoped Kansas would follow suit this year.

He also reported a study of the causes of air pollution in the Kansas City area is expected to be completed within a month.

He said the commission staff has met requests from 36 counties for inspection of suspected sources of air contamination.

Green told the committee the staff hopes to study the problem of contamination from Missouri's growing charcoal industry. But he conceded the kilns, generally located in remote hill country areas, do not constitute a health hazard.

He said pollution sampling devices have been installed in the St. Joseph and Joplin areas. Additional ones are planned for the Iron-Reynolds county area where lead and iron smelters may soon be in operation.

Sampling devices also are planned for the areas surrounding Columbia, Cape Girardeau, Springfield, Jefferson City, Hannibal and Kirksville, Green said.

Seniors Starting Over as Freshmen to Enter St. John's

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Randy Runyon would have been a Harvard senior this year. But he is not.

He's a St. John's freshman.

With little more than a year standing between him and a Harvard degree, he chose to start college all over again at the tiny nonsectarian college in Annapolis, Md.

He's not the first student to make this surprising move.

The same thing happened at the college's new western campus, which snuggles in New Mexico's Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

Linda Carithers, who was a junior on the dean's list at the University of New Mexico, wanted to transfer to the little college which refuses to accept transfer students.

Like Randy, she "flunked" herself into the freshman class.

Why would good students take this great leap backward?

Randy Runyon did it because he says he wanted to go forward.

"Backward and forward depend on where you want to go," he says.

"College should give you an education as well as a degree. I was getting a degree but not an education.

"I was getting professional training, but an education is something different. Education should prepare you to deal with all of life, how to make sense of what's going on around you and how to appreciate what is written and said about it.

"I want to be educated as a human being, not trained as a physicist or an historian. That can come later."

Randy did not leap blindly. He thought about it for more than a year.

"It was a big decision, especially financially. Both my wife, Diana, and I have National Merit scholarships, but mine expires soon. It'll be very hard going.

"But," Randy continued, "it's worth it.

"The experience at St. John's itself is worth it. There is real intellectual excitement here, a joy to learning. The students are here because they want to be. If a student doesn't enjoy it, he leaves.

"At Harvard very few people enjoy their studies. They endure them for the sake of a degree. And Harvard is probably a lot better than most places."

Each year a substantial number of students in good standing at the most distinguished colleges in the country apply for admission to the freshman class at St. John's.

But why does St. John's refuse to accept credits earned at other colleges?

"We have a single, all-required curriculum," explains President Richard D. Weigle.

"We are not an educational cafeteria. We do not have course offerings. We have a program. Our program has a beginning and that is where all students must begin.

"Like the acts of a play, each year of the St. John's program is built on the one before.

"We refuse to compromise the integrity of our program even though we are well aware of the difficulties which face a student who wishes to transfer. He must make a great sacrifice of time and money. Happily, our scholarship funds can help to ease the financial problems."

The college is as stubborn about its size as it is about its program.

Responding to the pressure to expand, St. John's doubled its enrollment without changing its size.

It started a whole new college 2,000 miles away.

In 1964, a small band of faculty and administrators set out from Annapolis, where the college has been located since 1696, and established a colony campus in Santa Fe. In 1965, St. John's was both the third oldest and third newest college in the country.

Some things about St. John's are very new.

Randy's classes are a model of what is called the "student-centered school." Instruction depends more on the activity and initiative of the 10 students who make up Randy's tutorial group than on the pronouncements of the supervising faculty member.

"He can't do our thinking for us," explains Randy. "We learn by thrashing things out, by finding each others mistakes. We're always involved.

"I didn't know how it would be, being in with freshman again, but it's great. Three of us in my group have been transfered from other colleges, but that works to our advantage. We learn by teaching each other. The more I can help someone else to learn, the more I can learn myself."

Other things about St. John's are very old.

It insists on old-fashioned intellectual discipline. There may be "joy" as Randy says, but there is also a lot of hard work. It is the only nondenominational college which requires all students to study ancient Greek.

It also requires them to study Einstein's papers on relativity.

St. John's agrees with Randy that you can go forward by going backward.

The college has turned to the classics in order to provide a thoroughly modern education which will prepare a student for the future as well as the present.

Dean John Kieffer describes the classics as "writings of any period which offer light on the deepest, most commonly encountered problems of human living.

"St. John's strives to prepare its students for the future not by having them memorize results of the latest research or read the books which are the fad this year, but by facing up to the fundamental questions which are always present to men."

Area Leads in Crop Payments

SEDALIA (AP) - Missouri farmers were paid $1,361,000 for crop issues last year, the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. reported Tuesday.

More than 2,500 farmers in 61 counties received the payments.

Two-thirds of the money went to growers in seven Delta counties where excess moisture seriously curtailed the cotton yield. Corn damages ranked second, soybean losses third and wheat fourth.

Payments totaled more than $150,000 each in Dunklin, Mississippi and Stoddard counties, and more than $125,000 in New Madrid County.

SIX EX-SPARTANS COACH

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— The addition of two former Michigan State players on Duffy Daugherty's coaching staff brings to six the number of former Spartans who are coaching on the campus.

Dave Smith, an end in the early 50s, is now assistant backfield coach. George Perles, a State lineman 10 years ago, was added to the staff during the summer.

Other ex-Spartans on Duffy's staff are Henry Bullough, defensive line; Gordon Serr, offensive line; Al Dorow, offensive backfield, and Vince Carillot, defensive backfield.

Daugherty's other two aides are end coach Cal Stoll, out of Minnesota, and Ed Rutherford from Wayne State.

Dawdling May Aid Red Cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have good reason to kick themselves for dawdling. At the same time Ho Chi Minh, the chief dawdler, may have done communism one of its greatest favors.

The dawdling was in failing to try to take over South Vietnam faster. The favor was in making Americans, after their experience in this war, perhaps a little more reluctant to get into another one like it.

It's impossible at this time to draw a sharp distinction, if any, between the Viet Cong and Communist North Vietnam. It can be assumed, until history proves otherwise, that Ho Chi Minh's North Vietnamese were the directing force and chief helper in men and supplies for the Viet Cong.

When the Viet Cong, in the late 1950s, began their guerrilla war to overthrow President Ngo Dinh Diem's government of South Vietnam, they operated on a small scale compared with the forces in the field now.

The shadow of the United States, which had been backing Diem since 1954, lay across the country. But it was hardly a frightening shadow then. It had been helping Diem but there was no certainty this country would get into war for him.

Even by 1960 the United States had only 785 men there, not as a fighting force but as assistants, consultants and trainers. The Viet Cong increased in numbers and success as the years passed.

By the end of 1964 this country had 18,000 men in Vietnam but by then the Saigon government was in danger. Diem had proved no match by himself for the Viet Cong which had the country throttled.

Yet, although in all the years since 1954 the United States had stayed out of the fighting, it was something the Viet Cong and North Vietnam had to think about. What would the Americans do if the Viet Cong were on the verge of taking over the country?

Recent history was not a perfect guide. In the years after World War II the United States had helped Chiang Kai-shek and his nationalists on mainland China but stood aside when the Chinese Communists crushed him finally and took over the mainland.

But the United States had done exactly the opposite when, after withdrawing from South Korea, the North Korean Reds invaded it in 1950. Immediately the United States plunged back in and was involved for years in a war that drove the North Koreans back to where they had started.

So the Viet Cong and North Vietnam would only guess what this country might do if South Vietnam were near total seizure by the Reds. Apparently they assumed the United States would not get involved. It was a wrong guess.

They proceeded slowly instead of using their utmost effort to take over South Vietnam fast before the United States, which had been building up its forces on a tiny scale, could make up its mind about intervening.

Once the Communitst has taken control, this country might very well have decided it was too late to move in.

Although this country now seems determined to see the war to an end, it has been a costly, bloody, drawn-out struggle, thanks to the dogged determination of Ho Chi Minh, and the end is not in sight.

This experience - the cost of the war in lives and money, the division of thinking and unhappiness at home - may make the United States a lot more reluctant to get involved in the future for the sake of a small nation in Asia or elsewhere threatened by Communist seizure.

Institute for Teachers of Geography

COLUMBIA -- The University of Missouri has been selected by the U.S. office of education to help remedy a scarcity of qualified teachers of geography in the state's high schools.

The university and the federal agency are drawing up a contract under which the agency would provide approximately $79,000 to support a summer institute in world geography for 60 prospective teachers of a new tenth - grade world geography course which is being developed for Missouri high schools by the state department of education. The summer institute will be held at Columbia concurrently with the 1968 regular summer session, June 10 - Aug. 2. The office of education has already authorized the university to begin organizing the institute.

The institute will be under the direction of Dr. J. Trenton Kostbade, associate professor of geography. It will be taught by Dr. Kostbade and other members of the geography department staff, assisted by a teacher from Hickman high school as the representative of participants and their viewpoints and interests. It will run five days a week, with four class hours a day, and will grant participants who complete it successfully eight hours of credit.

The teachers who qualify for enrollment will receive stipends of $75 a week for the eight weeks from the grant, plus an allowance for dependents and a waiver of tuition and incidental fees.

Dr. Kostbade said the program is designed to introduce to professional view points potential high school teachers of geography who have only a minimum of formal work in that area. The program will also seek to increase the depth and breadth of knowledge and interpretation which the participants will be able to bring to their own future teaching of the tenth grade course, and to strengthen their abilities to design and construct topical and regional teaching units in geography.

Participants will be required to be high school teachers of history, social studies, or geography likely to teach the new tenth-grade course; possessors of bachelor's degrees; have formal geography training of nine hours or less; and to be teachers in a Missouri high school, although exceptions may be made in this requirement. Preference will be given to applicants who most likely will be teaching the high school course; who have the best academic records; who come from larger high schools; other considerations being equal; and who appear to show the strongest motivation for taking the courses. Dr. Kostbad said also an attempt will be made toward equitable geographical distribution of participants over the state.

The teaching staff will include Dr. Kostbade; Dr. Andreas Grotewold, professor of geography; Dr. Jesse H. Wheeler, Jr., professor of geography and chairman of the department; William A. Noble, instructor in geography; Walter A. Schroeder, instructor in geography; and William F. Higdon, head of social studies at Hickman High School, who will help integrate problems of high school teaching into the program.

Inquiries concerning the institute may be addressed to Dr. J. Trenton Kostbade, associate professor of geography, 111 McAlester Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia.

Dr. Wheeler is a member of the Missouri state committee named by the Director of Curriculum to frame a tenth-grade world geography course for Missouri high schools and put together a manual which will be used for the course. The work of the institute will be structured on that of the tenth-grade course, with the manual closely followed, so the prospective teachers will be given a good idea of the teaching work they will be doing.

Farm Numbers Dwindling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas continues to lead the states in the number of operating farms, with North Carolina second.

An Agriculture Department report said the nation's farms declined from 3,239,000 in 1968 to 3,146,000 in 1967. The agency expects a further decline this year that would pull the total down to 3,059,000 units.

Texas had 200,000 last year and North Carolina 168,000.

The number of farms in 1967 and the anticipated number in 1968, respectively, by states included:

Illinois 133,000 and 131,000; Iowa 150,000 and 147,000; Missouri 152,000 and 150,000; Nebraska 78,000 and 76,000; Kansas 93,000 and 91,000.

Oklahoma 93,000 and 92,000; Colorado 31,500 and 31,000; Arkansas 80,000 and 77,000.

Wears Gun in Brassiere, Calls On Jailed Hubby

MEMPHIS -- Willie Riley's wife came from Forest City, Ark., to visit him in the Shelby county jail, where he's held on a larceny charge and now she's in jail too on a charge of trying to take in a concealed weapon.

Jail Matron Margaret Hogue said that when she searched the would-be visitor yesterday, a .38 pistol turned up in the visitor's brassiere. Matron Hogue said Mrs. Riley claimed she had put the pistol there the night before and forgotten all about it.

Economic Strategy Panel Keeps Silent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten months after President Johnson ordered a Cabinet-level commission to begin work at once on an antirecession strategy for a peace-time economy its members still haven't delivered a formal proposal to the White House.

"There is no report in the sense of a report for the President to act on," a Commerce Department official said in an interview. "We're working on it, though I can't say at any furious pace."

Johnson, saying an end to the Vietnam war could jeopardize the economic boom that began in early 1961, directed Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers and other aides last January "to begin at once a major and coordinated effort" to prepare for the economics of peace.

"When that welcome day of peace arrives, we will need quick adjustments in our economic policies," Johnson said in his annual economic message to Congress last Jan. 26. "We must be prepared for those adjustments, ready to act rapidly."

The White House had no comment on the commission's work—although one spokesman said he hadn't heard anything about it since March.

It was on March 5 that Johnson named these men to share with Ackley the responsibility for setting up the new economic machinery:

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Commerce Alexander B. Trowbridge and Director Charles L. Schultze of the Budget Bureau.

Of these, Ackley is leaving the Council of Economic Advisers to become U.S. ambassador to Italy; McNamara has resigned to become president of the World Bank, and Schultze has resigned to become a senior fellow at Brookings Institution. None has actually left his post yet.

Most commission sources declined to discuss the progress of the antirecession plans.

Two who did talk briefly about them said the principal difficulty in planning redirection of the economy is that no one knows when the war will end, under what conditions it will end or in what state its end will find the economy.

The commission would have to "be prepared to advise (the President) at any point in time that this war should end under any circumstances," said Charles B. Warden Jr., Ackley's special assistant. "What's true on any May 1 won't necessarily be true on June 1."

"Every time we try to do it (the plan) the figures change," said Edward K. Smith, Commerce Department deputy assistant secretary for economic policy.

Warden said while there have been no formal reports, there has been "a passing of memos" among the commission members. And, he added: "We will think through the problems and be prepared to advise the President."

Gives Her Bathroom Real Decorator Touch

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I recently laid a wall-to-wall carpet in the bathroom, and I covered the black wastebasket with a piece of the leftover carpet. It was cut to fit around the can and then pasted on with that all-purpose milky white glue to add a real decorator touch to the room.—BEATRICE

DEAR GIRLS—Just the other day I saw a desk chair seat covered with a piece of pink carpet left from that used on the bedroom floor. It was smashing.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have an upright freezer which has no bins. I bought four small, plastic dishpans and two of these fit perfectly on a shelf. All small packages were put in one and various items were grouped together in the others. Now, when I want something, I just pull out the proper pan and get what I want without having to dig around while holding the freezer door open.—RUTH

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. C. M. asked how she could straighten her husband's ties that are out of shape after being washed. Use another tie the same size as a pattern and trace one half (one end) on a piece of stiff cardboard that has no creases. Do the other half the same way. Cut out the pattern so that it is about 1/16-inch smaller around the edges than the tie. Slip these cardboard pieces into each end of the tie and straighten. Press with the steam iron, using cloth over the tie.—F. W.

DEAR POLLY—I have often washed men's ties the following way: Leave the tie folded as it hangs on the rack. Hold in your hand in this position then fold a second time. Keep it this way while you wash it in lukewarm water and detergent. Rinse, holding it doubled once. Drip dry. Lay a thin cloth over it when pressing. The lining in a tie is cut on a decided bias and that is why it twists up if not held straight. Perhaps Mrs. C. M. could redo hers in this manner.—V. E. W.

Army Forces in U.S. Short of Equipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army divisions and brigades that form a strategic reserve to meet any new crisis abroad, are short nearly one-fifth of their major equipment.

This situation exists more that two years after the Defense Department began putting in heavy orders for gear and supplies to support a big military buildup for the Vietnam war.

Asked for a report on the present equipment situation in the strategic reserves, the Army replied Wednesday: "The active Army divisions and brigades currently stationed in continental United States have on hand approximately 82 per cent of their authorized . . . major end items equipment."

The Army defined a major end item as "one which in itself performs a function" such as trucks and tanks.

It estimated only about one-half of the shortages will be filled by June 30.

Beyond an across-the-board percentage the Army declined on security grounds to provide a detailed breakdown of short items.

But while the strategic reserves are short of their allotted equipment, the Army apparently has made progress in modernizing their gear.

In May 1966 the Senate preparedness subcommittee complained stateside divisions were burdened with over-age vehicles and tracked equipment which has been driven "an excessive number of miles."

The new report said fewer than 1.2 per cent of the major items on hand are less than first-line quality.

The preparedness subcommittee charged in March 1966 that the Army's divisions in the United States were not combat-ready because they were being used to train draftees and recruits. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara acknowledged this was so.

A separate Army report, furnished on request to The Associated Press, showed this problem has been overcome. The Army said no basic trainees remain in the ranks of its divisions and brigades in the United States.

Furthermore, virtually all those units are at 100 per cent strength, with many of their men Vietnam combat veterans, the Army said.

Only two divisions, one a mechanized infantry division and one an armored division, are below full strength and these, sources said, range between 95 per cent and 100 per cent, of full manpower.

There are four Army divisions in the strategic reserves.

They are the 1st Armored Division and 3nd Armored Division, both at Ft. Hood, Texas; the 5th Mechanized Division at Ft. Carson, Colo.; and the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

A new division, the 6th Infantry, is beginning to take shape at Ft. Campbell, Ky. It will probably not be combat-ready until late this year.

When the United States decided to take the big plunge in Vietnam in the summer of 1965, the Army's strategic reserve was made up of eight divisions plus two brigades.

Also forming an important part of the strategic reserves are two Marine divisions, the 2nd based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and the 5th at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

About one-third of the 5th Marine Division is in Vietnam. Roughly the same slice of the 2nd Marine Division is afloat on normal rotation duty in the Mediterranean and Caribbean or stationed at the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Sources said both Marine divisions have some minor manpower gaps but are in pretty good shape so far as equipment is concerned.

ARMED FORCES

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. -- Master Sergeant Adrian L. Warf, son of Mrs. Dorothy L. Warf of Lilbourn, Mo., took part in the 10,000-mile airlift of 101st Airborne Division units to Vietnam -- the largest and longest aerial troop deployment in history.

Sergeant Warf is an aircraft maintenance superintendent assigned to the 63rd Military Airlift Wing at Norton AFB, Calif. The 63rd supported the airlift of units of the 101st -- the famed Screaming Eagles -- from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to Vietnam.

The deployment -- dubbed Operation Eagle Thrust -- began No. 17. Military Airlift Command (MAC) C-141 Starlifters and C-133 Cargomasters carried more than 10,000 troops and some 5,000 tons of equipment during the giant airlift.

The long-range C-141 fanjet, which cruises at 500 miles an hour, carried a normal troop load of 94 or a combination of troops and cargo. The paratroopers wore combat clothing and carried their weapons aboard the aircraft.

Sergeant Warf served during World War II.

His wife, Uler, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Dufur of 1517 E. Gladys St., Sikeston, Mo.

He attended Keiser (Ark.) High School.

WITH U. S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam -- First Lieutenant William O. Lowe, whose wife, Suellen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tucker of Rt. 1, Bloomfield, Mo., was recently credited with helping to break a Viet Cong attack on an Army Special Forces camp near Bien Hoa Air Base, where he is based. Lieutenant Lowe is an AC-47 Dragonship pilot.

Arriving in the combat area, the lieutenant's crew dropped flares in support of A-37 and F-100 Super Sabre pilots attacking the Viet Cong positions. Thinking the assault was broken, the Dragonship crew headed for the base only to be recalled by the forward air controller as the enemy had resumed the engagement.

"Since we were the only aircraft still in the area, we returned and hit the enemy with 22,000 rounds of ammunition from our miniguns," reported Lieutenant Lowe. "This time they broke off the attack for good."

The lieutenant was commissioned in 1965 upon completion of Officers Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

A 1961 graudate of Bloomfield High School, he received his B. S. degree in 1964 from Southeast Missouri State College.

Lieutenant Lowe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert A. Lowe of Chula Vista, Calif.

Jury Fulfills Man's Wish for Death Sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury that convicted former deputy Dist. Atty. Jack Kirschke of murdering his wife and a man in her bedroom has sentenced him to the California gas chamber as he dared it to.

The jurors deliberated about four hours before announcing their verdict Wednesday. The tall, lean Kirschke stood solemnly, unflinching, when he heard it.

The day before, arguing his own case, the 46-year-old former prosecutor had said: "I prefer death to spending the rest of my life in prison."

After the jurors affirmed their decision individually, Kirschke bowed to them slightly and sat down. Then he said he will seek a new trial.

In the courtroom was Albert C.S. Ramsey, the lawyer Kirschke dropped from his case when he won permission Monday to represent himself in the penalty phase of the trial. To newsmen Ramsey explained the reasoning that may have led Kirschke to ask for the death penalty.

Kirschke knows that the State Supreme Court automatically and promptly reviews all death sentences and he has said he believes the court looks more closely at death penalty cases than at those involving life imprisonment.

At the end of a 13-week trial Kirschke had said he was confident the jury would acquit him. But on Dec. 19 it said that Kirschke shot his dress designer wife Elaine, 43, and Orville W. Drankhan, 41, last April in the Kirschke's Long Beach apartment.

Native Nassau Regime Begins Second Year

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamas Premier Lynden O. Pindling marked the beginning of his native government's second year in office today with plans to make the islands internally independent from the British colonial government.

At the first anniversary celebration Wednesday night — in the shadow of one of the largest British forts of the colonial era — Pindling polished the program for presentation to the Bahamas House of Assembly.

A majority report by the Committee on Constitutional Advance, written by Pindling's Progressive Liberal party, a Negro group, is expected to ask that the colonial governor be stripped of his control over internal security and the police.

The minority report from the United Bahamian party took exception to any change in the 1964 constitution which gives Britain control over defense and foreign matters and allows the queen to appoint a governor. The governor chooses a majority in the island Senate and the commissioner of police.

Few here expect the British would refuse the powers to the Bahamas, but considerable opposition was expected from the UBP.

Wednesday night Pindling addressed a cheering crowd unofficially estimated between 6,000 and 8,000 at Nassau's Clifford Field, following a candlelight procession with a calypso beat through downtown Nassau.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

After Navy Lt. Vincent Robert Capodanno was killed in action in Vietnam on September 4, 1967, a fellow chaplain said this about him: "Chaplain Capodanno loved life and the lives of others so much that he gave his own for them."

Before receiving his Navy commission in 1965, Maryknoll Father Capodanno served for six and one-half years as a missionary in Taiwan. He requested duty with the Marines in Vietnam because he wanted to be where he could do the most good. After a year's tour he extended it for six months. During the fourth month he was assigned to the 3rd Battalion of the 5th U. S. Marine Regiment, which found itself in a rough fight in the Que Son valley, 30 miles south of Da Nang. Father Capodanno was with Mike Company and as always was far from the comparative security of the battalion commanders group. They were nearly surrounded by North Vietnamese Army Regulars. With little regard for his own safety, Chaplain Capodanno moved among the dead and wounded administering last rites, praying and soothing. An enemy mortar shell mangled his right arm and hand but he continued until machine gun fire hit him in the back. He died serving God, his country and his fellow man.

Ann Landers

Practice Doesn't Make Perfect in Sex Relationship

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school girl who believes in free love. Please print my letter because there are plenty more like me and our side doesn't get very much coverage.

I am not a tramp. I come from a high class family and I make good grades. I see nothing wrong with sleeping with different boys so long as I like them and they like me -- as a person, I mean.

Virginity is an old-fashioned idea that makes no sense any more. Why should a girl save herself for a man who is not making any great effort to save himself for her? In our social group I don't know of a single guy who has done much of a preservation job.

Sex is an important part of marriage and I want to be the perfect wife. I feel that the practice I am getting now will be very useful when Mr. Right comes along. So you see, there ARE some logical and sensible arguments against virginity. And if you are fair, as you claim to be, you will print my letter. MISS HONEST

Dear Miss: If you are sleeping around so you will be experienced for Mr. Right, you can stop now. Mr. Right will not view your list of bed partners as impressive credentials. In fact, he might get the idea that you are a bit of an alley cat.

I don't deceive myself into believing my advice will cut any mustard with you, Toots, but for the girls who have not yet lost The Great Debate, I'd like to say this: Insofar as sex is concerned, practice does NOT make perfect. It does make juicy conversation in locker rooms and, of course, it can also make babies.

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently that a state school for mentally retarded children in Boston has accepted 300 pairs of old shoes from someone who had been saving them for 30 years. The shoe saver received wide acclaim for his "thriftiness and generosity."

The while thing made me sick to my stomach. Old, misshapen shoes can ruin a person's feet for the rest of his life. Many retarded children cannot speak well enough to let another person know what is bothering them.

I would like to pose a question to the fine citizens of Boston: Is this the best your state can do for its retarded children? -- PARENT OF A RETARDED CHILD

Dear Parent: Thank you for your letter. If a Bostonian will come up with an answer I will print it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died seven months ago. We had a fine marriage and his sudden death was a terrible blow to me. For the first several months I couldn't even think of going out and enjoying myself. Now I am feeling stronger and I would like to accept some of the invitations my friends have so generously extended. My husband's sister says it would be disrespectful to my husband's memory if I did not honor the mourning period of one year. Do you agree? --WANT TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT

Dear Want To: No. Life is for the living. If you feel that you would like to socialize now, do so. It's how you treat a man when he's alive that counts.

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WCTU Inspires Start For Public Library

50 years ago
January 12, 1918

The move for a public library for Sikeston, started last week by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union members, has gained considerable headway, and practically every member of the local organization has pledged books or money. The library will be maintained for a while at the high school building, where Superintendent Lee will catalogue the books and act as librarian. Later it is the plan to secure library accommodations down town and employ a librarian.

After an illness of several weeks, Dick Finley passed away at his home, near Benton, January 16th. Two nephews, R. C. and L. L. Finley, P. A. and George Stone and Steve Humphrey are among the relatives from Sikeston and near by who will attend the funeral.

The architect's drawing of the new city municipal center and national Guard armory was shown in the January 14th issue. Construction of the building is expected to begin momentarily. The structure of brick and tile, will have a large drill hall and a banquet hall in the center, a stage at one side of the drill hall, and kitchen, offices, garage and supply room on the ground floor; rifle range, showers, toilets and furnace room in the basement; additional offices and club rooms for the American Legion and for enlisted men on either wing upstairs. J. J. Sutterfield is the architect.

Also appearing in the same issue was the architect's drawing of the proposed Sikeston Municipal Golf club building. Architect J. L. Sutterfield's drawing of the proposed $20,000 club house on the golf course will have a modern dance and dining hall, 46 by 30 feet; lounge, 12 by 24; and screened porch, 12 by 50. On the east wing will be a basement, first floor, second floor, and second floor balcony overlooking the dance hall. The east wing basement will contain toilets and lockers for club members. Eisenhower Tops Popularity Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is named in a Gallup Poll as the man Americans admired most in the world in 1967.

Eisenhower edged out President Johnson, who had been the number one choice in the last four annual surveys.

Johnson dropped to number two and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., who placed third in 1966, dropped to fourth behind the Rev. Billy Graham.

Dr. George Gallup of the American Institute of Public Opinion in Princeton, N.J., said poll takers asked 1,526 U.S. adults:

"What man that you have heard or read about living today in any part of the world, do you admire most?"

Efforts to Test Moon Soil Thwarted

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 7's remote-controlled fingers clawed into the face of the moon Wednesday night but scientists were thwarted by inches today from making a chemical analysis of the lunar surface.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena said they have been unable so far to lower a device known as an alpha scattering instrument to the lunar surface.

The alpha device is designed to determine the chemical composition of the surface by radiation. It was stuck about two feet above the crust on the south-central highlands near the Crater Tycho, where the final Surveyor set down.

The alpha device— a 5 x 6 x 7 inch box— must be on the surface to do its job. By remote control, scientists tried to push it to the soil by pressing downward with Surveyor's soil-digging scoop.

It didn't budge the alpha box but scientists planned to continue trying.

The chemical tests are regarded as one of the most important missions of Surveyor 7, which soft-landed Tuesday.

If You Were The Judge

No One Misled by Error in Ballot Name

Joe Biceps thought he was a real he-man. When he ran for town clerk, however, there was some basis for doubt in his mind. The ballot listed his first name as "Josephine" instead of "Joseph."

The result? Joe drew more whistles than votes and lost the election. Without ado, he raced to court where he insisted that the election was void and demanded a rematch.

"Since I was a qualified candidate," he told the judge, "I was entitled to have my name on the ballot. Since it wasn't on it, I'm entitled to have the whole election done over again."

"His name certainly was on the ballot," retorted the winning candidate. "The fact that his first name was feminized was in no way misleading. With Joe's physique, no one would have mistaken him for a girl any more than they could mistake Raquel Welch for a boy."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order a new election?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the feminization of Joe's name was obviously a typographical error. Since no one was misled as to whom was intended, his name cannot be considered as having been omitted from the ballot.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. (James 5:16)

PRAYER: "Lord, I pray for all mankind, that they may be brought to know, love, and serve Thee... May the sick be healed, the mourners comforted, the poor succored, and the afflicted in body and mind be held in Thy deep peace that passeth understanding. Bless my friends and bless my enemies, and grant us all the spirit of penitence, that we may be forgiven, through Jesus Christ our Savior. Amen."

MEET A FIXER NAMED VANILLA
- AND HE'S AS COOL AS HIS NAME!

Charlie Vanilla is as cold as the ice cream that's his trademark. He's a big-time fixmaster -- and he's in High City to fix the Olympics!

The only person to recognize the cataclysmic catalyst is Col. Steve Canyon's ward, Poteet Canyon -- tenacious girl reporter for the High City HERALD. And she's distracted by a romantic triangle involving herself, her best friend, Bitsy Beekman, and potential Olympic star Jay Newtown.

Newtown may be America's big hope for winning the 5-part Pentathlon --an honor the U. S. has never before achieved -- and never will achieve if Charlie Vanilla has his way.

Will Poteet and Bitsy put aside their rivalry in time to foil Vanilla's evil plans? Can they again become friends?

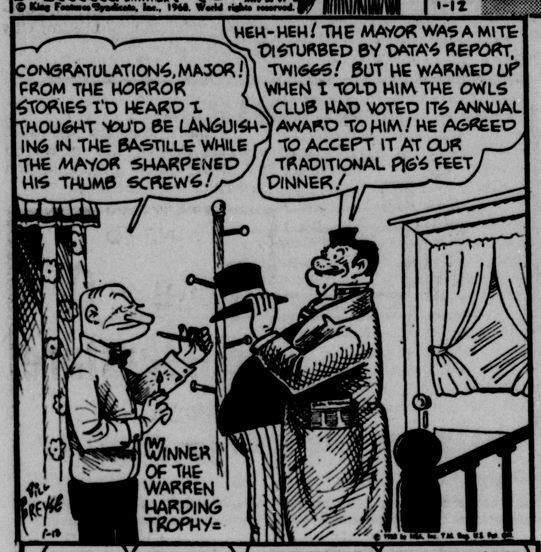

How the girls cope with the provocative situations in which they find themselves provides a tale that's packed with drama, suspense and action.

Legislative Session Opens

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A hot special session of the Missouri Legislature opened today in cold winter weather for 60 days of controversy.

A last minute addition to the legislative chores — congressional redistricting— promised to keep the lawmakers busy trying to reconcile population and political disparities.

"It will be the first and last order of business," said Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, minority floor leader in the House.

He has registered violent opposition to the initial plan presented by Rep. Fred. E. (Gene) Copeland, D-New Madrid, chairman of the House Reapportionment Committee.

Copeland prepared a plan with a population variance of less than 1 per cent in the 10 districts after a special federal court ruled the 1967 redistricting plan was invalid. Copeland plans to start hearings on the bill next Tuesday.

King charged it was a calculated effort to keep Republicans from retaining their 2nd Congressional District seat in St. Louis County.

The special session, scheduled to convene at 1:30 p.m., also faces a record budget of more than $1.2 billion, to be presented by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes later in the day.

It also will be confronted with requests for financial aid from the St. Louis and Kansas City metropolitan areas. Legislators from those areas have shown little agreement on any of them.

Many of the legislators expressed doubt they could finish all the work ahead of them in the 60 days allowed.

Under Missouri's Constitution, a special session can last only 60 days and can consider only the topics recommended by the governor.

If the legislature fails to solve the problem of congressional redistricting, the special three-judge federal court will do the job.

A complication is that the deadling for candidate filings ends April 30. And that date might have to be extended if there is any legislative or judicial delay.

Despite the record budget, revenue figures have been revised upward in the light of collections for the fist six months of the current fiscal year, which were about 8 per cent higher than expected.

The House Appropriations Committee got a head start by holding hearings before the session opened and expects to start its executive sessions on the money bills Tuesday.

Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, House Appropriations chairman, said the goal is to get them through the House and to the Senate by Feb. 1.

He came to Sikeston as minister of Concordia Lutheran in September of 1960.

A new parsonage was built for the family at 207 Kramer Drive. He and his wife, Loretta, a daughter, Mrs. Donald Hurtgen, St. Louis and two sons, Harold 19, and David Belsheim 18, both students at Concordia College.

Dexter Youth 7,000th Boy In Scouting

CAPE GIRARDEAU - C. A. Bohnsack, Cape Girardeau, organization and extension chairman, Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, has announced that 7,077 boys were registered as members at the end of December.

Bohnsack stated that the 1966 membership in the Council was 6,692.

The Council's 7,000 boy is Rich Barber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barber of 907 N. Oak Street, Dexter, registered with Explorer Post 200, sponsored by the Methodist Church of Dexter. Jack Ward is the Explorer advisor.

The council set a goal for 7067 boys and for organization of 29 new packs, troops, or posts, which would make it possible for a total of 279 units to be registered in the 14-country area.

He said that the council organized 38 new units. There are more than 2,600 volunteer adult leaders in Southeast Missouri.

The Council is one of agencies supported by the 12 United Funds in Southeast Missouri.

Hearnes Presents $1.2 Billion Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes described his $1.2 billion budget recommendation today as enough to finance the government adequately in the fiscal year beginning July 1, but said it is crowding expected revenues.

The total is far less than the agencies and institutions of the state requested. It reflects the amount the governor thinks the state can spend for vital services and remain in the black— as the Constitution requires.

It leaves an estimated balance— or cushion — of slightly more than $18 million, about $2 million less than has been considered a safe margin in recent years.

And because of that the governor issued this warning:

"If the legislature goes above these figures the gamble becomes extremely dangerous."

In Hearnes' first budget, for the 1965-66 fiscal year, the total from all funds was a bit more than $882 million. The following year it broke the $1 billion mark and for the current year it is a little more than $1.1 billion.

The budgets, including today's recommendation, indicates the cost of the state's government operations is increasing just $100 million a year.

Hearnes said in his budget message: "This blueprint for orderly expendituures does not envision any increase in taxes.

"The necessity for a tax increase has been forestalled partially because of policies which have gained the most benefits possible from each tax dollar while providing an increased range of services as demanded by an increasing number of people, and partially because of Missouri's continually expanding base of economic support which has produced revenues at a pace approximating that of the population growth."

Hearnes estimates the three-cent sales tax will produce $290 million in the coming fiscal year. That's close to half the $597 million the governor is counting on in general revenue (tax) money for the new budget.

We also expect $149 million to be collected in state income taxes, $11,500,000 in interest on invested state funds, $14 million in liquor and beer taxes, $11 million in inheritance taxes, about $20 million in miscellaneous taxes and the rest in special funds.

The governor estimated there would be more than $102 million in motor fuel taxes, and $55 illion in auto registrations and driver licenses, along with many special fees.

635 Miles of Interstate Open

JEFFERSON CITY - A total of 635 miles of Missouri's 1,120-mile designated share of the interstate highway system is completed and open to traffic, according to a progress report by M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the Missouri state highway commission.

In addition, Snider reported, Missouri has 112 miles of interstate system under contract and being built, with 89 miles scheduled to be completed in 1968.

Along with the completed mileage and mileage now under contract, Missouri also has 113 miles of dual lane and divided highways in use on interstate route locations, according to the chief engineer. However, additional work such as acquiring right of way, building traffic interchanges, laying new pavement, stabilizing shoulders and installing signs will be required to bring those 113 miles up to interstate system standards.

Snider reported that Missouri still has 373 miles of interstate system routes to be placed under contract for construction. Mileage yet to be contracted is in rural and urban areas of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph.

Interstate system routes are built with 90 per cent federal and 10 per cent state funds.

Started in 1956 to provide Americans with a modern nationwide network of highways, the 41,000 - mile interstate system originally was scheduled to be completed throughout the United States in 1972.

Insufficient funds at the federal level, resulting mainly from higher design standards and steadily rising costs for completing the interstate system, indicate that the superhighway network will not be finished until about 1975, according to Snider.

Missouri has been one of the leading states in progress on the interstate system ever since the program was started in 1956. Missouri was the first state in the nation to awardconstruction contracts for work on the superhighway network.

Snider said the latest report from the U. S. department of transportation shows Missouri is tied for seventh among all states in the nation in using all federal aid highway funds made available to the states for the interstate system since the program began.

Marston Gears for Industry

MARSTON -- Plans for community betterment that will be required with the location of the new Noranda Alumina plant were discussed last night at a meeting called by the mayor and board of aldermen.

Sam L. Hunter Jr., president of the New Madrid Chamber of Commerce, outlined the needs of the community and the impact the new industry will have on the area.

Hunter was instrumental in getting the $70 million facility.

Plans also call for construction of a $70 million power plant to serve the industry and surrounding communities.

Mayor Payl "Jack" Mahar, who presided, outlined steps Marston would need to take immediately to help accommodate the new industry's needs.

He said Marston must provide city sewage facilities, a water filtration plant, hard surfacing of streets and a city administration building.

Marston will be the town nearest to the Noranda plant site.

Also discussed were the needs for a city trash disposal service and a clean up, fix up campaign.

Kenneth Bodine, city clerk and treasurer, read the city financial statement, and alderman Louie Griffy discussed the proposed city housing code.

The two-hour meeting adjourned after Mahar was authorized to name committees and call another meeting to authorize the proposed programs.

Aldermen, J. D. Warner and Marvin Fausett also were present. About 165 attended.

Romney Offers To Debate Nixon

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)— Michigan Gov. George Romney, acknowledging that the polls show him "well behind" in the New Hampshire primary campaign, challenged former Vice President Richard M. Nixon today to come to the state and debate him.

"Anything less would be a failure on our part, as candidates, to meet our responsibilities to you as voters in this crucial first primary of the most crucial election year in modern American history," he said.

Kicking off his campaign, Romney said he and Nixon apparently will be the only major Republican presidential contenders entered in the March 12 New Hampshire race.

"The New Hampshire primary may answer the question of who the new president will be or whether there will be a new one," Romney said.

Surveyor 7 Carries out Soil Testing Operation

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists maneuvered Surveyor 7's soil testing device into operation today and declared "this will increase our knowledge of the moon vastly."

The success marked a "full mission" for the space craft that softlanded on the moon last Tuesday. Soil testing was a major purpose.

Using a digger scoop that makes trenches in lunar soil, scientists gave the shoebox-sized, soil-testing device a final shove today that placed it on the lunar soil, where it must be to make chemical analysis by radiation.

A spokesman at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the data was being transmitted back to earth but added, "It'll be a week and a half before it can be analyzed."

"This was one of our most important experiments on the spacecraft— it makes it a full mission," the spokesman added.

Scientists thought Thursday night they had successfully lowered the soil tester to the surface. But they discovered they had only lowered it part way. It must be flush with the surface to function.

Jackson Farmer Named Corn Champ

JACKSON -- Robert Nitsch, route three, Jackson, was Missouri's corn growing champion last year. He averaged 207.87 bushels an acre on a 20-acre field -- the highest yield made by any of the entries in the growing contests sponsored by the Missouri Farmers Association.

Terry Harms, Higginsville, was second with 188.98 bushels. Paul Quade, Gordonville, was third with 187.33 bushels and in fourth place was Wayne Brown of Gilliam with 183.42 bushels.

"The rains fell about right," Nitsch explained. "We never did have any dry weather." He planted his corn April 25 in 38-inch rows. He had 24,800 stalks to the acre and the variety was 3232. He used a soil insecticide and chemicals to control weeds. The field was cultivated once.

For fertility treatment Nitsch plowed under 400 pounts of 0-15-40 put 200 pounds of 6-24-24 in the row for starter, and side dressed with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

He had 110 acres in corn. All received the same treatment as his contest field.

"I think some of it was better than my contest field," he explained.

The field was located in the Williams creek bottom. The soil is loose and drains well. "You don't notice the fertilizer benefits until you start picking. The ears weighed about three-quarters of a pound. The big difference from 1966 is that ears were filled out to the very end in 1967," Nitsch explained.

Harms attends Higginsville high school and his corn field was Future Farmers of America project. "We about drowned out. It surprised me -- every stalk had an ear on it," Harms said.

The eight-acre contest field was in the Davis creek bottom and planted May 15. The variety was 2222 and he had 21,360 stalks to the acre. It was planted in 38-inch rows. He plowed down 450 pounds of 22-11-11 per acre and put 150 pounds of 8-22-11 with trace elements in the row. Later he side dressed with 130 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

Harms used a soil insecticide in the row at time of planting. He applied a chemical to control weeds and grass before the corn came up.

Quade, the third place winner, planted his corn May 13. With the exception of one year the field has been in contineous corn for 11 years.

"We had a hard wind in August but it stood good and held its ears," Quade said.

The 24-acre field was in a creek bottom.

"The rains came about right and there were no barren stalks," he explained.

Quade had 19,533 stalks to the acre and it was planted in 38 inch rows. He plowed under 300 pounds of 0-23-30 per acre and put 175 pounds of 5-22-24 per acre in the row for a starter fertilizer. Later he side dressed with 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre. He used a chemicals to control weeds and as a soil insecticide. The variety was 3232.

Brown planted his corn May 3, and the variety was 3232. He had 19,966 stalks to the acre and the rows were 34 inches apart. He plowed down 200 pounds of 0-30-30 and put 115 pounds of 8-22-11 with trace elements per acre in the row as a starter fertilizer. He side dressed with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre. He used a soil insecticide and a chemical to control weeds and grass.

Among the other high yields were: Don Rodgers, Jackson, 183.28 bushels per acre; Calvin Harms, Higginsville, 178.06 bushels; Marvin Aufdenberg, Bufordville, 177.69 bushels; Nitsch Brothers, Jackson, 175.42 bushels; Jerry Pfeffer, Gordonville, 174.4 bushels; Lawrence McBryde, Jr., Jackson, 173.36 bushels; S. H. Miller, Marshall, 172.54 bushels; Henry L. Gerdes New Haven, 171.17 bushels; Milde Farms, Jackson, 171.17 bushels; and Gordon Shackelford, Warrensburg, 170.9.

MISSOURI'S CORN GROWING CHAMPION was Robert Nitsch, route three, Jackson. He averaged 207.87 bushels an acre on a field he had entered in a Cape Girardeau county corn growing contest sponsored by the Missouri Farmers association.

Bowles Leaves Sihanouk U.S. Promise to Avoid Aggression

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles has promised Cambodia the United States "will do everything possible to avoid acts of aggression against Cambodia," according to a joint communique issued today at the end of Bowles' five-day mission to Phnom Penh.

At the same time, the Soviet Union moved quickly to oppose any agreement Bowles and Prince Norodom Sihanouk might have reached to restrict the use of Cambodian territory by the Vietnamese Communists.

Bowles, sent to Phnom Penh by President Johnson, told newsmen as he left for New Delhi that he was "very satisfied with the successful talks."

It was believed in Phnom Penh that Sihanouk agreed for the three-nation International Control Commission to keep a closer watch on the border between Cambodia and South Vietnam. But Cambodian sources reported that Soviet Ambassador Sergei Koudriavtsev and M. Mylicki, the head of the Polish delegation to the ICC, had called on Sihanouk to express their opposition to a U.S. offer of two helicopters to assist the commission in border watching.

The two Communist representatives said their governments opposed the offer because the United States did not sign the 1954 Geneva agreements which got the French out of Indochina and set up the control commission.

Sihanouk had said earlier that he was favorable to the American offer but acceptance was up to the commission's three members— India, Canada and Poland — and the two cochairmen of the Geneva conference— Britain and the Soviet Union.

The Soviet ambassador also informed Sihanouk that his government agreed to new military aid for Cambodia, including 50 trucks.

All reports from Phnom Penh told of pleasant and cordial relations between Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, and Bowles during the four-day visit. But at the same time Sihanouk's foreign minister, Prince Norodom Phourissara, was attacking U.S. actions in Vietnam and in effect rejecting American charges that North Vietnamese troops use Cambodia as a highway to South Vietnam and a refuge when pressed too hard by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

Cambodian officials reported that Bowles assured the prince that the United States intends to respect the neutrality and territorial integrity of Cambodia and has no intention of launching any attacks against the country.

The U.S. Army's chief of staff, Gen., Harold K. Johnson, said in a speech in Chicago Thursday that he opposes sending U.S. troops or planes after Communist forces that flee into Cambodia. But he said he approves of pursuit by fire— shooting at the retreating enemy even if they are over the border.

Legislative Session Opens

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A hot special session of the Missouri Legislature opened today in cold winter weather for 60 days of controversy.

A last minute addition to the legislative chores — congressional redistricting— promised to keep the lawmakers busy trying to reconcile population and political disparities.

"It will be the first and last order of business," said Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, minority floor leader in the House.

He has registered violent opposition to the initial plan presented by Rep. Fred. E. (Gene) Copeland, D-New Madrid, chairman of the House Reapportionment Committee.

Copeland prepared a plan with a population variance of less than 1 per cent in the 10 districts after a special federal court ruled the 1967 redistricting plan was invalid. Copeland plans to start hearings on the bill next Tuesday.

King charged it was a calculated effort to keep Republicans from retaining their 2nd Congressional District seat in St. Louis County.

The special session, scheduled to convene at 1:30 p.m., also faces a record budget of more than $1.2 billion, to be presented by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes later in the day.

It also will be confronted with requests for financial aid from the St. Louis and Kansas City metropolitan areas. Legislators from those areas have shown little agreement on any of them.

Many of the legislators expressed doubt they could finish all the work ahead of them in the 60 days allowed.

Under Missouri's Constitution, a special session can last only 60 days and can consider only the topics recommended by the governor.

If the legislature fails to solve the problem of congressional redistricting, the special three-judge federal court will do the job.

A complication is that the deadling for candidate filings ends April 30. And that date might have to be extended if there is any legislative or judicial delay.

Despite the record budget, revenue figures have been revised upward in the light of collections for the fist six months of the current fiscal year, which were about 8 per cent higher than expected.

The House Appropriations Committee got a head start by holding hearings before the session opened and expects to start its executive sessions on the money bills Tuesday.

Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, House Appropriations chairman, said the goal is to get them through the House and to the Senate by Feb. 1.

He will recruit students for the ministry, be minister to the student body, and assist in raising funds for the college. He will travel in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri.

He came to Sikeston as minister of Concordia Lutheran in September of 1960.

CAPE GIRARDEAU - C. A. Bohnsack, Cape Girardeau, organization and extension chairman, Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, has announced that 7,077 boys were registered as members at the end of December.

The council set a goal for 7067 boys and for organization of 29 new packs, troops, or posts, which would make it possible for a total of 279 units to be registered in the 14-country area.

He said that the council organized 38 new units. There are more than 2,600 volunteer adult leaders in Southeast Missouri.

The Council is one of agencies supported by the 12 United Funds in Southeast Missouri.

Hearnes Presents $1.2 Billion Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes described his $1.2 billion budget recommendation today as enough to finance the government adequately in the fiscal year beginning July 1, but said it is crowding expected revenues.

The total is far less than the agencies and institutions of the state requested. It reflects the amount the governor thinks the state can spend for vital services and remain in the black— as the Constitution requires.

It leaves an estimated balance— or cushion — of slightly more than $18 million, about $2 million less than has been considered a safe margin in recent years.

And because of that the governor issued this warning:

"If the legislature goes above these figures the gamble becomes extremely dangerous."

In Hearnes' first budget, for the 1965-66 fiscal year, the total from all funds was a bit more than $882 million. The following year it broke the $1 billion mark and for the current year it is a little more than $1.1 billion.

The budgets, including today's recommendation, indicates the cost of the state's government operations is increasing just $100 million a year.

Hearnes said in his buiget message: "This blueprint for orderly expendituures does not envision any increase in taxes.

"The necessity for a tax increase has been forestalled partially because of policies which have gained the most benefits possible from each tax dollar while providing an increased range of services as demanded by an increasing number of people, and partially because of Missouri's continually expanding base of economic support which has produced revenues at a pace approximating that of the population growth."

Hearnes estimates the three-cent sales tax will produce $290 million in the coming fiscal year. That's close to half the $597 million the governor is counting on in general revenue (tax) money for the new budget.

We also expect $149 million to be collected in state income taxes, $11,500,000 in interest on invested state funds, $14 million in liquor and beer taxes, $11 million in inheritance taxes, about $20 million in miscellaneous taxes and the rest in special funds.

The governor estimated there would be more than $102 million in motor fuel taxes, and $55 illion in auto registrations and driver licenses, along with many special fees.

635 Miles of Interstate Open

JEFFERSON CITY - A total of 635 miles of Missouri's 1,120-mile designated share of the interstate highway system is completed and open to traffic, according to a progress report by M. J. Snider, chief engineer of the Missouri state highway commission.

In addition, Snider reported, Missouri has 112 miles of interstate system under contract and being built, with 89 miles scheduled to be completed in 1968.

Along with the completed mileage and mileage now under contract, Missouri also has 113 miles of dual lane and divided highways in use on interstate route locations, according to the chief engineer. However, additional work such as acquiring right of way, building traffic interchanges, laying new pavement, stabilizing shoulders and installing signs will be required to bring those 113 miles up to interstate system standards.

Snider reported that Missouri still has 373 miles of interstate system routes to be placed under contract for construction. Mileage yet to be contracted is in rural and urban areas of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph.

Interstate system routes are built with 90 per cent federal and 10 per cent state funds.

Started in 1956 to provide Americans with a modern nationwide network of highways, the 41,000 - mile interstate system originally was scheduled to be completed throughout the United States in 1972.

Insufficient funds at the federal level, resulting mainly from higher design standards and steadily rising costs for completing the interstate system, indicate that the superhighway network will not be finished until about 1975, according to Snider.

Missouri has been one of the leading states in progress on the interstate system ever since the program was started in 1956. Missouri was the first state in the nation to award construction contracts for work on the superhighway network.

Snider said the latest report from the U. S. department of transportation shows Missouri is tied for seventh among all states in the nation in using all federal aid highway funds made available to the states for the interstate system since the program began.

Marston Gears for Industry

MARSTON -- Plans for community betterment that will be required with the location of the new Noranda Alumina plant were discussed last night at a meeting called by the mayor and board of aldermen.

Sam L. Hunter Jr., president of the New Madrid Chamber of Commerce, outlined the needs of the community and the impact the new industry will have on the area.

Hunter was instrumental in getting the $70 million facility. Plans also call for construction of a $70 million power plant to serve the industry and surrounding communities.

Mayor Payl "Jack" Mahar, who presided, outlined steps Marston would need to take immediately to help accommodate the new industry's needs.

He said Marston must provide city sewage facilities, a water filtration plant, hard surfacing of streets and a city administration building.

Marston will be the town nearest to the Noranda plant site.

Also discussed were the needs for a city trash disposal service and a clean up, fix up campaign.

Kenneth Bodine, city clerk and treasurer, read the city financial statement, and alderman Louie Griffy discussed the proposed city housing code.

The two-hour meeting adjourned after Mahar was authorized to name committees and call another meeting to authorize the proposed programs.

Aldermen, J. D. Warner and Marvin Fausett also were present. About 165 attended.

Romney Offers To Debate Nixon

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)— Michigan Gov. George Romney, acknowledging that the polls show him "well behind" in the New Hampshire primary campaign, challenged former Vice President Richard M. Nixon today to come to the state and debate him.

"Anything less would be a failure on our part, as candidates, to meet our responsibilities to you as voters in this crucial first primary of the most crucial election year in modern American history," he said.

Kicking off his campaign, Romney said he and Nixon apparently will be the only major Republican presidential contenders entered in the March 12 New Hampshire race.

"The New Hampshire primary may answer the question of who the new president will be or whether there will be a new one," Romney said.

Bowles Leaves Sihanouk U.S. Promise to Avoid Aggression

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles has promised Cambodia the United States "will do everything possible to avoid acts of aggression against Cambodia," according to a joint communique issued today at the end of Bowles' five-day mission to Phnom Penh.

At the same time, the Soviet Union moved quickly to oppose any agreement Bowles and Prince Norodom Sihanouk might have reached to restrict the use of Cambodian territory by the Vietnamese Communists.

Bowles, sent to Phnom Penh by President Johnson, told newsmen as he left for New Delhi that he was "very satisfied with the successful talks."

It was believed in Phnom Penh that Sihanouk agreed for the three-nation International Control Commission to keep a closer watch on the border between Cambodia and South Vietnam. But Cambodian sources reported that Soviet Ambassador Sergei Kourdiavtsev and M. Mylicki, the head of the Polish delegation to the ICC, had called on Sihanouk to express their opposition to a U.S. offer of two helicopters to assist the commission in border watching.

The two Communist representatives said their governments opposed the offer because the United States did not sign the 1954 Geneva agreements which got the French out of Indochina and set up the control commission.

Sihanouk had said earlier that he was favorable to the American offer but acceptance was up to the commission's three members— India, Canada and Poland — and the two cochairmen of the Geneva conference— Britain and the Soviet Union.

The Soviet ambassador also informed Sihanouk that his government agreed to new military aid for Cambodia, including 50 trucks.

All reports from Phnom Penh told of pleasant and cordial relations between Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, and Bowles during the four-day visit. But at the same time Sihanouk's foreign minister, Prince Norodom Phourissara, was attacking U.S. actions in Vietnam and in effect rejecting American charges that North Vietnamese troops use Cambodia as a highway to South Vietnam and a refuge when pressed too hard by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

Cambodian officials reported that Bowles assured the prince that the United States intends to respect the neutrality and territorial integrity of Cambodia and has no intention of launching any attacks against the country.

The U.S. Army's chief of staff, Gen., Harold K. Johnson, said in a speech in Chicago Thursday that he opposes sending U.S. troops or planes after Communist forces that flee into Cambodia. But he said he approves of pursuit by fire— shooting at the retreating enemy even if they are over the border.

Police Arrest Bus Passenger Carrying Pistol

A tip from a bus driver this morning led Sikeston police to the arrest of a passenger who was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Charles Peterson, Chicago, Ill., was charged by police at 8:40 a.m. with carrying a 22 caliber revolver. He was arrested on South Main at the Bus Depot.

In other activity, J. W. Hartzog, 618 Sikes, reported to police at 2:14 p.m. Thursday that $280 in cash was stolen from a suitcase in the basement of his house between Dec. 6 and Dec. 20.

Workshop for Nursing Home Administrators

Nursing home administrators in the Sikeston area will hear personnel management teachniques discussed at a one-day workshop Tuesday at Two Tonys Restaurant, 205 W. Malone St.

It will be the first in a series of workshops sponsored by the Missouri Association of Licensed Nursing Homes in cooperation with private and governmental agencies in the health care field.

The workshops are designed to help administrators of licensed nursing homes give quality care for Missouri's aged and infirm.

The first session will emphasize personnel management techniques. Topics to be discussed include the relationship of the nursing home administrator to the employe, evaluation of specific duties of employes, prehiring interview techniques and employe moral.

Harold M. Kane, Jefferson City, association education director, said speakers will discuss application of wage laws to nursing homes and assumption of jurisdiction by the national labor relations Board over labor cases of privately owned hospitals and nursing homes.

Workshops will be held at Sikeston, St. Louis, Macon, St. Joseph, Kansas City and Springfield.

Joining Kane will be speakers from the Missouri division of health, department of education and lawyers.

Workshops are supported by funds of the Missouri Association of Licensed Nursing Homes and the federal government.

Jackson Farmer Named Corn Champ

JACKSON -- Robert Nitsch, route three, Jackson, was Missouri's corn growing champion last year. He averaged 207.87 bushels an acre on a 20-acre field -- the highest yield made by any of the entries in the growing contests sponsored by the Missouri Farmers Association.

Terry Harms, Higginsville, was second with 188.98 bushels. Paul Quade, Gordonville, was third with 187.33 bushels and in fourth place was Wayne Brown of Gilliam with 183.42 bushels.

"The rains fell about right," Nitsch explained. "We never did have any dry weather." He planted his corn April 25 in 38-inch rows. He had 24,800 stalks to the acre and the variety was 3232. He used a soil insecticide and chemicals to control weeds. The field was cultivated once.

For fertility treatment Nitsch plowed under 400 pounts of 0-15-40 put 200 pounds of 6-24-24 in the row for starter, and side dressed with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

He had 110 acres in corn. All received the same treatment as his contest field.

"I think some of it was better than my contest field," he explained.

The field was located in the Williams creek bottom. The soil is loose and drains well. "You don't notice the fertilizer benefits until you start picking. The ears weighed about three-quarters of a pound. The big difference from 1966 is that ears were filled out to the very end in 1967," Nitsch explained.

Harms attends Higginsville high school and his corn field was Future Farmers of America project. "We about drowned out. It surprised me -- every stalk had an ear on it," Harms said.

The eight-acre contest field was in the Davis creek bottom and planted May 15. The variety was 2222 and he had 21,360 stalks to the acre. It was planted in 38-inch rows. He plowed down 450 pounds of 22-11-11 per acre and put 150 pounds of 8-22-11 with trace elements in the row. Later he side dressed with 130 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre.

Harms used a soil insecticide in the row at time of planting. He applied a chemical to control weeds and grass before the corn came up.

Quade, the third place winner, planted his corn May 13. With the exception of one year the field has been in contineous corn for 11 years.

"We had a hard wind in August but it stood good and held its ears," Quade said.

The 24-acre field was in a creek bottom.

"The rains came about right and there were no barren stalks," he explained.

Quade had 19,533 stalks to the acre and it was planted in 38 inch rows. He plowed under 300 pounds of 0-23-30 per acre and put 175 pounds of 5-22-24 per acre in the row for a starter fertilizer. Later he side dressed with 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre. He used a chemicals to control weeds and as a soil insecticide. The variety was 3232.

Brown planted his corn May 3, and the variety was 3232. He had 19,966 stalks to the acre and the rows were 34 inches apart. He plowed down 200 pounds of 0-30-30 and put 115 pounds of 8-22-11 with trace elements per acre in the row as a starter fertilizer. He side dressed with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre. He used a soil insecticide and a chemical to control weeds and grass.

Among the other high yields were: Don Rodgers, Jackson, 183.28 bushels per acre; Calvin Harms, Higginsville, 178.06 bushels; Marvin Aufdenberg, Buffordville, 177.69 bushels; Nitsch Brothers, Jackson, 175.42 bushels; Jerry Pfeffer, Gordonville, 174.4 bushels; Lawrence McBryde, Jr., Jackson, 173.36 bushels; S. H. Miller, Marshall, 172.54 bushels; Henry L. Gerdes New Haven, 171.17 bushels; Milde Farms, Jackson, 171.17 bushels; and Gordon Shackelford, Warrensburg, 170.9.

MISSOURI'S CORN GROWING CHAMPION was Robert Nitsch, route three, Jackson. He averaged 207.87 bushels an acre on a field he had entered in a Cape Girardeau county corn growing contest sponsored by the Missouri Farmers association.

AMERICAN EDUCATION AND UNESCO PLANS

Many Americans are not ready to admit that the United Nations has done much to weaken the national loyalty which has been a source of great U. S. strength. Nevertheless, this is being accomplished slowly, and one of the causes is the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) which has some plans and ideas of its own regarding American education.

UNESCO distributes much information about the desirability of One World Government, the acceptance of which necessarily diminishes the importance of American nationalism. The words "patriot" and "patriotism" must confine themselves to the higher calling of One Worldism.

It is submitted that UNESCO's purpose is to establish a world government. This does not impugn the motives of those people who honestly believe that a world super state is the only way to world peace. However, we do not see the practicability of this idea as long as the communists, who believe in total subjugation of the individual, persist in their announced goal of ruling the world.

It is further submitted that the communists have always used the United Nations for a purpose quite different from the hopes held out for it by free people, and that a close study of UNESCO will reveal that this agency has been used to promote plans that would not serve the hopes of free people. The communists do not intend to be a part of a world government; they intend to control it. A careful study of UNESCO will reveal that a large portion of its educational effort has been in the direction of breaking down nationalism in order to promote world government.

For instance, the UNESCO booklet, "Toward World Understanding," says:

"One of the chief aims of education is to develop those qualities of citizenship which provide the foundation upon which international government must be based. . . The kindergarten or infant school has a significant part to play in the child's education. It can correct many of the errors of home training and prepare the child for membership in the world society. It's most frequently in the family that children are infected with nationalism (patriotism), hearing what is national extolled and what is foreign disparaged."

Still quoting from the UNESCO textbook:

"The school should, therefore, use the means described earlier to combat these family attitudes. As long as the child breathes the poisoned air of nationalism, (emphasis ours) education in world-mindedness can produce only rather precarious results." This is typical of UNESCO thinking.

There are UNESCO committees set up in almost every community in America. The literature of UNESCO is distributed in our public schools under the sponsorship of the National Education Association and the Parent Teachers Association. The machinery for distributing the UNESCO philosophy of one-world government is powerful, widely accepted and paid for mostly by American taxpayers. The motives of organizations who support UNESCO are not under attack: most of the people who support UNESCO are loyal citizens who haven't thought through the idea of One Worldism.

UNESCO has a two point program:

(1) Direct propaganda through a newly published UNESCO rewrite of world history, and (2) A treaty plan called a "Convention Against Discrimination in Education" which seeks international control of public and private schools.

The first of a succession of six UNESCO volumes called "A Scientific and Cultural History of the Development of Mankind" has already been published. This work is made available through libraries to American teachers and students.

UNESCO revealed its long-range plans for international control of education on December 13, 1960 when its 11th Session released the "Convention Against Discrimination in Education" to be submitted to all UN members for ratification as a treaty, binding the ratifying nations to reorganize and direct their educational institutions in compliance with the "Convention." This UNESCO convention may be brought up anytime for ratification and vote by the U. S. Senate. Every means possible will undoubtedly be tried by some to obtain Senate approval of the "Convention."

On July 16, 1961, Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles accurately summed up the effect of the UNESCO "Convention" in these words:

"Even the dangers of Federal Aid to Education fade to a shadow in the light of this measure. This resolution would substantially eliminate all local control of public education at state or local level. It would place the direction and regulation of all American education under Federal control. This resolution would override this Federal Control and make it subsidiary to UNESCO as a world court and final international arbiter of education. The resolution would subject private education to rigid restriction and conformity with respect to plan, staff, curriculum and policy. In other words, it would do away with freedom in education."

A former American Legion Commander, J. Addington Wagner, declared:

"The American Legion's objections to UNESCO can be placed in three major categories. Each of them is supported by voluminous evidence, all of which is taken from the public record. First, the American Legion believes that, from the days of its organization, UNESCO has been a haven for many individuals whose loyalty to the United States is severely compromised, if not submerged, by a demonstrated sympathy for communist objectives.

"Our second principal objection to UNESCO is that through its own publications, UNESCO appears to us to advocate world government.

"The third of our major objections to UNESCO is that it is, in our opinion, endeavoring to influence the educational system of the U. S. through the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO."

UNESCO has always been a haven for procommunists from both sides of the iron curtain. In 1951 Mrs. A. Jegalova was named Chief of the Secondary Educational Division of UNESCO. She is a former chief of the Inspection Division of the Soviet Ministry of Education.

There's no mistaking the purposes of UNESCO when one looks at the roster of the top brass of the past and present. As many as 20 Russians have been among the executive members of the organization in recent years. These are the people who have been formulating and controlling the policies of UNESCO which seeks to influence American children.

Due to these and other UNESCO indiscretions a number of schools have forbidden the use of UNESCO materials.

We cannot rely on American representatives in UNESCO to counteract the influence of such Soviet agents. We should remember the conclusion of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee:

"By far the worst danger spot from the standpoint of disloyalty and subversive activity among Americans employed by international organizations is UNESCO."

Well, you can't have everything. You can have better equal population districts or we can have compactness. Not both.

The Republicans and the Negroes in St. Louis do not like Copeland's map because it does not give them a safe Republican district and a safe Negro district.

But the 1967 redistricting map did just what they wanted and the three federal judges threw that map out.

Maybe we should just forget the whole thing and let the judges do the redistricting for they are ruling our laws anyway.

NEW YORK (AP) — Since this is an election year, now is a good time to run through a little drill in double talk.

Double talk, of course, is the art of saying one thing while meaning something else. It is a saving grace in any social situation, and valuable in all season, but in an election year it is positively indispensable.

For the beginning student, here is a small primer of political double talk phrases that will become only too familiar during the months of campaigning that lie ahead. Each phrase is followed by its literal translation.

"My gifted opponent"— The bum I'm running against.

"Naturally, every man is entitled to his own honest opinion." — So why should I listen to yours?

"I find the tremendous response to the announcement of my candidacy profoundly gratifying."— Mother phoned and said she'd vote for me, no matter whether anybody else did.

"Jim, to win public support you have to go out and meet the people, shake hands, ring doorbells."— We don't have enough dough in the campaign kitty to buy you television time.

"And now, friends, I'd like to have you meet the brave little woman who has stood faithfully by my side through 30 years of life's storm and sunshine." — Yes my wife sure picked a steady meal ticket when she married me.

"Everyone knows I have taken an unqualified position about the situation in Vietnam."— I think we should either stay there or get our, one of the other.

"I take my stand with George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson."— I also hope the leader of the 3rd Ward will back me up.

"My life is an open book."— Did you ever see so many empty pages?

"And if victory should perch upon our banner, you have my assurance that I will enter upon the duties of this high office with no prior pledges, promises, or commitments of any kind to anyone."— Let's win it first, boys. We can always cut up the loot later.

"The federal highway program has no firmer friend than I."— If it would get me any more votes, I'd agree to pave the countryside.

"I wouldn't accuse my esteemed opponent of prevaricating."— He's a bald-faced liar.

"If we believed in the validity of every so-called public poll, of course, there would be no need to hold the election."— Brother, if I had had the sense to take a private poll of my own, I'd never have entered this race.

"May the best man win,"— But if he does, where will that leave me?

SETTLING STRIKES IN WASHINGTON~D.C.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol today predicted that over 600,000 automobiles will be stolen in the country this year unless motorists take some simple precautions.

Lieutenant C. C. Maddox, head of the Patrol's Auto Theft Bureau, said, "Statistics show that in many auto theft cases the owner had left his keys in the ignition or had left the doors unlocked. I urge every motorist, therefore, to make a New Year's resolution to always remove his key and lock the doors of his car whenever he parks. By following these simple precautions he will greatly reduce the chances of his automobile being stolen in 1968."

SOS FOR THE AMERICAN CITY

Just how sick is the American city?

Is it on its deathbed, as so many glum chums profess to believe? Or can it be saved by major surgery and the healing balm of lots of cool, green money?

One fact in its chance of recovery -- the attitude of city dwellers themselves -- is receiving careful attention by such diverse well-wishers as the learned associate professor of church and society at Harvard Divinity School, Dr. Rev. Harvey G. Cox, and the practical life insurance industry.

The danger that despairing city dwellers may toss in the towel and give up the fight has prompted Cox to turn to the classics, and the insurance industry to its pocketbook.

Cox has gone back to Prometheus and Sisyphus -- neither now active in civic affairs or politics, but both VIPs in Greek mythology.

(Prometheus, on the off-chance some of us may have forgotten, was a cocky character who stole fire from heaven, was sentenced by Zeus to a fate too gruesome to detail here but beat the rap. Sisyphys was a crafty and avaricious king of Corinth who went to Hades and found it strictly as advertised.)

Cox makes the point that city dwellers actually are schizophrenic in that they feel Promethian (all-powerful) in respect to conquering nature, but Sisyphysian (hopeless and frustrated) in overcoming social problems.

(The fact that Sisyphys sounds a lot like sissypuss is, of course, a coincidence.)

Both Promethian and Sisyphusian impulses are wrong, says Cox. Man, he believes, cannot overcome his despair over urban problems until he conceives a new vision of the city's future.

And here is where the life insurance industry comes in. It has given the morale of city dwellers a boost by announcing it will make available $1 billion in loans to promote urban housing programs and, later on, to develop new industry and thus new jobs for slum dwellers.

With the co-operation of Prometheus, the life insurance people, all the unannounced political candidates who seem to have solutions for everything. Mayor Lindsay of New York City (who says grappling with urban problems is a fun game) and thers, perhaps the American city can be saved.

So come on down to where the action is, Prommy, old boy, and give us a shot of the old power.

As for you, Sisyphus -- kindly stay where you are. You'd just find more of the same up here.

A BURGLAR'S ETHICS

Head of state, Nasser of Egypt has provided an instructive lesson on the morals of government. According to news releases, he has informed the world that Egypt would repay no loans to those who would not make new loans to Egypt. His threat was directed primarily toward the U. S. In case you are tempted to try Nasser's strategy on your local department store, it might pay to consider a word of advice--don't! When it comes to getting away with "head, I win -- tails, you lose" chicanery, private citizens are not in the same league with governments whose officials can write the rules to fit the game. Nasser's action illustrates why a government of limited powers is best.

ICEMAN COMETH IN A CENTURY OR TWO

Here's something for those who like to do their worrying well in advance:

Mean summer temperatures in Antarctica have apparently risen nearly four degrees since 1912, says Dr. John H. Merder of Ohio State University's Institute of Polar Studies.

Another nine degrees and we're in trouble. For at that point, he cautions, the unstable ice of the great shelves in the western part of the continent would begin to melt, raising sea levels and threatening low-lying areas of the world.

If the increasing pollution of the atmosphere by carbon dioxide has the "greenhouse" or warming effect many scientists believe it has, the trouble could start "perhaps within a century or two."

H.L. Hunt Says

"BRIDGE-BUILDING" TO OUR ENEMIES

There is no excuse for using the services of the U. S. Government and its tax dollars to promote trade with Soviet Russia when, according to figures released by Congressman Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, Russia supplies more than 80 per cent of the war materials going to North Vietnam.

This incredible policy, called "bridge-building" by the Administration, claims that by dealing with Russia we will somehow soften the hearts of their leaders and make them more kindly disposed toward us. Such an agrument sounds as though it might have been made by a naive and innocent child rather than by persons highly placed in our State Department.

In time of war there can be no meaningful "bridges" to the enemy until he stops shooting. This simple and obvious fact is recognized whenever a smaller scale conflict breaks out such as the recent Arab-Israeli war. Then, the first objective of the peacemakers is to bring about a trace. But when we are fighting communists in Vietnam, we are supposed to trade with the enemy even while he is actually shooting at us, without placing conditions of any kind on the aid we are giving.

Every month Russian and Polish ships deliver 178,500 tons of cargo to North Vietnam, according to Congressman Laird's figures. All of our trade with Russia makes it much easier for the Kremlin to send this aid to Ho Chi Minh.

The bridges we are building to Moscow by this fantastic policy are highroads of death for our men in the jungles of Southeast Asia. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Fred Black bugging had sensational angles; Kennedy-Johnson feud began with Baker probe; LBJ doesn't intend to step aside for Bobby Kennedy.

WASHINGTON -- By all odds the most sensational eavesdropping case in the history of Washington was that conducted by the FBI two blocks from the White House in the Sheraton Carlton Hotel suite of lobbyist Fred Black.

There have been other interesting wiretapping cases, such as that conducted by the late Sen. Owen Brewster, R-Maine, on behalf of Pan American airways in the hotel suite of Howard Hughes, then owner of Trans World Airways. And there has been recent bugging by rival Natural Gas Pipeline companies.

But what makes the Fred Black bugging sensational is, first, the fact that it was adjacent to the VIP suite used by the state department to entertain distinguished foreign visitors, and the FBI's electronic devices were so strong that they couldn't help listening in on these visitors also.

Second, and more important, there was some indication that the attorney general who ordered the bugging, namely, Robert F. Kennedy, was interested in the activities of the then vice president of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Officially, the FBI was supposed to be investigating possible links between Black and Las Vegas gamblers. Certainly the FBI was not probing Black's income taxes. This was Internal Revenue's job and it finally convicted him -- a conviction thrown out of court when Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach and Deputy Attorney General Ramsey Clark forced the FBI to admit it had been listening in on Black and others on a wholesale scale for some years.

FBI RETALIATES

J. Edgar Hoover succeeded in getting Katzenbach eased out of the justice department in retaliation, and is now in the process of trying to put the skids under Ramsey Clark.

Regarding the black electronic bug, however, the FBI is smart. It doesn't like to get mixed up in spying on highly placed politicians, and its agents were most restrained when they recorded, for instance, that a senate "official" -- not a senator -- "engaged in activity with female" in the Black suite.

It also picked up some conversations by President Kennedy himself.

The name of the late Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma was also mentioned, together with that of Vice President Johnson and other southwestern friends of LBJ's. Johnson was involved in nothing incriminating, but his political opinions were asked as to who could win and who could not win in certain political races.

The FBI would have dropped the investigation like a hot potato when such big names were mentioned. For politics is nothing the FBI has any business listening in on.

Parenthetically, this might give the present President of the United States a lesson in the dangers of wiretapping at a time when he is about to give congress the green light on a new wiretapping law -- despite the opposition of his attorney general.

BOBBY K. VS. LBJ

Two facts stand out regarding the FBI wiretapping of Black's apartment as all-important:

1 -- The FBI has confided to President Johnson that Bobby Kennedy personally ordered the bugging.

2-- Attorney General Kennedy ordered the FBI to make a thorough probe of Bobby Baker, even assigned some of his own personal justice department investigators to go after Baker, as if he didn't trust the FBI. Finally, he kept a secret copy of the Baker findings in his own office safe.

Since Baker as senate secretary had long worked for Johnson as senate majority leader, such a probe must have been aimed at the then vice president. As it turned out, Baker's wheeling and dealing started after Johnson left the senate, and the late Sen. Kerr, not Johnson, was involved as Baker's mentor and benefactor.

Despite this, stories were leaked to the press -- though never proved --that LBJ was involved.

BEGINNING OF FEUD

All this was the beginning of the Bobby Kennedy - Johnson feud. It has smoldered deep, will never be smothered.

On Johnson's biggest day -- his inaugural on Jan. 20, 1965, following his landslide triumph over Barry Goldwater - Kennedy made a show of visiting his brother's grave in Arlington. He arrived at the graveside in the morning, but because no photographers were around he came back again in the afternoon.

There could be no mistaking the message of the picture, which marred LBJ's inauguration. It was Kennedy's way of reminding the world who should have been President.

Subsequently, Kennedy has let it be known that he is ready to step into his brother's place if only Johnson will step aside. The hint was put most bluntly by Kennedy - intimate Ted Sorensen, who pointed out that three other vice presidents who had ascended to the presidency in this century had not run for a second term.

"If Mr. Johnson of his own accord chooses to retire," said Sorensen, "no one can call that a retreat from the historical pattern when it would in reality be fidelity to it."

But President Johnson has no intention of abdicating to clear the way for Bobby Kennedy. If he should decide to retire from the White House. He would use his influence at the Democratic convention to block Kennedy's nomination, in favor of Hubert Humphrey.

Furthermore Johnson is a man who believes in gratitude and he remembers how in Bobby Kennedy's only bid for public office he was elected to the senate from New York in 1964 by a 719,693 margin after he, LBJ, campaigned up and down the state for him. Johnson's majority was 2,669,597.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

UNION CHIEFS WARN:
No Wage Freeze Unless All Profits, Dividends, Prices, Professional Fees, Incomes Are Frozen, Too

Washington, D. C.: -- Trouble is that neither Lyndon Johnson nor those in the White House advice-giving circle have had the time to read the small print in the records of labor chiefs who have been cheering him as their political leader.

That record says candidly that the big unions this year will be as unrestrained in their wage demands as they are in their cheers.

And that means there will be more strikes in '68 than there were in '67 when there were more strikes than in any year since 1953 -- no matter what the President asks for in his State of the Union message and the economic messages which follow.

Furthermore, a series of conversations between this correspondent and labor's major policy makers discloses that there will be no wage freeze or restraint unless also frozen are profits, dividends, rents, commissions, lawyers and doctors fees, "corporate executive compensation" including "salaries, bonuses and stock options," white collar salaries in the middle management echelon, and all returns on stock turnover and real estate transactions.

Furthermore, the AFL - CIO chiefs want a full partnership in the making of federal monetary and business policies. They want seats on the Federal Reserve Board and the creation of agencies to control corporate spending abroad as well as regulation of corporate business price-setting policies.

These labor leaders are tough negotiators. They know the President can't and won't agree to such twin cold - storage policies. So they are all set for a series of jousts with heavy industry which will more than match the '67 dueling.

Their rallying solgan in '68 will be higher escalator clauses to bring wages up with the cost of living. This will reverberate across the nation month after month no matter what the President asks for.

This is a political year. The President is a political man. And the AFL-CIO Executive Council which opens its midwinter session in Bal Harbour, Fla., on Feb. 19, will be a political demonstration.

All but two of the 29-man council lead unions. Most of them want to deliver higher wages to their people in '68 and '69.

There are all sorts of intricacies noticeable only to the insiders. For example, the Machinists' compact with the railroads expires Jan. 1, 1969. If it is true that the past is prologue, then the million-member union must set a record in '68 for what it will demand next New Year's Eve.

This record is being set right now by Walter Reuther and Roy Siemiller, the leaders of the auto and machinists unions, who already in contact over their joint assault on the aerospace industry. And they are not likely to take a freeze.

If Reuther had wanted to play it cold, he would have eased up on the auto industry. He knows that the President was not happy over his $1-per-hour settlement with the Big Three car makers.

A powerful member of the AFL-CIO council is I. W. Abel, leader of the United Steelworkers, who will not be so quiet a man for the rest of this year. Contracts covering at least 600,000 of his members are up beginning Jan. 31.

On that day 35,000 employes of the can industry may strike or, at best, delay the walkout for two weeks. Then it is aluminum and, finally, basic steel.

Take it for granted that "Abe" Abel has not said he is against strikes or that they are outmoded. Take it for granted that steel will strike in can, aluminum or basic production if the big union doesn't get a big cash package.

"Why should we," Abel told this inquirer the other day, "be asked to restrain ourselves on wages or bargaining when there is no effective restraint on prices and profits? We expect the same and more than the unions won in other major industries -- building trades, auto-rubber, etc."

There are other Executive Council members who lead big unions -- such as "the fighting Irishman" Joe Beirne, head of the Communication Workers of America. Some 500,000 employes in that field are up for new contracts. He respects the President, he said, but he will deliver a big wage increase to his people.

So if the President pressures them, they'll pressure him right back. The same forces which cheered him last month at the watering place will cool it next month in the same hotel.

What's a President to do. There have been discussions between Mr. Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers and the AFL-CIO Research Dept., headed by the scholarly Nat Goldfinger.

But economists are not truly realists. The economic advisers will cling to their wage-price guidelines in a futile gesture of restraint.

But basically, despite Mr. Goldfinger's erudition, it does not matter what he says. The White House and Secretary of Labor William Wirtz don't talk to the national AFL-CIO headquarters about all this.

True, the President confers with "Mr. Labor," George Meany, but it will be the Abels, the Beirnes, the Siemillers who will raise economic cain.

They're independent. They're autonomous. They're militant.

And so are the businessmen whom Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge calls in for those "we have got to count on you boys" sessions.

They can be charmed, as they were when Betty Furness sat in on one bull session. But there is no law which can force them or the labor leaders to refrain from the usual bargaining with the usual results.

And there is no workable formula to head off those "crippling work stoppages" as the President put it.

Everybody in and around the White House -- retiring Budget Director Charles Schultze (who had great influence with the President); new Budget Director Charles Zwick; trouble-shooter Joe Califano; Arthur Okun, the newest economic wizard -- have been seeking the magic formula, but no strike or wage gadgety has been developed in the past two years.

So '68 will be the most unfrozen year of all.

AMERICAN EDUCATION AND UNESCO PLANS

Many Americans are not ready to admit that the United Nations has done much to weaken the national loyalty which has been a source of great U. S. strength. Nevertheless, this is being accomplished slowly, and one of the causes is the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) which has some plans and ideas of its own regarding American education.

UNESCO distributes much information about the desirability of One World Government, the acceptance of which necessarily diminishes the importance of American nationalism. The words "patriot" and "patriotism" must confine themselves to the higher calling of One Worldism.

It is submitted that UNESCO's purpose is to establish a world government. This does not impugn the motives of those people who honestly believe that a world super state is the only way to world peace. However, we do not see the practicability of this idea as long as the communists, who believe in total subjugation of the individual, persist in their announced goal of ruling the world.

It is further submitted that the communists have always used the United Nations for a purpose quite different from the hopes held out for it by free people, and that a close study of UNESCO will reveal that this agency has been used to promote plans that would not serve the hopes of free people. The communists do not intend to be a part of a world government; they intend to control it. A careful study of UNESCO will reveal that a large portion of its educational effort has been in the direction of breaking down nationalism in order to promote world government.

For instance, the UNESCO booklet, "Toward World Understanding," says:

"One of the chief aims of education is to develop those qualities of citizenship which provide the foundation upon which international government must be based. . . The kindergarten or infant school has a significant part to play in the child's education. It can correct many of the errors of home training and prepare the child for membership in the world society. It's most frequently in the family that children are infected with nationalism (patriotism), hearing what is national extolled and what is foreign disparaged."

Still quoting from the UNESCO textbook:

"The school should, therefore, use the means described earlier to combat these family attitudes. As long as the child breathes the poisoned air of nationalism, (emphasis ours) education in world-mindedness can produce only rather precarious results." This is typical of UNESCO thinking.

There are UNESCO committees set up in almost every community in America. The literature of UNESCO is distributed in our public schools under the sponsorship of the National Education Association and the Parent Teachers Association. The machinery for distributing the UNESCO philosophy of one-world government is powerful, widely accepted and paid for mostly by American taxpayers. The motives of organizations who support UNESCO are not under attack: most of the people who support UNESCO are loyal citizens who haven't thought through the idea of One Worldism.

UNESCO has a two point program:

(1) Direct propaganda through a newly published UNESCO rewrite of world history, and (2) A treaty plan called a "Convention Against Discrimination in Education" which seeks international control of public and private schools.

The first of a succession of six UNESCO volumes called "A Scientific and Cultural History of the Development of Mankind" has already been published. This work is made available through libraries to American teachers and students.

UNESCO revealed its long-range plans for international control of education on December 13, 1960 when its 11th Session released the "Convention Against Discrimination in Education" to be submitted to all UN members for ratification as a treaty, binding the ratifying nations to reorganize and direct their educational institutions in compliance with the "Convention." This UNESCO convention may be brought up anytime for ratification and vote by the U. S. Senate. Every means possible will undoubtedly be tried by some to obtain Senate approval of the "Convention."

On July 16, 1961, Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles accurately summed up the effect of the UNESCO "Convention" in these words:

"Even the dangers of Federal Aid to Education fade to a shadow in the light of this measure. This resolution would substantially eliminate all local control of public education at state or local level. It would place the direction and regulation of all American education under Federal control. This resolution would override this Federal Control and make it subsidiary to UNESCO as a world court and final international arbiter of education. The resolution would subject private education to rigid restriction and conformity with respect to plan, staff, curriculum and policy. In other words, it would do away with freedom in education."

A former American Legion Commander, J. Addington Wagner, declared:

"The American Legion's objections to UNESCO can be placed in three major categories. Each of them is supported by voluminous evidence, all of which is taken from the public record. First, the American Legion believes that, from the days of its organization, UNESCO has been a haven for many individuals whose loyalty to the United States is severely compromised, if not submerged, by a demonstrated sympathy for communist objectives.

"Our second principal objection to UNESCO is that through its own publications, UNESCO appears to us to advocate world government.

"The third of our major objections to UNESCO is that it is, in our opinion, endeavoring to influence the educational system of the U. S. through the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO."

UNESCO has always been a haven for procommunists from both sides of the iron curtain. In 1951 Mrs. A. Jegalova was named Chief of the Secondary Educational Division of UNESCO. She is a former chief of the Inspection Division of the Soviet Ministry of Education.

There's no mistaking the purposes of UNESCO when one looks at the roster of the top brass of the past and present. As many as 20 Russians have been among the executive members of the organization in recent years. These are the people who have been formulating and controlling the policies of UNESCO which seeks to influence American children.

Due to these and other UNESCO indiscretions a number of schools have forbidden the use of UNESCO materials.

We cannot rely on American representatives in UNESCO to counteract the influence of such Soviet agents. We should remember the conclusion of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee:

"By far the worst danger spot from the standpoint of disloyalty and subversive activity among Americans employed by international organizations is UNESCO."

The Republicans and the Negroes in St. Louis do not like Copeland's map because it does not give them a safe Republican district and a safe Negro district.

But the 1967 redistricting map did just what they wanted and the three federal judges threw that map out.

Maybe we should just forget the whole thing and let the judges do the redistricting for they are ruling our laws anyway.

NEW YORK (AP) — Since this is an election year, now is a good time to run through a little drill in double talk.

Double talk, of course, is the art of saying one thing while meaning something else. It is a saving grace in any social situation, and valuable in all season, but in an election year it is positively indispensable.

For the beginning student, here is a small primer of political double talk phrases that will become only too familiar during the months of campaigning that lie ahead. Each phrase is followed by its literal translation.

"My gifted opponent"— The bum I'm running against.

"Naturally, every man is entitled to his own honest opinion." — So why should I listen to yours?

"I find the tremendous response to the announcement of my candidacy profoundly gratifying."— Mother phoned and said she'd vote for me, no matter whether anybody else did.

"Jim, to win public support you have to go out and meet the people, shake hands, ring doorbells."— We don't have enough dough in the campaign kitty to buy you television time.

"And now, friends, I'd like to have you meet the brave little woman who has stood faithfully by my side through 30 years of life's storm and sunshine." — Yes my wife sure picked a steady meal ticket when she married me.

"Everyone knows I have taken an unqualified position about the situation in Vietnam."— I think we should either stay there or get our, one of the other.

"I take my stand with George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson."— I also hope the leader of the 3rd Ward will back me up.

"My life is an open book."— Did you ever see so many empty pages?

"And if victory should perch upon our banner, you have my assurance that I will enter upon the duties of this high office with no prior pledges, promises, or commitments of any kind to anyone."— Let's win it first, boys. We can always cut up the loot later.

"The federal highway program has no firmer friend than I."— If it would get me any more votes, I'd agree to pave the countryside.

"I wouldn't accuse my esteemed opponent of prevaricating."— He's a bald-faced liar.

"If we believed in the validity of every so-called public poll, of course, there would be no need to hold the election."— Brother, if I had had the sense to take a private poll of my own, I'd never have entered this race.

"May the best man win,"— But if he does, where will that leave me?

The Missouri State Highway Patrol today predicted that over 600,000 automobiles will be stolen in the country this year unless motorists take some simple precautions.

Lieutenant C. C. Maddox, head of the Patrol's Auto Theft Bureau, said, "Statistics show that in many auto theft cases the owner had left his keys in the ignition or had left the doors unlocked. I urge every motorist, therefore, to make a New Year's resolution to always remove his key and lock the doors of his car whenever he parks. By following these simple precautions he will greatly reduce the chances of his automobile being stolen in 1968."

SOS FOR THE AMERICAN CITY

Just how sick is the American city?

Is it on its deathbed, as so many glum chums profess to believe? Or can it be saved by major surgery and the healing balm of lots of cool, green money?

One fact in its chance of recovery -- the attitude of city dwellers themselves -- is receiving careful attention by such diverse well-wishers as the learned associate professor of church and society at Harvard Divinity School, Dr. Rev. Harvey G. Cox, and the practical life insurance industry.

The danger that despairing city dwellers may toss in the towel and give up the fight has prompted Cox to turn to the classics, and the insurance industry to its pocketbook.

Cox has gone back to Prometheus and Sisyphus -- neither now active in civic affairs or politics, but both VIPs in Greek mythology.

(Prometheus, on the off-chance some of us may have forgotten, was a cocky character who stole fire from heaven, was sentenced by Zeus to a fate too gruesome to detail here but beat the rap. Sisyphys was a crafty and avaricious king of Corinth who went to Hades and found it strictly as advertised.)

Cox makes the point that city dwellers actually are schizophrenic in that they feel Promethian (all-powerful) in respect to conquering nature, but Sisyphysian (hopeless and frustrated) in overcoming social problems.

(The fact that Sisyphys sounds a lot like sissypuss is, of course, a coincidence.)

Both Promethian and Sisyphusian impulses are wrong, says Cox. Man, he believes, cannot overcome his despair over urban problems until he conceives a new vision of the city's future.

And here is where the life insurance industry comes in. It has given the morale of city dwellers a boost by announcing it will make available $1 billion in loans to promote urban housing programs and, later on, to develop new industry and thus new jobs for slum dwellers.

With the co-operation of Prometheus, the life insurance people, all the unannounced political candidates who seem to have solutions for everything. Mayor Lindsay of New York City (who says grappling with urban problems is a fun game) and thers, perhaps the American city can be saved.

So come on down to where the action is, Prommy, old boy, and give us a shot of the old power.

As for you, Sisyphus -- kindly stay where you are. You'd just find more of the same up here.

A BURGLAR'S ETHICS

Head of state, Nasser of Egypt has provided an instructive lesson on the morals of government. According to news releases, he has informed the world that Egypt would repay no loans to those who would not make new loans to Egypt. His threat was directed primarily toward the U. S. In case you are tempted to try Nasser's strategy on your local department store, it might pay to consider a word of advice--don't! When it comes to getting away with "head, I win -- tails, you lose" chicanery, private citizens are not in the same league with governments whose officials can write the rules to fit the game. Nasser's action illustrates why a government of limited powers is best.

ICEMAN COMETH IN A CENTURY OR TWO

Here's something for those who like to do their worrying well in advance:

Mean summer temperatures in Antarctica have apparently risen nearly four degrees since 1912, says Dr. John H. Merder of Ohio State University's Institute of Polar Studies.

Another nine degrees and we're in trouble. For at that point, he cautions, the unstable ice of the great shelves in the western part of the continent would begin to melt, raising sea levels and threatening low-lying areas of the world.

If the increasing pollution of the atmosphere by carbon dioxide has the "greenhouse" or warming effect many scientists believe it has, the trouble could start "perhaps within a century or two."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Fred Black bugging had sensational angles; Kennedy-Johnson feud began with Baker probe; LBJ doesn't intend to step aside for Bobby Kennedy.

WASHINGTON -- By all odds the most sensational eavesdropping case in the history of Washington was that conducted by the FBI two blocks from the White House in the Sheraton Carlton Hotel suite of lobbyist Fred Black.

There have been other interesting wiretapping cases, such as that conducted by the late Sen. Owen Brewster, R-Maine, on behalf of Pan American airways in the hotel suite of Howard Hughes, then owner of Trans World Airways. And there has been recent bugging by rival Natural Gas Pipeline companies.

But what makes the Fred Black bugging sensational is, first, the fact that it was adjacent to the VIP suite used by the state department to entertain distinguished foreign visitors, and the FBI's electronic devices were so strong that they couldn't help listening in on these visitors also.

Second, and more important, there was some indication that the attorney general who ordered the bugging, namely, Robert F. Kennedy, was interested in the activities of the then vice president of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Officially, the FBI was supposed to be investigating possible links between Black and Las Vegas gamblers. Certainly the FBI was not probing Black's income taxes. This was Internal Revenue's job and it finally convicted him -- a conviction thrown out of court when Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach and Deputy Attorney General Ramsey Clark forced the FBI to admit it had been listening in on Black and others on a wholesale scale for some years.

FBI RETALIATES

J. Edgar Hoover succeeded in getting Katzenbach eased out of the justice department in retaliation, and is now in the process of trying to put the skids under Ramsey Clark.

Regarding the black electronic bug, however, the FBI is smart. It doesn't like to get mixed up in spying on highly placed politicians, and its agents were most restrained when they recorded, for instance, that a senate "official" -- not a senator -- "engaged in activity with female" in the Black suite.

It also picked up some conversations by President Kennedy himself.

The name of the late Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma was also mentioned, together with that of Vice President Johnson and other southwestern friends of LBJ's. Johnson was involved in nothing incriminating, but his political opinions were asked as to who could win and who could not win in certain political races.

The FBI would have dropped the investigation like a hot potato when such big names were mentioned. For politics is nothing the FBI has any business listening in on.

Parenthetically, this might give the present President of the United States a lesson in the dangers of wiretapping at a time when he is about to give congress the green light on a new wiretapping law -- despite the opposition of his attorney general.

BOBBY K. VS. LBJ

Two facts stand out regarding the FBI wiretapping of Black's apartment as all-important:

1 -- The FBI has confided to President Johnson that Bobby Kennedy personally ordered the bugging.

2-- Attorney General Kennedy ordered the FBI to make a thorough probe of Bobby Baker, even assigned some of his own personal justice department investigators to go after Baker, as if he didn't trust the FBI. Finally, he kept a secret copy of the Baker findings in his own office safe.

Since Baker as senate secretary had long worked for Johnson as senate majority leader, such a probe must have been aimed at the then vice president. As it turned out, Baker's wheeling and dealing started after Johnson left the senate, and the late Sen. Kerr, not Johnson, was involved as Baker's mentor and benefactor.

Despite this, stories were leaked to the press -- though never proved --that LBJ was involved.

BEGINNING OF FEUD

All this was the beginning of the Bobby Kennedy - Johnson feud. It has smoldered deep, will never be smothered.

On Johnson's biggest day -- his inaugural on Jan. 20, 1965, following his landslide triumph over Barry Goldwater - Kennedy made a show of visiting his brother's grave in Arlington. He arrived at the graveside in the morning, but because no photographers were around he came back again in the afternoon.

There could be no mistaking the message of the picture, which marred LBJ's inauguration. It was Kennedy's way of reminding the world who should have been President.

Subsequently, Kennedy has let it be known that he is ready to step into his brother's place if only Johnson will step aside. The hint was put most bluntly by Kennedy - intimate Ted Sorensen, who pointed out that three other vice presidents who had ascended to the presidency in this century had not run for a second term.

"If Mr. Johnson of his own accord chooses to retire," said Sorensen, "no one can call that a retreat from the historical pattern when it would in reality be fidelity to it."

But President Johnson has no intention of abdicating to clear the way for Bobby Kennedy. If he should decide to retire from the White House. He would use his influence at the Democratic convention to block Kennedy's nomination, in favor of Hubert Humphrey.

Furthermore Johnson is a man who believes in gratitude and he remembers how in Bobby Kennedy's only bid for public office he was elected to the senate from New York in 1964 by a 719,693 margin after he, LBJ, campaigned up and down the state for him. Johnson's majority was 2,669,597.

H.L. Hunt Says

"BRIDGE-BUILDING" TO OUR ENEMIES

There is no excuse for using the services of the U. S. Government and its tax dollars to promote trade with Soviet Russia when, according to figures released by Congressman Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, Russia supplies more than 80 per cent of the war materials going to North Vietnam.

This incredible policy, called "bridge-building" by the Administration, claims that by dealing with Russia we will somehow soften the hearts of their leaders and make them more kindly disposed toward us. Such an agrument sounds as though it might have been made by a naive and innocent child rather than by persons highly placed in our State Department.

In time of war there can be no meaningful "bridges" to the enemy until he stops shooting. This simple and obvious fact is recognized whenever a smaller scale conflict breaks out such as the recent Arab-Israeli war. Then, the first objective of the peacemakers is to bring about a truce. But when we are fighting communists in Vietnam, we are supposed to trade with the enemy even while he is actually shooting at us, without placing conditions of any kind on the aid we are giving.

Every month Russian and Polish ships deliver 178,500 tons of cargo to North Vietnam, according to Congressman Laird's figures. All of our trade with Russia makes it much easier for the Kremlin to send this aid to Ho Chi Minh.

The bridges we are building to Moscow by this fantastic policy are highroads of death for our men in the jungles of Southeast Asia. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

UNION CHIEFS WARN:
No Wage Freeze Unless All Profits, Dividends, Prices, Professional Fees, Incomes Are Frozen, Too

Washington, D. C.: -- Trouble is that neither Lyndon Johnson nor those in the White House advice-giving circle have had the time to read the small print in the records of labor chiefs who have been cheering him as their political leader.

That record says candidly that the big unions this year will be as unrestrained in their wage demands as they are in their cheers.

And that means there will be more strikes in '68 than there were in '67 when there were more strikes than in any year since 1953 -- no matter what the President asks for in his State of the Union message and the economic messages which follow.

Furthermore, a series of conversations between this correspondent and labor's major policy makers discloses that there will be no wage freeze or restraint unless also frozen are profits, dividends, rents, commissions, lawyers and doctors fees, "corporate executive compensation" including "salaries, bonuses and stock options," white collar salaries in the middle management echelon, and all returns on stock turnover and real estate transactions.

Furthermore, the AFL - CIO chiefs want a full partnership in the making of federal monetary and business policies. They want seats on the Federal Reserve Board and the creation of agencies to control corporate spending abroad as well as regulation of corporate business price-setting policies.

These labor leaders are tough negotiators. They know the President can't and won't agree to such twin cold - storage policies. So they are all set for a series of jousts with heavy industry which will more than match the '67 dueling.

Their rallying solgan in '68 will be higher escalator clauses to bring wages up with the cost of living. This will reverberate across the nation month after month no matter what the President asks for.

This is a political year. The President is a political man. And the AFL-CIO Executive Council which opens its midwinter session in Bal Harbour, Fla., on Feb. 19, will be a political demonstration.

All but two of the 29-man council lead unions. Most of them want to deliver higher wages to their people in '68 and '69.

There are all sorts of intricacies noticeable only to the insiders. For example, the Machinists' compact with the railroads expires Jan. 1, 1969. If it is true that the past is prologue, then the million-member union must set a record in '68 for what it will demand next New Year's Eve.

This record is being set right now by Walter Reuther and Roy Siemiller, the leaders of the auto and machinists unions, who already in contact over their joint assault on the aerospace industry. And they are not likely to take a freeze.

If Reuther had wanted to play it cold, he would have eased up on the auto industry. He knows that the President was not happy over his $1-per-hour settlement with the Big Three car makers.

A powerful member of the AFL-CIO council is I. W. Abel, leader of the United Steelworkers, who will not be so quiet a man for the rest of this year. Contracts covering at least 600,000 of his members are up beginning Jan. 31.

On that day 35,000 employes of the can industry may strike or, at best, delay the walkout for two weeks. Then it is aluminum and, finally, basic steel.

Take it for granted that "Abe" Abel has not said he is against strikes or that they are outmoded. Take it for granted that steel will strike in can, aluminum or basic production if the big union doesn't get a big cash package.

"Why should we," Abel told this inquirer the other day, "be asked to restrain ourselves on wages or bargaining when there is no effective restraint on prices and profits? We expect the same and more than the unions won in other major industries -- building trades, auto-rubber, etc."

There are other Executive Council members who lead big unions -- such as "the fighting Irishman" Joe Beirne, head of the Communication Workers of America. Some 500,000 employes in that field are up for new contracts. He respects the President, he said, but he will deliver a big wage increase to his people.

So if the President pressures them, they'll pressure him right back. The same forces which cheered him last month at the watering place will cool it next month in the same hotel.

What's a President to do. There have been discussions between Mr. Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers and the AFL-CIO Research Dept., headed by the scholarly Nat Goldfinger.

But economists are not truly realists. The economic advisers will cling to their wage-price guidelines in a futile gesture of restraint.

But basically, despite Mr. Goldfinger's erudition, it does not matter what he says. The White House and Secretary of Labor William Wirtz don't talk to the national AFL-CIO headquarters about all this.

True, the President confers with "Mr. Labor," George Meany, but it will be the Abels, the Beirnes, the Siemillers who will raise economic cain.

They're independent. They're autonomous. They're militant.

And so are the businessmen whom Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge calls in for those "we have got to count on you boys" sessions.

They can be charmed, as they were when Betty Furness sat in on one bull session. But there is no law which can force them or the labor leaders to refrain from the usual bargaining with the usual results.

And there is no workable formula to head off those "crippling work stoppages" as the President put it.

Everybody in and around the White House -- retiring Budget Director Charles Schultze (who had great influence with the President); new Budget Director Charles Zwick; trouble-shooter Joe Califano; Arthur Okun, the newest economic wizard -- have been seeking the magic formula, but no strike or wage gadgety has been developed in the past two years.

So '68 will be the most unfrozen year of all.

Q—What is the distinction between purebred horses and thoroughbred horses?

Q—How do sea snails move?

A—By means of almost invisible waves of muscular movement which pass along the length of the foot and cause it to move forward.

Raiders Try to Make Hay While Sun Shines

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Now that John Rauch has the weathermen on his side, he's become a clockwatcher.

The Oakland coach is concerned that his Raiders might not have enough time to properly prepare for Sunday's Super Bowl date with the Green Bay Packers.

The Raiders worked for 90 minutes in bright sunshine Thursday, a distinct change from the driving rainstorm they practice in the day before.

"This is more like the kind of weather I expected," said Rauch, enjoying the shirtsleeve climate.

"Our problem now is having enough time to get all our work completed. Preparing for a team like the Packers isn't the easiest thing in the world to do," Rauch continued. "The rain didn't help."

Oakland ran through a spirited, tough practice Wednesday but it was necessarily limited by the storm. "We got the most out of it we could in view of the conditions," said Rauch.

Thursday's sunshine was a welcome change and the Raiders ran through their final full drill in pads.

"We'll taper off from now on," said Rauch.

Meanwhile, at Fort Lauderdale, the Packers drilled for an hour in their best workout yet.

"The sluggishness was gone," said Coach Vince Lombardi. "It was a real fine workout. We'll go for an hour again Friday and then maybe 10 or 15 minutes on Saturday."

Lombardi activated Dick Capp, a rookie linebacker and tight end, for Sunday's game. Capp, who played in two of Green Bay's 14 regular season games, thus qualifies for a cut of the Super Bowl payoff. He'll get just over $2,000 if the Packers win and a little more than $1,000 if they lose.

A full winning share, of course, is worth $15,000 per man with losers collecting $7,500 each. At those prices, neither coach sees any problem in getting his team up for the game.

"I'm no psychiatrist," laughed Rauch. "You can't help being impressed with Green Bay. You know you're playing the best. I've never believed in being awed by a team. I've always felt that you have a chance to win any game you play.

"We're loose and we'll go into the game that way," the Oakland coach concluded.

The Raiders might be expected to get up for the game but what about the Packers, who've won so often and for so long?

Lombardi just smiled.

"If a man makes a million dollars," the Packer boss said, "he wants to make two million. We'll be up."

Canada's Nancy Greene, the sensation of the skiing season, placed fourth followed by 15-year-old Debbie Meyer, the world's outstanding freestyle swimmer.

Komives Is Out at Home

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — As far as Howard Komives is concerned, there's no such thing as the home-court advantage. He would just as soon hit the road, Jack.

A 6-1 guard, now in his fourth season with the New York Knicks, Komives has been the object of scorn and criticism at Madison Square Garden. The boos and obscenities are being hurled at him with an increasingly louder roar now that Bill Bradley has joined the team. The crowd cheers Bradley's every move but becomes distraught when the coach substitutes with Komives.

In a road game against the Lakers recently, Howard went in at the start of the second period. Within five minutes he had forced Jerry West to lose the ball, grabbed three rebounds, hit three straight jump shots from far out and made two free throws. He finished the quarter with 16 points and totaled 22 for the game. He also had a technical foul called on him. The Los Angeles fans did not boo.

Komives had been a high-scoring gunner at Bowling Green and continued to pile up points when he joined the NBA. A handsome kid with a crew cut, he was popular with the fans. They called him by his nickname, Butch.

Today, they call him all kinds of names.

What happened was that the Knicks decided Komives should become a playmaker. He was told to shoot less and pass more. He began throwing the ball away and blowing simple plays. As one New York writer put it: "It wasn't his groove, man."

Although Howard denies it, the treatment he receives from the hometown fans obviously affects his play at the Garden. After the first few games this season, Komives made it known he wanted to be traded if coach Dick McGuire didn't play him regularly. This angered the fans even more.

"The coach told me he just couldn't play me in the Garden," Howard says. "Deep down I really don't want to be traded but the situation is now between me and the management."

There are a few players in the NBA—like the Lakers' Darrel Imhoff and Happy Hairston of the Royals—who occasionally draw catcalls from the home folks.

"But nobody gets the abuse that Howard gets," said McGuire, who has experienced the same treatment.

When Komives was on the bench, the New York fans took their wrath out on McGuire—until he was fired recently.

Draper, Maravich Come Through Under Pressure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Draper and Pete Maravich both faced pressure foul situations. Both came through.

Drake's Draper was at the foul line for two free throws with one second left and the Crusaders tied 74-74 with Wichita State Thursday night.

He missed the first one but made the second, and Drake won its 11th game in 13 starts.

It was the other side of the coin for Louisiana State's Maravich, who played most of the second half against Tulane facing disqualification because he had committed four fouls.

But this didn't seem to greatly impair the helter-skelter style of the nation's leading major-college scorer. He poured in 52 points as LSU beat Tulane 100-91 at New Orleans to boost its record to 9-3. Maravich has scored 540 points in those 12 games for a 45.8 average.

Draper got the two chances to score his 14th point of the night at Des Moines, Iowa, when Drake's Al Williams stole the ball with 38 seconds remaining. Willie McCarter led Drake scorers with 18 points. Warren Armstrong got 22 for Wichita, whose leading scorer, Ron Washington, fouled out after scoring just nine points.

The St. Louis at Dayton game also was decided by a foul shot. This one was made by Bob Hooper with 20 seconds left for a 57-56 Dayton victory. Don May, who tied the game at 56-56 with 3:14 left, scored 21 points and tied his own Dayton record of 28 rebounds. Rich Niemann paced St. Louis with 18 points.

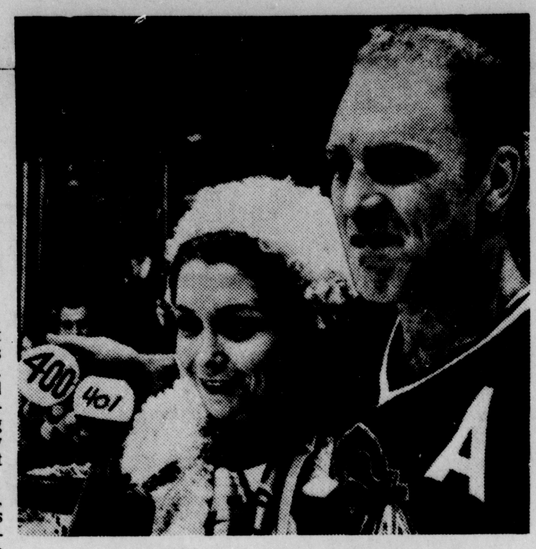

None of The Associated Press Top Ten played Thursday night. And only top-ranked UCLA is scheduled to see action tonight, against California.

In another Thursday night game, Kentucky Wesleyan, the No. 2 small college team, lost its second straight game, 63-62 to Southern Illinois at Owensboro, Ky.

Again it was foul shots that made the difference. Bobby Jackson sank two with 1:07 to play to give the victory to Southern Illinois, a former small-college power, now listed as a major college.

Home-court victories included Marquette's 71-56 trouncing of Wisconsin, Mississippi State's 80-64 drubbing of Delta State and New Mexico State's 81-71 defeat of Southern Colorado.

Virginia edged Clemson 95-92, Virginia Tech topped Richmond 80-71, Rhode Island walloped Northeastern 81-66 and San Jose State downed St. Mary's, Calif., 76-69.

(NEA Telephoto)

Packers Picked for 2-Touchdown Victory

MIAMI (AP) — With all due respect to young Daryle Lamonica and his 30 touchdown passes that led Oakland to its first American Football League title, Sunday's Super Bowl game belongs to Bart Starr and the proven old pros from Green Bay.

In the last go round of a long, long season, the old hand-picker has to go the Packers to make it two in a row for the National Football League over the AFL champs. Let's take a shot at the score:

Green Bay 31, Oakland 16.

If it's close, 40-year-old George Blanda and his ability to kick the long field goal could mean an upset victory for the two-touchdown underdogs from Oakland. But that would mean that Oakland must be able to clamp down on Starr and his wide receivers— Boyd Dowler and Carroll Dale— while cracking the stubborn Packer defense.

Oakland does not appear to have the man-for-man talent of the Kansas City Chiefs, who fell before the Packers last year 35-10. Still, the Raiders must have a better over-all team because they marched through the AFL with a 13-1 record and beat Kansas City twice, 23-21 and 44-22.

Johnny Rauch's Raiders led the league in total defense and rushing defense and were first in scoring with 468 points. Their offense was third in average yardage, both running and passing.

Green Bay was ninth in the NFL in total offense, second in running and 11th in passing. It was first in total defense, 13th (an amazing figure) in running defense and first in pass defense.

Although the Packers allowed an average of 137 yards per game on running during the regular season, they gave up but 11 touchdowns on the ground and 13 in the air for a total of 24. The Raiders, who scored 58 touchdowns to 39 for Green Bay, yielded 29 in all, 11 on runs and 18 on passes.

But all of this presupposes that the competition is equal, and the figures do not back that up. The Packers did win the first Super Bowl and the NFL did take 13 of 16 pre-season exhibitions.

Starr, a 33-year-old veteran of 12 pro seasons, has been here before. He proved his cool once again on that frigid New Year's Eve in Green Bay when he sneaked home from the one for the winner with 13 seconds to go. Although he was below par in early season and was intercepted nine times in the first two games, he closed strong.

Starr is a past master at probing a defense and finding the holes. If the deep defense shuts off Dowler and Dale, he will go to Donny Anderson and Chuck Mercein.

Lamonica, 25, in his fifth year, actually is completing his first as a No. 1 quarterback. He had a great year with 30 touchdown passes and 220 completions in 425 attempts. He was intercepted 20 times to Starr's 17. It remains to be seen how he will react to the Packer rush and how skillful he will be in working on the strong Green Bay linebackers with his passes.

Cardinals Deal Johnson to Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)— The Cincinnati Reds traded Dick Simpson Thursday to the St. Loui Cardinals for Alex Johnson. Both are outfielders.

Simpson, 24, hit .259 for the Reds last season in 24 games.

Johnson, 25, broke into the major leagues in 1964 with the Philadelphia Phils and hit .304 in 43 games. He batted .294 in 97 games in 1965 and then was traded to the Cardinals. Last year, with the Cards, he hit .223 in 81 games.

YOUR MUNICIPAL POWER SYSTEM LIKE OWNING YOUR HOME!
If you're buying a home, every monthly payment adds to your ownership . . . gives you something more than a stack of rent receipts.
It's about the same story with your municipal power system. As your power system grows in value, you get the benefits—because you are a citizen-owner.
The money you pay for electricity stays at home, and every dollar of it works for you—through better electric service, reasonable rates, increased assets of your local electric utility, and contributions to your local government.

Raiders Try to Make Hay While Sun Shines

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Now that John Rauch has the weatherman on his side, he's become a clockwatcher.

The Oakland coach is concerned that his Raiders might not have enough time to properly prepare for Sunday's Super Bowl date with the Green Bay Packers.

The Raiders worked for 90 minutes in bright sunshine Thursday, a distinct change from the driving rainstorm they practice in the day before.

"This is more like the kind of weather I expected," said Rauch, enjoying the shirtsleeve climate.

"Our problem now is having enough time to get all our work completed. Preparing for a team like the Packers isn't the easiest thing in the world to do," Rauch continued. "The rain didn't help."

Oakland ran through a spirited, tough practice Wednesday but it was necessarily limited by the storm. "We got the most out of it we could in view of the conditions," said Rauch.

Thursday's sunshine was a welcome change and the Raiders ran through their final full drill in pads.

"We'll taper off from now on," said Rauch.

Meanwhile, at Fort Lauderdale, the Packers drilled for an hour in their best workout yet.

"The sluggishness was gone," said Coach Vince Lombardi. "It was a real fine workout. We'll go for an hour again Friday and then maybe 10 or 15 minutes on Saturday."

Lombardi activated Dick Capp, a rookie linebacker and tight end, for Sunday's game. Capp, who played in two of Green Bay's 14 regular season games, thus qualifies for a cut of the Super Bowl payoff. He'll get just over $2,000 if the Packers win and a little more than $1,000 if they lose.

A full winning share, of course, is worth $15,000 per man with losers collecting $7,500 each. At those prices, neither coach sees any problem in getting his team up for the game.

"I'm no psychiatrist," laughed Rauch. "You can't help being impressed with Green Bay. You know you're playing the best. I've never believed in being awed by a team. I've always felt that you have a chance to win any game you play.

"We're loose and we'll go into the game that way," the Oakland coach concluded.

The Raiders might be expected to get up for the game but what about the Packers, who've won so often and for so long?

Lombardi just smiled.

"If a man makes a million dollars," the Packer boss said, "he wants to make two million. We'll be up."

Billie Jean King Named Female Athlete of Year

NEW YORK (AP) -- Billie Jean King, the bouncy, outspoken housewife who reestablished America's supremacy in women's tennis, beat out golf queen Kathy Whitworth and figure skating champion Peggy Fleming in being named the Female Athlete of the Year for 1967 today.

In a vote of 372 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the annual Associated Press poll, Mrs. King, from Long Beach, Calif., drew 196 first-place votes and 854 points.

Miss Whitworth, the leading female athlete in 1965 and 1966, had 70 first-place votes and 523 points while the 18-year-old Miss Fleming was third with 43 votes for No. 1 and 392 points. The points were awarded on a basis of three for a first-place vote, two for second and one for third.

Canada's Nancy Greene, the sensation of the skiing season, placed fourth followed by 15-year-old Debbie Meyer, the world's outstanding freestyle swimmer.

Komives Is Out at Home

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — As far as Howard Komives is concerned, there's no such thing as the home-court advantage. He would just as soon hit the road, Jack.

A 6-1 guard, now in his fourth season with the New York Knicks, Komives has been the object of scorn and criticism at Madison Square Garden. The boos and obscenities are being hurled at him with an increasingly louder roar now that Bill Bradley has joined the team. The crowd cheers Bradley's every move but becomes distraught when the coach substitutes with Komives.

In a road game against the Lakers recently, Howard went in at the start of the second period. Within five minutes he had forced Jerry West to lose the ball, grabbed three rebounds, hit three straight jump shots from far out and made two free throws. He finished the quarter with 16 points and totaled 22 for the game. He also had a technical foul called on him. The Los Angeles fans did not boo.

Draper, Maravich Come Through Under Pressure

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Draper and Pete Maravich both faced pressure foul situations. Both came through.

Drake's Draper was at the foul line for two free throws with one second left and the Crusaders tied 74-74 with Wichita State Thursday night.

He missed the first one but made the second, and Drake won its 11th game in 13 starts.

It was the other side of the coin for Louisiana State's Maravich, who played most of the second half against Tulane facing disqualification because he had committed four fouls.

But this didn't seem to greatly impair the helter-skelter style of the nation's leading major-college scorer. He poured in 52 points as LSU beat Tulane 100-91 at New Orleans to boost its record to 9-3. Maravich has scored 540 points in those 12 games for a 45.8 average.

Draper got the two chances to score his 14th point of the night at Des Moines, Iowa, when Drake's Al Williams stole the ball with 38 seconds remaining. Willie McCarter led Drake scorers with 18 points. Warren Armstrong got 22 for Wichita, whose leading scorer, Ron Washington, fouled out after scoring just nine points.

The St. Louis at Dayton game also was decided by a foul shot. This one was made by Bob Hooper with 20 seconds left for a 57-56 Dayton victory. Don May, who tied the game at 56-56 with 3:14 left, scored 21 points and tied his own Dayton record of 28 rebounds. Rich Niemann paced St. Louis with 18 points.

None of The Associated Press Top Ten played Thursday night. And only top-ranked UCLA is scheduled to see action tonight, against California.

In another Thursday night game, Kentucky Wesleyan, the No. 2 small college team, lost its second straight game, 63-62 to Southern Illinois at Owensboro, Ky.

Again it was foul shots that made the difference. Bobby Jackson sank two with 1:07 to play to give the victory to Southern Illinois, a former small-college power, now listed as a major college.

Home-court victories included Marquette's 71-56 trouncing of Wisconsin, Mississippi State's 80-64 drubbing of Delta State and New Mexico State's 81-71 defeat of Southern Colorado.

Virginia edged Clemson 95-92, Virginia Tech topped Richmond 80-71, Rhode Island walloped Northeastern 81-66 and San Jose State downed St. Mary's, Calif., 76-69.

(NEA Telephoto)

Packers Picked for 2-Touchdown Victory

MIAMI (AP) — With all due respect to young Daryle Lamonica and his 30 touchdown passes that led Oakland to its first American Football League title, Sunday's Super Bowl game belongs to Bart Starr and the proven old pros from Green Bay.

In the last go round of a long, long season, the old hand-picker has to go the Packers to make it two in a row for the National Football League over the AFL champs. Let's take a shot at the score:

Green Bay 31, Oakland 16.

If it's close, 40-year-old George Blanda and his ability to kick the long field goal could mean an upset victory for the two-touchdown underdogs from Oakland. But that would mean that Oakland must be able to clamp down on Starr and his wide receivers— Boyd Dowler and Carroll Dale— while cracking the stubborn Packer defense.

Oakland does not appear to have the man-for-man talent of the Kansas City Chiefs, who fell before the Packers last year 35-10. Still, the Raiders must have a better over-all team because they marched through the AFL with a 13-1 record and beat Kansas City twice, 23-21 and 44-22.

Johnny Rauch's Raiders led the league in total defense and were first in scoring with 468 points. Their offense was third in average yardage, both running and passing.

Green Bay was ninth in the NFL in total offense, second in running and 11th in passing. It was first in total defense, 13th (an amazing figure) in running defense and first in pass defense.

Although the Packers allowed an average of 137 yards per game on running during the regular season, they gave up but 11 touchdowns on the ground and 13 in the air for a total of 24. The Raiders, who scored 58 touchdowns to 39 for Green Bay, yielded 29 in all, 11 on runs and 18 on passes.

But all of this presupposes that the competition is equal, and the figures do not back that up. The Packers did win the first Super Bowl and the NFL did take 13 of 16 pre-season exhibitions.

Starr, a 33-year-old veteran of 12 pro seasons, has been here before. He proved his cool once again on that frigid New Year's Eve in Green Bay when he sneaked home from the one for the winner with 13 seconds to go. Although he was below par in early season and was intercepted nine times in the first two games, he closed strong.

Starr is a past master at probing a defense and finding the holes. If the deep defense shuts off Dowler and Dale, he will go to Donny Anderson and Chuck Mercein.

Lamonica, 25, in his fifth year, actually is completing his first as a No. 1 quarterback. He had a great year with 30 touchdown passes and 220 completions in 425 attempts. He was intercepted 20 times to Starr's 17. It remains to be seen how he will react to the Packer rush and how skillful he will be in working on the strong Green Bay linebackers with his passes.

Cardinals Deal Johnson to Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)— The Cincinnati Reds traded Dick Simpson Thursday to the St. Loui Cardinals for Alex Johnson. Both are outfielders.

Simpson, 24, hit .259 for the Reds last season in 24 games.

Johnson, 25, broke into the major leagues in 1964 with the Philadelphia Phils and hit .304 in 43 games. He batted .294 in 97 games in 1965 and then was traded to the Cardinals. Last year, with the Cards, he hit .223 in 81 games.

YOUR MUNICIPAL POWER SYSTEM LIKE OWNING YOUR HOME!
If you're buying a home, every monthly payment adds to your ownership . . . gives you something more than a stack of rent receipts.
It's about the same story with your municipal power system. As your power system grows in value, you get the benefits—because you are a citizen-owner.
The money you pay for electricity stays at home, and every dollar of it works for you—through better electric service, reasonable rates, increased assets of your local electric utility, and contributions to your local government.
And, just as in owning a home, local consumer ownership of your electric utility means local management and control. Municipal ownership keeps the benefits of a growing asset in the hands of home folks.

Progress in Air Control Search Slow

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)-Lewis E. Green told the House Appropriations Committee Thursday the Air Conservation Commission has been unable to get any agreement with Illinois that will help control air pollution in the St. Louis area.

Green, chairman of the Missouri Air Conservation Commission, said no state can solve the air pollution problem. In areas where industry and urban congestion straddle a state line, as around St. Louis, it may mean federal control finally.

In its first two years, Green said, the Missouri Commission has established a comprehensive code for the Missouri portion of the St. Louis area, including St. Louis city and the counties of St. Louis, St. Charles and Jefferson.

It also has submitted a plan for a Missouri-Kansas compact to help control air pollution in the Greater Kansas City area on the western side of the state. Missouri has enacted the necessary compact legislation and Green said he hoped Kansas would follow suit this year.

He also reported a study of the causes of air pollution in the Kansas City area is expected to be completed within a month.

He said the commission staff has met requests from 36 counties for inspection of suspected sources of air contamination.

Green told the committee the staff hopes to study the problem of contamination from Missouri's growing charcoal industry. But he conceded the kilns, generally located in remote hill country areas, do not constitute a health hazard.

He said pollution sampling devices have been installed in the St. Joseph and Joplin areas. Additional ones are planned for the Iron-Reynolds county area where lead and iron smelters may soon be in operation.

Sampling devices also are planned for the areas surrounding Columbia, Cape Girardeau, Springfield, Jefferson City, Hannibal and Kirksville, Green said.

Methodist Foundation Post to Hawkins

ST. LOUIS (AP) - J. Clinton Hawkins, an active Methodist layman, has been named executive director of the Missouri Methodist Foundation, Inc.

The office of Missouri Bishop Eugene M. Frank announced the selection in St. Louis.

Hawkins retired Jan. 1 as manager of the Wheeling Corrugating Co. of St. Louis.

Seniors Starting Over as Freshmen to Enter St. John's

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Randy Runyon would have been a Harvard senior this year. But he is not.

He's a St. John's freshman.

With little more than a year standing between him and a Harvard degree, he chose to start college all over again at the tiny nonsectarian college in Annapolis, Md.

He's not the first student to make this surprising move.

The same thing happened at the college's new western campus, which snuggles in New Mexico's Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

Linda Carithers, who was a junior on the dean's list at the University of New Mexico, wanted to transfer to the little college which refuses to accept transfer students.

Like Randy, she "flunked" herself into the freshman class.

Why would good students take this great leap backward?

Randy Runyon did it because he says he wanted to go forward.

"Backward and forward depend on where you want to go," he says.

"College should give you an education as well as a degree. I was getting a degree but not an education.

"I was getting professional training, but an education is something different. Education should prepare you to deal with all of life, how to make sense of what's going on around you and how to appreciate what is written and said about it.

"I want to be educated as a human being, not trained as a physicist or an historian. That can come later."

Randy did not leap blindly. He thought about it for more than a year.

"It was a big decision, especially financially. Both my wife, Diana, and I have National Merit scholarships, but mine expires soon. It'll be very hard going.

"But," Randy continued, "it's worth it.

"The experience at St. John's itself is worth it. There is real intellectual excitement here, a joy to learning. The students are here because they want to be. If a student doesn't enjoy it, he leaves.

"At Harvard very few people enjoy their studies. They endure them for the sake of a degree. And Harvard is probably a lot better than most places."

Each year a substantial number of students in good standing at the most distinguished colleges in the country apply for admission to the freshman class at St. John's.

But why does St. John's refuse to accept credits earned at other colleges?

"We have a single, all-required curriculm," explains President Richard D. Weigle.

"We are not an educational cafeteria. We do not have course offerings. We have a program. Our program has a beginning and that is where all students must begin.

"Like the acts of a play, each year of the St. John's program is built on the one before.

"We refuse to compromise the integrity of our program even though we are well aware of the difficulties which face a student who wishes to transfer. He must make a great sacrifice of time and money. Happily, our scholarship funds can help to ease the financial problems."

The college is as stubborn about its size as it is about its program.

Responding to the pressure to expand, St. John's doubled its enrollment without changing its size.

It started a whole new college 2,000 miles away.

In 1964, a small band of faculty and administrators set out from Annapolis, where the college has been located since 1696, and established a colony campus in Santa Fe. In 1965, St. John's was both the third oldest and third newest college in the country.

Some things about St. John's are very new.

Randy's classes are a model of what is called the "student-centered school." Instruction depends more on the activity and initiative of the 10 students who make up Randy's tutorial group than on the pronouncements of the supervising faculty member.

"He can't do our thinking for us," explains Randy. "We learn by thrashing things out, by finding each others mistakes. We're always involved.

"I didn't know how it would be, being in with freshman again, but it's great. Three of us in my group have been transfered from other colleges, but that works to our advantage. We learn by teaching each other. The more I can help someone else to learn, the more I can learn myself."

Other things about St. John's are very old.

It insists on old-fashioned intellectual discipline. There may be "joy" as Randy says, but there is also a lot of hard work. It is the only nondenominational college which requires all students to study ancient Greek.

It also requires them to study Einstein's papers on relativity.

St. John's agrees with Randy that you can go forward by going backward.

The college has turned to the classics in order to provide a thoroughly modern education which will prepare a student for the future as well as the present.

Dean John Kieffer describes the classics as "writings of any period which offer light on the deepest, most commonly encountered problems of human living.

"St. John's strives to prepare its students for the future not by having them memorize results of the latest research or read the books which are the fad this year, but by facing up to the fundamental questions which are always present to men."

Area Leads in Crop Payments

SEDALIA (AP) - Missouri farmers were paid $1,361,000 for crop issues last year, the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. reported Tuesday.

More than 2,500 farmers in 61 counties received the payments.

Two-thirds of the money went to growers in seven Delta counties where excess moisture seriously curtailed the cotton yield. Corn damages ranked second, soybean losses third and aheat fourth.

Payments totaled more than $150,000 each in Dunklin, Mississippi and Stoddard counties, and more than $125,000 in New Madrid County.

SIX EX-SPARTANS COACH

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— The addition of two former Michigan State players on Duffy Daugherty's coaching staff brings to six the number of former Spartans who are coaching on the campus.

Dave Smith, an end in the early 50s, is now assistant backfield coach. George Perles, a State lineman 10 years ago, was added to the staff during the summer.

Other ex-Spartans on Duffy's staff are Henry Bullough, defensive line; Gordon Serr, offensive line; Al Dorow, offensive backfield, and Vince Carillot, defensive backfield.

Daugherty's other two aides are end coach Cal Stoll, out of Minnesota, and Ed Rutherford from Wayne State.

Dawdling May Aid Red Cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have good reason to kick themselves for dawdling. At the same time Ho Chi Minh, the chief dawdler, may have done communism one of its greatest favors.

The dawdling was in failing to try to take over South Vietnam faster. The favor was in making Americans, after their experience in this war, perhaps a little more reluctant to get into another one like it.

It's impossible at this time to draw a sharp distinction, if any, between the Viet Cong and Communist North Vietnam. It can be assumed, until history proves otherwise, that Ho Chi Minh's North Vietnamese were the directing force and chief helper in men and supplies for the Viet Cong.

When the Viet Cong, in the late 1950s, began their guerrilla war to overthrow President Ngo Dinh Diem's government of South Vietnam, they operated on a small scale compared with the forces in the field now.

The shadow of the United States, which had been backing Diem since 1954, lay across the country. But it was hardly a frightening shadow then. It had been helping Diem but there was no certainty this country would get into war for him.

Even by 1960 the United States had only 785 men there, not as a fighting force but as assistants, consultants and trainers. The Viet Cong increased in numbers and success as the years passed.

By the end of 1964 this country had 18,000 men in Vietnam but by then the Saigon government was in danger. Diem had proved no match by himself for the Viet Cong which had the country throttled.

Yet, although in all the years since 1954 the United States had stayed out of the fighting, it was something the Viet Cong and North Vietnam had to think about. What would the Americans do if the Viet Cong were on the verge of taking over the country?

Recent history was not a perfect guide. In the years after World War II the United States had helped Chiang Kai-shek and his nationalists on mainland China but stood aside when the Chinese Communists crushed him finally and took over the mainland.

But the United States had done exactly the opposite when, after withdrawing from South Korea, the North Korean Reds invaded it in 1950. Immediately the United States plunged back in and was involved for years in a war that drove the North Koreans back to where they had started.

So the Viet Cong and North Vietnam would only guess what this country might do if South Vietnam were near total seizure by the Reds. Apparently they assumed the United States would not get involved. It was a wrong guess.

They proceeded slowly instead of using their utmost effort to take over South Vietnam fast before the United States, which had been building up its forces on a tiny scale, could make up its mind about intervening.

Once the Communitst has taken control, this country might very well have decided it was too late to move in.

Although this country now seems determined to see the war to an end, it has been a costly, bloody, drawn-out struggle, thanks to the dogged determination of Ho Chi Minh, and the end is not in sight.

This experience - the cost of the war in lives and money, the division of thinking and unhappiness at home - may make the United States a lot more reluctant to get involved in the future for the sake of a small nation in Asia or elsewhere threatened by Communist seizure.

Institute for Teachers of Geography

COLUMBIA -- The University of Missouri has been selected by the U.S. office of education to help remedy a scarcity of qualified teachers of geography in the state's high schools.

The university and the federal agency are drawing up a contract under which the agency would provide approximately $79,000 to support a summer institute in world geography for 60 prospective teachers of a new tenth - grade world geography course which is being developed for Missouri high schools by the state department of education. The summer institute will be held at Columbia concurrently with the 1968 regular summer session, June 10 - Aug. 2. The office of education has already authorized the university to begin organizing the institute.

The institute will be under the direction of Dr. J. Trenton Kostbade, associate professor of geography. It will be taught by Dr. Kostbade and other members of the geography department staff, assisted by a teacher from Hickman high school as the representative of participants and their viewpoints and interests. It will run five days a week, with four class hours a day, and will grant participants who complete it successfully eight hours of credit.

The teachers who qualify for enrollment will receive stipends of $75 a week for the eight weeks from the grant, plus an allowance for dependents and a waiver of tuition and incidental fees.

Dr. Kostbade said the program is designed to introduce to professional view points potential high school teachers of geography who have only a minimum of formal work in that area. The program will also seek to increase the depth and breadth of knowledge and interpretation which the participants will be able to bring to their own future teaching of the tenth grade course, and to strengthen their abilities to design and construct topical and regional teaching units in geography.

Participants will be required to be high school teachers of history, social studies, or geography likely to teach the new tenth-grade course; possessors of bachelor's degrees; have formal geography training of nine hours or less; and to be teachers in a Missouri high school, although exceptions may be made in this requirement. Preference will be given to applicants who most likely will be teaching the high school course; who have the best academic records; who come from larger high schools; other considerations being equal; and who appear to show the strongest motivation for taking the courses. Dr. Kostbad said also an attempt will be made toward equitable geographical distribution of participants over the state.

The teaching staff will include Dr. Kostbade; Dr. Andreas Grotewold, professor of geography; Dr. Jesse H. Wheeler, Jr., professor of geography and chairman of the department; William A. Noble, instructor in geography; Walter A. Schroeder, instructor in geography; and William F. Higdon, head of social studies at Hickman High School, who will help integrate problems of high school teaching into the program.

Inquiries concerning the institute may be addressed to Dr. J. Trenton Kostbade, associate professor of geography, 111 McAlester Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia.

Dr. Wheeler is a member of the Missouri state committee named by the Director of Curriculum to frame a tenth-grade world geography course for Missouri high schools and put together a manual which will be used for the course. The work of the institute will be structured on that of the tenth-grade course, with the manual closely followed, so the prospective teachers will be given a good idea of the teaching work they will be doing.

Farm Numbers Dwindling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas continues to lead the states in the number of operating farms, with North Carolina second.

An Agriculture Department report said the nation's farms declined from 3,239,000 in 1968 to 3,146,000 in 1967. The agency expects a further decline this year that would pull the total down to 3,059,000 units.

Texas had 200,000 last year and North Carolina 168,000.

The number of farms in 1967 and the anticipated number in 1968, respectively, by states included:

Illinois 133,000 and 131,000; Iowa 150,000 and 147,000; Missouri 152,000 and 150,000; Nebraska 78,000 and 76,000; Kansas 93,000 and 91,000.

Oklahoma 93,000 and 92,000; Colorado 31,500 and 31,000; Arkansas 80,000 and 77,000.

Wears Gun in Brassiere, Calls On Jailed Hubby

MEMPHIS -- Willie Riley's wife came from Forest City, Ark., to visit him in the Shelby county jail, where he's held on a larceny charge and now she's in jail too on a charge of trying to take in a concealed weapon.

Jail Matron Margaret Hogue said that when she searched the would-be visitor yesterday, a .38 pistol turned up in the visitor's brassiere. Matron Hogue said Mrs. Riley claimed she had put the pistol there the night before and forgotten all about it.

$69 Taken in Bluff Burglary

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Martin Oil Station was entered Tuesday night and $68.50 was taken from a safe.

Henry Lipper discovered the entry when he opened the station Wednesday.

A rear door had been forced open and after gaining entrance a desk drawer was opened to get a key to unlock the safe. The money consisted of one $10, three $5 bills and $33.50 in change.

Seniors Starting Over as Freshmen to Enter St. John's

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Randy Runyon would have been a Harvard senior this year. But he is not.

He's a St. John's freshman.

With little more than a year standing between him and a Harvard degree, he chose to start college all over again at the tiny nonsectarian college in Annapolis, Md.

He's not the first student to make this surprising move.

The same thing happened at the college's new western campus, which snuggles in New Mexico's Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

Linda Carithers, who was a junior on the dean's list at the University of New Mexico, wanted to transfer to the little college which refuses to accept transfer students.

Like Randy, she "flunked" herself into the freshman class.

Why would good students take this great leap backward?

Randy Runyon did it because he says he wanted to go forward.

"Backward and forward depend on where you want to go," he says.

"College should give you an education as well as a degree. I was getting a degree but not an education.

"I was getting professional training, but an education is something different. Education should prepare you to deal with all of life, how to make sense of what's going on around you and how to appreciate what is written and said about it.

"I want to be educated as a human being, not trained as a physicist or an historian. That can come later."

Randy did not leap blindly. He thought about it for more than a year.

"It was a big decision, especially financially. Both my wife, Diana, and I have National Merit scholarships, but mine expires soon. It'll be very hard going.

"But," Randy continued, "it's worth it.

"The experience at St. John's itself is worth it. There is real intellectual excitement here, a joy to learning. The students are here because they want to be. If a student doesn't enjoy it, he leaves.

"At Harvard very few people enjoy their studies. They endure them for the sake of a degree. And Harvard is probably a lot better than most places."

Each year a substantial number of students in good standing at the most distinguished colleges in the country apply for admission to the freshman class at St. John's.

But why does St. John's refuse to accept credits earned at other colleges?

"We have a single, all-required curriculum," explains President Richard D. Weigle.

"We are not an educational cafeteria. We do not have course offerings. We have a program. Our program has a beginning and that is where all students must begin.

"Like the acts of a play, each year of the St. John's program is built on the one before.

"We refuse to compromise the integrity of our program even though we are well aware of the difficulties which face a student who wishes to transfer. He must make a great sacrifice of time and money. Happily, our scholarship funds can help to ease the financial problems."

The college is as stubborn about its size as it is about its program.

Responding to the pressure to expand, St. John's doubled its enrollment without changing its size.

It started a whole new college 2,000 miles away.

In 1964, a small band of faculty and administrators set out from Annapolis, where the college has been located since 1696, and established a colony campus in Santa Fe. In 1965, St. John's was both the third oldest and third newest college in the country.

Some things about St. John's are very new.

Randy's classes are a model of what is called the "student-centered school." Instruction depends more on the activity and initiative of the 10 students who make up Randy's tutorial group than on the pronouncements of the supervising faculty member.

"He can't do our thinking for us," explains Randy. "We learn by thrashing things out, by finding each others mistakes. We're always involved.

"I didn't know how it would be, being in with freshman again, but it's great. Three of us in my group have been transfered from other colleges, but that works to our advantage. We learn by teaching each other. The more I can help someone else to learn, the more I can learn myself."

Other things about St. John's are very old.

It insists on old-fashioned intellectual discipline. There may be "joy" as Randy says, but there is also a lot of hard work. It is the only nondenominational college which requires all students to study ancient Greek.

It also requires them to study Einstein's papers on relativity.

St. John's agrees with Randy that you can go forward by going backward.

The college has turned to the classics in order to provide a thoroughly modern education which will prepare a student for the future as well as the present.

Dean John Kieffer describes the classics as "writings of any period which offer light on the deepest, most commonly encountered problems of human living.

"St. John's strives to prepare its students for the future not by having them memorize results of the latest research or read the books which are the fad this year, but by facing up to the fundamental questions which are always present to men."

Area Leads in Crop Payments

SEDALIA (AP) - Missouri farmers were paid $1,361,000 for crop issues last year, the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. reported Tuesday.

More than 2,500 farmers in 61 counties received the payments.

Two-thirds of the money went to growers in seven Delta counties where excess moisture seriously curtailed the cotton yield. Corn damages ranked second, soybean losses third and wheat fourth.

Payments totaled more than $150,000 each in Dunklin, Mississippi and Stoddard counties, and more than $125,000 in New Madrid County.

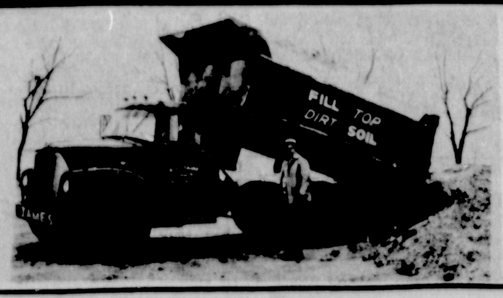

SIX EX-SPARTANS COACH

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— The addition of two former Michigan State players on Duffy Daugherty's coaching staff brings to six the number of former Spartans who are coaching on the campus.

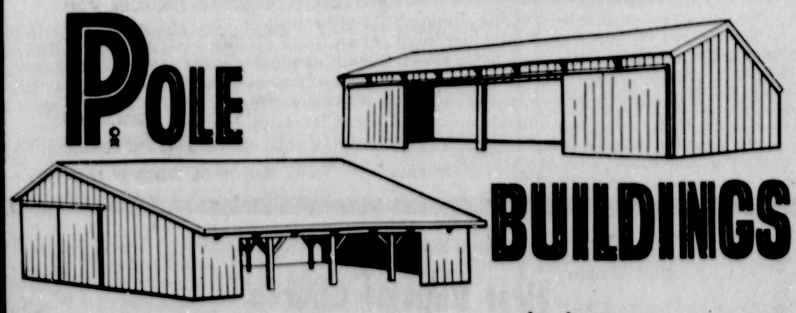

Dave Smith, an end in the early 50s, is now assistant backfield coach. George Perles, a State lineman 10 years ago, was added to the staff during the summer.

Other ex-Spartans on Duffy's staff are Henry Bullough, defensive line; Gordon Serr, offensive line; Al Dorow, offensive backfield, and Vince Carillot, defensive backfield.

Daugherty's other two aides are end coach Cal Stoll, out of Minnesota, and Ed Rutherford from Wayne State.

Dawdling May Aid Red Cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have good reason to kick themselves for dawdling. At the same time Ho Chi Minh, the chief dawdler, may have done communism one of its greatest favors.

The dawdling was in failing to try to take over South Vietnam faster. The favor was in making Americans, after their experience in this war, perhaps a little more reluctant to get into another one like it.

It's impossible at this time to draw a sharp distinction, if any, between the Viet Cong and Communist North Vietnam. It can be assumed, until history proves otherwise, that Ho Chi Minh's North Vietnamese were the directing force and chief helper in men and supplies for the Viet Cong.

When the Viet Cong, in the late 1950s, began their guerrilla war to overthrow President Ngo Dinh Diem's government of South Vietnam, they operated on a small scale compared with the forces in the field now.

The shadow of the United States, which had been backing Diem since 1954, lay across the country. But it was hardly a frightening shadow then. It had been helping Diem but there was no certainty this country would get into war for him.

Even by 1960 the United States had only 785 men there, not as a fighting force but as assistants, consultants and trainers. The Viet Cong increased in numbers and success as the years passed.

By the end of 1964 this country had 18,000 men in Vietnam but by then the Saigon government was in danger. Diem had proved no match by himself for the Viet Cong which had the country throttled.

Yet, although in all the years since 1954 the United States had stayed out of the fighting, it was something the Viet Cong and North Vietnam had to think about. What would the Americans do if the Viet Cong were on the verge of taking over the country?

Recent history was not a perfect guide. In the years after World War II the United States had helped Chiang Kai-shek and his nationalists on mainland China but stood aside when the Chinese Communists crushed him finally and took over the mainland.

But the United States had done exactly the opposite when, after withdrawing from South Korea, the North Korean Reds invaded it in 1950. Immediately the United States plunged back in and was involved for years in a war that drove the North Koreans back to where they had started.

So the Viet Cong and North Vietnam would only guess what this country might do if South Vietnam were near total seizure by the Reds. Apparently they assumed the United States would not get involved. It was a wrong guess.

They proceeded slowly instead of using their utmost effort to take over South Vietnam fast before the United States, which had been building up its forces on a tiny scale, could make up its mind about intervening.

Once the Communitst has taken control, this country might very well have decided it was too late to move in.

Although this country now seems determined to see the war to an end, it has been a costly, bloody, drawn-out struggle, thanks to the dogged determination of Ho Chi Minh, and the end is not in sight.

This experience - the cost of the war in lives and money, the division of thinking and unhappiness at home - may make the United States a lot more reluctant to get involved in the future for the sake of a small nation in Asia or elsewhere threatened by Communist seizure.

Institute for Teachers of Geography

COLUMBIA -- The University of Missouri has been selected by the U.S. office of education to help remedy a scarcity of qualified teachers of geography in the state's high schools.

The university and the federal agency are drawing up a contract under which the agency would provide approximately $79,000 to support a summer institute in world geography for 60 prospective teachers of a new tenth - grade world geography course which is being developed for Missouri high schools by the state department of education. The summer institute will be held at Columbia concurrently with the 1968 regular summer session, June 10 - Aug. 2. The office of education has already authorized the university to begin organizing the institute.

The institute will be under the direction of Dr. J. Trenton Kostbade, associate professor of geography. It will be taught by Dr. Kostbade and other members of the geography department staff, assisted by a teacher from Hickman high school as the representative of participants and their viewpoints and interests. It will run five days a week, with four class hours a day, and will grant participants who complete it successfully eight hours of credit.

The teachers who qualify for enrollment will receive stipends of $75 a week for the eight weeks from the grant, plus an allowance for dependents and a waiver of tuition and incidental fees.

Dr. Kostbade said the program is designed to introduce to professional viewpoints potential high school teachers of geography who have only a minimum of formal work in that area. The program will also seek to increase the depth and breadth of knowledge and interpretation which the participants will be able to bring to their own future teaching of the tenth grade course, and to strengthen their abilities to design and construct topical and regional teaching units in geography.

Participants will be required to be high school teachers of history, social studies, or geography likely to teach the new tenth-grade course; possessors of bachelor's degrees; have formal geography training of nine hours or less; and to be teachers in a Missouri high school, although exceptions may be made in this requirement. Preference will be given to applicants who most likely will be teaching the high school course; who have the best academic records; who come from larger high schools; other considerations being equal; and who appear to show the strongest motivation for taking the courses. Dr. Kostbade said also an attempt will be made toward equitable geographical distribution of participants over the state.

The teaching staff will include Dr. Kostbade; Dr. Andreas Grotewold, professor of geography; Dr. Jesse H. Wheeler, Jr., professor of geography and chairman of the department; William A. Noble, instructor in geography; Walter A. Schroeder, instructor in geography; and William F. Higdon, head of social studies at Hickman High School, who will help integrate problems of high school teaching into the program.

Inquiries concerning the institute may be addressed to Dr. J. Trenton Kostbade, associate professor of geography, 111 McAlester Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia.

Dr. Wheeler is a member of the Missouri state committee named by the Director of Curriculum to frame a tenth-grade world geography course for Missouri high schools and put together a manual which will be used for the course. The work of the institute will be structured on that of the tenth-grade course, with the manual closely followed, so the prospective teachers will be given a good idea of the teaching work they will be doing.

Farm Numbers Dwindling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas continues to lead the states in the number of operating farms, with North Carolina second.

An Agriculture Department report said the nation's farms declined from 3,239,000 in 1968 to 3,146,000 in 1967. The agency expects a further decline this year that would pull the total down to 3,059,000 units.

Texas had 200,000 last year and North Carolina 168,000.

The number of farms in 1967 and the anticipated number in 1968, respectively, by states included:

Illinois 133,000 and 131,000; Iowa 150,000 and 147,000; Missouri 152,000 and 150,000; Nebraska 78,000 and 76,000; Kansas 93,000 and 91,000.

Oklahoma 93,000 and 92,000; Colorado 31,500 and 31,000; Arkansas 80,000 and 77,000.

Economic Strategy Panel Keeps Silent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten months after President Johnson ordered a Cabinet-level commission to begin work at once on an antirecession strategy for a peace-time economy its members still haven't delivered a formal proposal to the White House.

"There is no report in the sense of a report for the President to act on," a Commerce Department official said in an interview. "We're working on it, though I can't say at any furious pace."

Johnson, saying an end to the Vietnam war could jeopardize the economic boom that began in early 1961, directed Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers and other aides last January "to begin at once a major and coordinated effort" to prepare for the economics of peace.

"When that welcome day of peace arrives, we will need quick adjustments in our economic policies," Johnson said in his annual economic message to Congress last Jan. 26. "We must be prepared for those adjustments, ready to act rapidly."

The White House had no comment on the commission's work—although one spokesman said he hadn't heard anything about it since March.

It was on March 5 that Johnson named these men to share with Ackley the responsibility for setting up the new economic machinery:

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Commerce Alexander B. Trowbridge and Director Charles L. Schultze of the Budget Bureau.

Of these, Ackley is leaving the Council of Economic Advisers to become U.S. ambassador to Italy; McNamara has resigned to become president of the World Bank, and Schultze has resigned to become a senior fellow at Brookings Institution. None has actually left his post yet.

Most commission sources declined to discuss the progress of the antirecession plans.

Two who did talk briefly about them said the principal difficulty in planning redirection of the economy is that no one knows when the war will end, under what conditions it will end or in what state its end will find the economy.

The commission would have to "be prepared to advise (the President) at any point in time that this war should end under any circumstances." said Charles B. Warden Jr., Ackley's special assistant. "What's true on any May 1 won't necessarily be true on June 1."

"Every time we try to do it (the plan) the figures change," said Edward K. Smith, Commerce Department deputy assistant secretary for economic policy.

Warden said while there have been no formal reports, there has been "a passing of memos" among the commission members. And, he added: "We will think through the problems and be prepared to advise the President."

Gives Her Bathroom Real Decorator Touch

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I recently laid a wall-to-wall carpet in the bathroom, and I covered the black wastebasket with a piece of the leftover carpet. It was cut to fit around the can and then pasted on with that all-purpose milky white glue to add a real decorator touch to the room.—BEATRICE

DEAR GIRLS—Just the other day I saw a desk chair seat covered with a piece of pink carpet left from that used on the bedroom floor. It was smashing.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have an upright freezer which has no bins. I bought four small, plastic dishpans and two of these fit perfectly on a shelf. All small packages were put in one and various items were grouped together in the others. Now, when I want something, I just pull out the proper pan and get what I want without having to dig around while holding the freezer door open.—RUTH

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. C. M. asked how she could straighten her husband's ties that are out of shape after being washed. Use another tie the same size as a pattern and trace one half (one end) on a piece of stiff cardboard that has no creases. Do the other half the same way. Cut out the pattern so that it is about 1/16-inch smaller around the edges than the tie. Slip these cardboard pieces into each end of the tie and straighten. Press with the steam iron, using cloth over the tie.—F. W.

DEAR POLLY—I have often washed men's ties the following way: Leave the tie folded as it hangs on the rack. Hold in your hand in this position then fold a second time. Keep it this way while you wash it in lukewarm water and detergent. Rinse, holding it doubled once. Drip dry. Lay a thin cloth over it when pressing. The lining in a tie is cut on a decided bias and that is why it twists up if not held straight. Perhaps Mrs. C. M. could redo hers in this manner.—V. E. W.

Army Forces in U.S. Short of Equipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army divisions and brigades that form a strategic reserve to meet any new crisis abroad, are short nearly one-fifth of their major equipment.

This situation exists more that two years after the Defense Department began putting in heavy orders for gear and supplies to support a big military buildup for the Vietnam war.

Asked for a report on the present equipment situation in the strategic reserves, the Army replied Wednesday: "The active Army divisions and brigades currently stationed in continental United States have on hand approximately 82 per cent of their authorized . . . major end items equipment."

The Army defined a major end item as "one which in itself performs a function" such as trucks and tanks.

It estimated only about one-half of the shortages will be filled by June 30.

Beyond an across-the-board percentage the Army declined on security grounds to provide a detailed breakdown of short items.

But while the strategic reserves are short of their allotted equipment, the Army apparently has made progress in modernizing their gear.

In May 1966 the Senate preparedness subcommittee complained stateside divisions were burdened with over-age vehicles and tracked equipment which has been driven "an excessive number of miles."

The new report said fewer than 1.2 per cent of the major items on hand are less than first-line quality.

The preparedness subcommittee charged in March 1966 that the Army's divisions in the United States were not combat-ready because they were being used to train draftees and recruits. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara acknowledged this was so.

A separate Army report, furnished on request to The Associated Press, showed this problem has been overcome. The Army said no basic trainees remain in the ranks of its divisions and brigades in the United States.

Furthermore, virtually all those units are at 100 per cent strength, with many of their men Vietnam combat veterans, the Army said.

Only two divisions, one a mechanized infantry division and one an armored division, are below full strength and these, sources said, range between 95 per cent and 100 per cent, of full manpower.

There are four Army divisions in the strategic reserves.

They are the 1st Armored Division and 2nd Armored Division, both at Ft. Hood, Texas; the 5th Mechanized Division at Ft. Carson, Colo.; and the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

A new division, the 6th Infantry, is beginning to take shape at Ft. Campbell, Ky. It will probably not be combat-ready until late this year.

When the United States decided to take the big plunge in Vietnam in the summer of 1965, the Army's strategic reserve was made up of eight divisions plus two brigades.

Also forming an important part of the strategic reserves are two Marine divisions, the 2nd based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and the 5th at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

About one-third of the 5th Marine Division is in Vietnam. Roughly the same slice of the 2nd Marine Division is afloat on normal rotation duty in the Mediterranean and Caribbean or stationed at the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Sources said both Marine divisions have some minor manpower gaps but are in pretty good shape so far as equipment is concerned.

ARMED FORCES

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. -- Master Sergeant Adrian L. Warf, son of Mrs. Dorothy L. Warf of Lilbourn, Mo., took part in the 10,000-mile airlift of 101st Airborne Division units to Vietnam -- the largest and longest aerial troop deployment in history.

Sergeant Warf is an aircraft maintenance superintendent assigned to the 63rd Military Airlift Wing at Norton AFB, Calif. The 63rd supported the airlift of units of the 101st -- the famed Screaming Eagles -- from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to Vietnam.

The deployment -- dubbed Operation Eagle Thrust -- began No. 17. Military Airlift Command (MAC) C - 141 Starlifters and C-133 Cargomasters carried more than 10,000 troops and some 5,000 tons of equipment during the giant airlift.

The long - range C-141 fanjet, which cruises at 500 miles an hour, carried a normal troop load of 94 or a combination of troops and cargo. The paratroopers wore combat clothing and carried their weapons aboard the aircraft.

Sergeant Warf served during World War II.

His wife, Uler, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Dufur of 1517 E. Gladys St., Sikeston, Mo.

He attended Keiser (Ark.) High School.

WITH U. S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam -- First Lieutenant William O. Lowe, whose wife, Suellen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tucker of Rt. 1, Bloomfield, Mo., was recently credited with helping to break a Viet Cong attack on an Army Special Forces camp near Bien Hoa Air Base, where he is based. Lieutenant Lowe is an AC-47 Dragonship pilot.

Arriving in the combat area, the lieutenant's crew dropped flares in support of A-37 and F-100 Super Sabre pilots attacking the Viet Cong positions. Thinking the assault was broken, the Dragonship crew headed for the base only to be recalled by the forward air controller as the enemy had resumed the engagement.

"Since we were the only aircraft still in the area, we returned and hit the enemy with 22,000 rounds of ammunition from our miniguns," reported Lieutenant Lowe. "This time they broke off the attack for good."

The lieutenant was commissioned in 1965 upon completion of Officers Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

A 1961 graudate of Bloomfield High School, he received his B. S. degree in 1964 from Southeast Missouri State College.

Lieutenant Lowe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert A. Lowe of Chula Vista, Calif.

Jury Fulfills Man's Wish for Death Sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury that convicted former deputy Dist. Atty. Jack Kirschke of murdering his wife and a man in her bedroom has sentenced him to the California gas chamber as he dared it to.

The jurors deliberated about four hours before announcing their verdict Wednesday. The tall, lean Kirschke stood solemnly, unflinching, when he heard it.

The day before, arguing his own case, the 46-year-old former prosecutor had said: "I prefer death to spending the rest of my life in prison."

After the jurors affirmed their decision individually, Kirschke bowed to them slightly and sat down. Then he said he will seek a new trial.

In the courtroom was Albert C.S. Ramsey, the lawyer Kirschke dropped from his case when he won permission Monday to represent himself in the penalty phase of the trial. To newsmen Ramsey explained the reasoning that may have led Kirschke to ask for the death penalty.

Kirschke knows that the State Supreme Court automatically and promptly reviews all death sentences and he has said he believes the court looks more closely at death penalty cases than at those involving life imprisonment.

At the end of a 13-week trial Kirschke had said he was confident the jury would acquit him. But on Dec. 19 it said that Kirschke shot his dress designer wife Elaine, 43, and Orville W. Drankhan, 41, last April in the Kirschke's Long Beach apartment.

Native Nassau Regime Begins Second Year

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamas Premier Lynden O. Pindling marked the beginning of his native government's second year in office today with plans to make the islands internally independent from the British colonial government.

At the first anniversary celebration Wednesday night— in the shadow of one of the largest British forts of the colonial era — Pindling polished the program for presentation to the Bahamas House of Assembly.

A majority report by the Committee on Constitutional Advance, written by Pindling's Progressive Liberal party, a Negro group, is expected to ask that the colonial governor be stripped of his control over internal security and the police.

The minority report from the United Bahamian party took exception to any change in the 1964 constitution which gives Britain control over defense and foreign matters and allows the queen to appoint a governor. The governor chooses a majority in the island Senate and the commissioner of police.

Few here expect the British would refuse the powers to the Bahamas, but considerable opposition was expected from the UBP.

Wednesday night Pindling addressed a cheering crowd unofficially estimated between 6,000 and 8,000 at Nassau's Clifford Field, following a candlelight procession with a calypso beat through downtown Nassau.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

After Navy Lt. Vincent Robert Capodanno was killed in action in Vietnam on September 4, 1967, a fellow chaplain said this about him: "Chaplain Capodanno loved life and the lives of others so much that he gave his own for them."

Before receiving his Navy commission in 1965, Maryknoll Father Capodanno served for six and one-half years as a missionary in Taiwan. He requested duty with the Marines in Vietnam because he wanted to be where he could do the most good. After a year's tour he extended it for six months. During the fourth month he was assigned to the 3rd Battalion of the 5th U. S. Marine Regiment, which found itself in a rough fight in the Que Son valley, 30 miles south of Da Nang. Father Capodanno was with Mike Company and as always was far from the comparative security of the battalion commanders group. They were nearly surrounded by North Vietnamese Army Regulars. With little regard for his own safety, Chapiain Capodanno moved among the dead and wounded administering last rites, praying and soothing. An enemy mortar shell mangled his right arm and hand but he continued until machine gun fire hit him in the back. He died serving God, his country and his fellow man.

Economic Strategy Panel Keeps Silent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten months after President Johnson ordered a Cabinet-level commission to begin work at once on an antirecession strategy for a peace-time economy its members still haven't delivered a formal proposal to the White House.

"There is no report in the sense of a report for the President to act on," a Commerce Department official said in an interview. "We're working on it, though I can't say at any furious pace."

Johnson, saying an end to the Vietnam war could jeopardize the economic boom that began in early 1961, directed Chairman Gardiner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers and other aides last January "to begin at once a major and coordinated effort" to prepare for the economics of peace.

"When that welcome day of peace arrives, we will need quick adjustments in our economic policies," Johnson said in his annual economic message to Congress last Jan. 26. "We must be prepared for those adjustments, ready to act rapidly."

The White House had no comment on the commission's work although one spokesman said he hadn't heard anything about it since March.

It was on March 5 that Johnson named these men to share with Ackley the responsibility for setting up the new economic machinery:

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Commerce Alexander B. Trowbridge and Director Charles L. Schultze of the Buiget Bureau.

Of these, Ackley is leaving the Council of Economic Advisers to become U.S. ambassador to Italy; McNamara has resigned to become president of the World Bank, and Schultze has resigned to become a senior fellow at Brookings Institution. None has actually left his post yet.

Most commission sources declined to discuss the progress of the antirecession plans.

Two who did talk briefly about them said the principal difficulty in planning redirection of the economy is that no one knows when the war will end, under what conditions it will end or in what state its end will find the economy.

The commission would have to "be prepared to advise (the President) at any point in time that this war should end under any circumstances," said Charles B. Warden Jr., Ackley's special assistant. "What's true on any May 1 won't necessarily be true on June 1."

"Every time we try to do it (the plan) the figures change," said Edward K. Smith, Commerce Department deputy assistant secretary for economic policy.

Warden said while there have been no formal reports, there has been "a passing of memos" among the commission members. And, he added: "We will think through the problems and be prepared to advise the President."

Gives Her Bathroom Real Decorator Touch

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I recently laid a wall-to-wall carpet in the bathroom, and I covered the black wastebasket with a piece of the leftover carpet. It was cut to fit around the can and then pasted on with that all-purpose milky white glue to add a real decorator touch to the room.—BEATRICE

DEAR GIRLS—Just the other day I saw a desk chair seat covered with a piece of pink carpet left from that used on the bedroom floor. It was smashing.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have an upright freezer which has no bins. I bought four small, plastic dishpans and two of these fit perfectly on a shelf. All small packages were put in one and various items were grouped together in the others. Now, when I want something, I just pull out the proper pan and get what I want without having to dig around while holding the freezer door open.—RUTH

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. C. M. asked how she could straighten her husband's ties that are out of shape after being washed. Use another tie the same size as a pattern and trace one half (one end) on a piece of stiff cardboard that has no creases. Do the other half the same way. Cut out the pattern so that it is about 1/16-inch smaller around the edges than the tie. Slip these cardboard pieces into each end of the tie and straighten. Press with the steam iron, using cloth over the tie.—F. W.

DEAR POLLY—I have often washed men's ties the following way: Leave the tie folded as it hangs on the rack. Hold in your hand in this position then fold a second time. Keep it this way while you wash it in lukewarm water and detergent. Rinse, holding it doubled once. Drip dry. Lay a thin cloth over it when pressing. The lining in a tie is cut on a decided bias and that is why it twists up if not held straight. Perhaps Mrs. C. M. could redo hers in this manner.—V. E. W.

Polly's Problem

Army Forces in U.S. Short of Equipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army divisions and brigades that form a strategic reserve to meet any new crisis abroad, are short nearly one-fifth of their major equipment.

This situation exists more that two years after the Defense Department began putting in heavy orders for gear and supplies to support a big military buildup for the Vietnam war.

Asked for a report on the present equipment situation in the strategic reserves, the Army replied Wednesday: "The active Army divisions and brigades currently stationed in continental United States have on hand approximately 82 per cent of their authorized . . . major end items equipment."

The Army defined a major end item as "one which in itself performs a function" such as trucks and tanks.

It estimated only about one-half of the shortages will be filled by June 30.

Beyond an across-the-board percentage the Army declined on security grounds to provide a detailed breakdown of short items.

But while the strategic reserves are short of their allotted equipment, the Army apparently has made progress in modernizing their gear.

In May 1966 the Senate preparedness subcommittee complained stateside divisions were burdened with over-age vehicles and tracked equipment which has been driven "an excessive number of miles."

The new report said fewer than 1.2 per cent of the major items on hand are less than first-line quality.

The preparedness subcommittee charged in March 1966 that the Army's divisions in the United States were not combat-ready because they were being used to train draftees and recruits. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara acknowledged this was so.

A separate Army report, furnished on request to The Associated Press, showed this problem has been overcome. The Army said no basic trainees remain in the ranks of its divisions and brigades in the United States.

Furthermore, virtually all those units are at 100 per cent strength, with many of their men Vietnam combat veterans, the Army said.

Only two divisions, one a mechanized infantry division and one an armored division, are below full strength and these, sources said, range between 95 per cent and 100 per cent, of full manpower.

There are four Army divisions in the strategic reserves.

They are the 1st Armored Division and 2nd Armored Division, both at Ft. Hood, Texas; the 5th Mechanized Division at Ft. Carson, Colo.; and the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

A new division, the 6th Infantry, is beginning to take shape at Ft. Campbell, Ky. It will probably not be combat-ready until late this year.

When the United States decided to take the big plunge in Vietnam in the summer of 1965, the Army's strategic reserve was made up of eight divisions plus two brigades.

Also forming an important part of the strategic reserves are two Marine divisions, the 2nd based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and the 5th at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

About one-third of the 5th Marine Division is in Vietnam. Roughly the same slice of the 2nd Marine Division is afloat on normal rotation duty in the Mediterranean and Caribbean or stationed at the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Sources said both Marine divisions have some minor manpower gaps but are in pretty good shape so far as equipment is concerned.

ARMED FORCES

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. -- Master Sergeant Adrian L. Warf, son of Mrs. Dorothy L. Warf of Lilbourn, Mo., took part in the 10,000-mile airlift of 101st Airborne Division units to Vietnam -- the largest and longest aerial troop deployment in history.

Sergeant Warf is an aircraft maintenance superintendent assigned to the 63rd Military Airlift Wing at Norton AFB, Calif. The 63rd supported the airlift of units of the 101st -- the famed Screaming Eagles -- from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to Vietnam.

The deployment -- dubbed Operation Eagle Thrust -- began No. 17. Military Airlift Command (MAC) C-141 Starlifters and C-133 Cargomasters carried more than 10,000 troops and some 5,000 tons of equipment during the giant airlift.

The long-range C-141 fanjet, which cruises at 500 miles an hour, carried a normal troop load of 94 or a combination of troops and cargo. The paratroopers wore combat clothing and carried their weapons aboard the aircraft.

Sergeant Warf served during World War II.

His wife, Uler, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Dufur of 1517 E. Gladys St., Sikeston, Mo.

He attended Keiser (Ark.) High School.

WITH U. S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam -- First Lieutenant William O. Lowe, whose wife, Suellen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tucker of Rt. 1, Bloomfield, Mo., was recently credited with helping to break a Viet Cong attack on an Army Special Forces camp near Bien Hoa Air Base, where he is based. Lieutenant Lowe is an AC-47 Dragonship pilot.

Arriving in the combat area, the lieutenant's crew dropped flares in support of A-37 and F-100 Super Sabre pilots attacking the Viet Cong positions. Thinking the assault was broken, the Dragonship crew headed for the base only to be recalled by the forward air controller as the enemy had resumed the engagement.

"Since we were the only aircraft still in the area, we returned and hit the enemy with 22,000 rounds of ammunition from our miniguns," reported Lieutenant Lowe. "This time they broke off the attack for good."

The lieutenant was commissioned in 1965 upon completion of Officers Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

A 1961 graudate of Bloomfield High School, he received his B. S. degree in 1964 from Southeast Missouri State College.

Lieutenant Lowe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert A. Lowe of Chula Vista, Calif.

Jury Fulfills Man's Wish for Death Sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury that convicted former deputy Dist. Atty. Jack Kirschke of murdering his wife and a man in her bedroom has sentenced him to the California gas chamber as he dared it to.

The jurors deliberated about four hours before announcing their verdict Wednesday. The tall, lean Kirschke stood solemnly, unflinching, when he heard it.

The day before, arguing his own case, the 46-year-old former prosecutor had said: "I prefer death to spending the rest of my life in prison."

After the jurors affirmed their decision individually, Kirschke bowed to them slightly and sat down. Then he said he will seek a new trial.

In the courtroom was Albert C.S. Ramsey, the lawyer Kirschke dropped from his case when he won permission Monday to represent himself in the penalty phase of the trial. To newsmen Ramsey explained the reasoning that may have led Kirschke to ask for the death penalty.

Kirschke knows that the State Supreme Court automatically and promptly reviews all death sentences and he has said he believes the court looks more closely at death penalty cases than at those involving life imprisonment.

At the end of a 13-week trial Kirschke had said he was confident the jury would acquit him. But on Dec. 19 it said that Kirschke shot his dress designer wife Elaine, 43, and Orville W. Drankhan, 41, last April in the Kirschke's Long Beach apartment.

The 21-member visitation committee is composed of superintendents, principals, teachers and representatives of the state department of education of the college.

Those faculty members serving on the team are Dr. Willard J. Morgan, chairman of the committee; Dr. Paul Mawhinney; Dr. Raymond J. Mosley; Dr. Floyd Wright; Mr. William McCarter; Mr. Roy Dawson and Miss Rosina Koetting.

Notre Dame high school is the third in the southeast district to undergo reevaluation. All members of the association must be reeavluated by 1972.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is the largest regional association. More than 3,800 schools in 19 states belong, including 62 American-dependent schools in foreign countries. Two hundred Missouri schools are members.

Native Nassau Regime Begins Second Year

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamas Premier Lynden O. Pindling marked the beginning of his native government's second year in office today with plans to make the islands internally independent from the British colonial government.

At the first anniversary celebration Wednesday night— in the shadow of one of the largest British forts of the colonial era — Pindling polished the program for presentation to the Bahamas House of Assembly.

A majority report by the Committee on Constitutional Advance, written by Pindling's Progressive Liberal party, a Negro group, is expected to ask that the colonial governor be stripped of his control over internal security and the police.

The minority report from the United Bahamian party took exception to any change in the 1964 constitution which gives Britain control over defense and foreign matters and allows the queen to appoint a governor. The governor chooses a majority in the island Senate and the commissioner of police.

Few here expect the British would refuse the powers to the Bahamas, but considerable opposition was expected from the UBP.

Wednesday night Pindling addressed a cheering crowd unofficially estimated between 6,000 and 8,000 at Nassau's Clifford Field, following a candlelight procession with a calypso beat through downtown Nassau.

Lee Radziwill's TV Debut Delayed

NEW YORK (AP)— The television debut of Lee Bouvier Radziwill was postponed a week by the American Broadcasting Co. Thursday so it can televise President Johnson's State of the Union address.

The sister of Jacqueline Kennedy was scheduled to star in a two-hour drama, "Laura" on the night of Jan. 17, during the time the President will speak. CBS and NBC announced Wednesday they would give the speech live coverage.

Ann Landers

Practice Doesn't Make Perfect in Sex Relationship

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school girl who believes in free love. Please print my letter because there are plenty more like me and our side doesn't get very much coverage.

I am not a tramp. I come from a high class family and I make good grades. I see nothing wrong with sleeping with different boys so long as I like them and they like me -- as a person, I mean.

Virginity is an old-fashioned idea that makes no sense any more. Why should a girl save herself for a man who is not making any great effort to save himself for her? In our social group I don't know of a single guy who has done much of a preservation job.

Sex is an important part of marriage and I want to be the perfect wife. I feel that the practice I am getting now will be very useful when Mr. Right comes along. So you see, there ARE some logical and sensible arguments against virginity. And if you are fair, as you claim to be, you will print my letter. MISS HONEST

Dear Miss: If you are sleeping around so you will be experienced for Mr. Right, you can stop now. Mr. Right will not view your list of bed partners as impressive credentials. In fact, he might get the idea that you are a bit of an alley cat.

I don't deceive myself into believing my advice will cut any mustard with you, Toots, but for the girls who have not yet lost The Great Debate, I'd like to say this: Insofar as sex is concerned, practice does NOT make perfect. It does make juicy conversation in locker rooms and, of course, it can also make babies.

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently that a state school for mentally retarded children in Boston has accepted 300 pairs of old shoes from someone who had been saving them for 30 years. The shoe saver received wide acclaim for his "thriftiness and generosity."

The while thing made me sick to my stomach. Old, misshapen shoes can ruin a person's feet for the rest of his life. Many retarded children cannot speak well enough to let another person know what is bothering them.

I would like to pose a question to the fine citizens of Boston: Is this the best your state can do for its retarded children? -- PARENT OF A RETARDED CHILD

Dear Parent: Thank you for your letter. If a Bostonian will come up with an answer I will print it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died seven months ago. We had a fine marriage and his sudden death was a terrible blow to me. For the first several months I couldn't even think of going out and enjoying myself. Now I am feeling stronger and I would like to accept some of the invitations my friends have so generously extended. My husband's sister says it would be disrespectful to my husband's memory if I did not honor the mourning period of one year. Do you agree?

--WANT TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT

Dear Want To: No. Life is for the living. If you feel that you would like to socialize now, do so. It's how you treat a man when he's alive that counts.

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The move for a public library for Sikeston, started last week by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union members, has gained considerable headway, and practically every member of the local organization has pledged books or money. The library will be maintained for a while at the high school building, where Superintendent Lee will catalogue the books and act as librarian. Later it is the plan to secure library accommodations down town and employ a librarian.

After an illness of several weeks, Dick Finley passed away at his home, near Benton, January 16th. Two nephews, R. C. and L. L. Finley, P. A. and George Stone and Steve Humphrey are among the relatives from Sikeston and near by who will attend the funeral.

Eisenhower Tops Popularity Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is named in a Gallup Poll as the man Americans admired most in the world in 1967.

Eisenhower edged out President Johnson, who had been the number one choice in the last four annual surveys.

Johnson dropped to number two and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., who placed third in 1966, dropped to fourth behind the Rev. Billy Graham.

Dr. George Gallup of the American Institute of Public Opinion in Princeton, N.J., said poll takers asked 1,526 U.S. adults:

"What man that you have heard or read about living today in any part of the world, do you admire most?"

Efforts to Test Moon Soil Thwarted

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 7's remote-controlled fingers clawed into the face of the moon Wednesday night but scientists were thwarted by inches today from making a chemical analysis of the lunar surface.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena said they have been unable so far to lower a device known as an alpha scattering instrument to the lunar surface.

The alpha device is designed to determine the chemical composition of the surface by radiation. It was stuck about two feet above the crust on the south-central highlands near the Crater Tycho, where the final Surveyor set down.

The alpha device— a 5 x 6 x 7 inch box— must be on the surface to do its job. By remote control, scientists tried to push it to the soil by pressing downward with Surveyor's soil-digging scoop.

It didn't budge the alpha box but scientists planned to continue trying.

The chemical tests are regarded as one of the most important missions of Surveyor 7, which soft-landed Tuesday.

If You Were The Judge

No One Misled by Error in Ballot Name

Joe Biceps thought he was a real he-man. When he ran for town clerk, however, there was some basis for doubt in his mind. The ballot listed his first name as "Josephine" instead of "Joseph."

The result? Joe drew more whistles than votes and lost the election. Without ado, he raced to court where he insisted that the election was void and demanded a rematch.

"Since I was a qualified candidate," he told the judge, "I was entitled to have my name on the ballot. Since it wasn't on it, I'm entitled to have the whole election done over again."

"His name certainly was on the ballot," retorted the winning candidate. "The fact that his first name was feminized was in no way misleading. With Joe's physique, no one would have mistaken him for a girl any more than they could mistake Raquel Welch for a boy."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order a new election?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the feminization of Joe's name was obviously a typographical error. Since no one was misled as to whom was intended, his name cannot be considered as having been omitted from the ballot.

Riding Motorcycle Without Helmet to Cost License Points

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson has ruled that conviction of operating or being a passenger on a motorcycle without the required protective headgear would result in assessment of two points toward loss of the operator's license.

Under the law that became effective Oct. 13, it is a misdemeanor to ride a motorcycle without a protective helmet. So it could mean a jail term and-or fine, plus the assessment of two demerits on the driver's license.

MEET A FIXER NAMED VANILLA
- AND HE'S AS COOL AS HIS NAME!

Charlie Vanilla is as cold as the ice cream that's his trademark. He's a big-time fixmaster -- and he's in High City to fix the Olympics!

The only person to recognize the cataclysmic catalyst is Col. Steve Canyon's ward, Poteet Canyon -- tenacious girl reporter for the High City HERALD. And she's distracted by a romantic triangle involving herself, her best friend, Bitsy Beekman, and potential Olympic star Jay Newtown.

Newtown may be America's big hope for winning the 5-part Pentathlon --an honor the U. S. has never before achieved -- and never will achieve if Charlie Vanilla has his way.

Will Poteet and Bitsy put aside their rivalry in time to foil Vanilla's evil plans? Can they again become friends?

How the girls cope with the provocative situations in which they find themselves provides a tale that's packed with drama, suspense and action.

The move for a public library for Sikeston, started last week by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union members, has gained considerable headway, and practically every member of the local organization has pledged books or money. The library will be maintained for a while at the high school building, where Superintendent Lee will catalogue the books and act as librarian. Later it is the plan to secure library accommodations down town and employ a librarian.

After an illness of several weeks, Dick Finley passed away at his home, near Benton, January 16th. Two nephews, R. C. and L. L. Finley, P. A. and George Stone and Steve Humphrey are among the relatives from Sikeston and near by who will attend the funeral.

Eisenhower Tops Popularity Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is named in a Gallup Poll as the man Americans admired most in the world in 1967.

Eisenhower edged out President Johnson, who had been the number one choice in the last four annual surveys.

Johnson dropped to number two and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., who placed third in 1966, dropped to fourth behind the Rev. Billy Graham.

Dr. George Gallup of the American Institute of Public Opinion in Princeton, N.J., said poll takers asked 1,526 U.S. adults:

"What man that you have heard or read about living today in any part of the world, do you admire most?"

Efforts to Test Moon Soil Thwarted

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 7's remote-controlled fingers clawed into the face of the moon Wednesday night but scientists were thwarted by inches today from making a chemical analysis of the lunar surface.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena said they have been unable so far to lower a device known as an alpha scattering instrument to the lunar surface.

The alpha device is designed to determine the chemical composition of the surface by radiation. It was stuck about two feet above the crust on the south-central highlands near the Crater Tycho, where the final Surveyor set down.

The alpha device— a 5 x 6 x 7 inch box— must be on the surface to do its job. By remote control, scientists tried to push it to the soil by pressing downward with Surveyor's soil-digging scoop.

It didn't budge the alpha box but scientists planned to continue trying.

The chemical tests are regarded as one of the most important missions of Surveyor 7, which soft-landed Tuesday.

If You Were The Judge

No One Misled by Error in Ballot Name

Joe Biceps thought he was a real he-man. When he ran for town clerk, however, there was some basis for doubt in his mind. The ballot listed his first name as "Josephine" instead of "Joseph."

The result? Joe drew more whistles than votes and lost the election. Without ado, he raced to court where he insisted that the election was void and demanded a rematch.

"Since I was a qualified candidate," he told the judge, "I was entitled to have my name on the ballot. Since it wasn't on it, I'm entitled to have the whole election done over again."

"His name certainly was on the ballot," retorted the winning candidate. "The fact that his first name was feminized was in no way misleading. With Joe's physique, no one would have mistaken him for a girl any more than they could mistake Raquel Welch for a boy."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order a new election?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the feminization of Joe's name was obviously a typographical error. Since no one was misled as to whom was intended, his name cannot be considered as having been omitted from the ballot.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. (James 5:16)

PRAYER: "Lord, I pray for all mankind, that they may be brought to know, love, and serve Thee... May the sick be healed, the mourners comforted, the poor succored, and the afflicted in body and mind be held in Thy deep peace that passeth understanding. MEET A FIXER NAMED VANILLA
- AND HE'S AS COOL AS HIS NAME!

Charlie Vanilla is as cold as the ice cream that's his trademark. He's a big-time fixmaster -- and he's in High City to fix the Olympics!

The only person to recognize the cataclysmic catalyst is Col. Steve Canyon's ward, Poteet Canyon -- tenacious girl reporter for the High City HERALD. And she's distracted by a romantic triangle involving herself, her best friend, Bitsy Beekman, and potential Olympic star Jay Newtown.

Newtown may be America's big hope for winning the 5-part Pentathlon --an honor the U. S. has never before achieved -- and never will achieve if Charlie Vanilla has his way.

Will Poteet and Bitsy put aside their rivalry in time to foil Vanilla's evil plans? Can they again become friends?

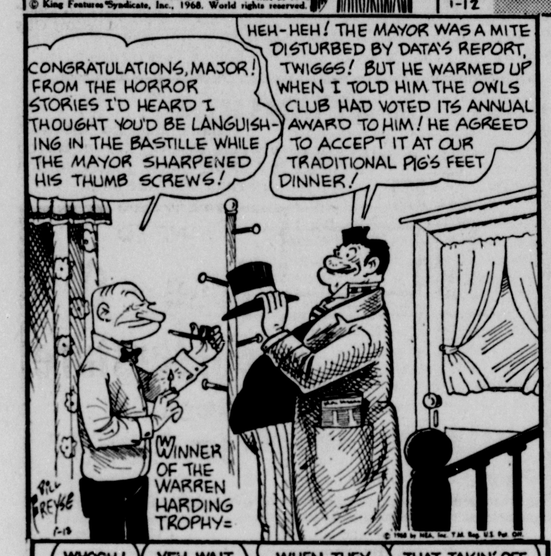

How the girls cope with the provocative situations in which they find themselves provides a tale that's packed with drama, suspense and action.
